A SUDDEN SUMMONS.

Eugene Field, the Well-Known Litterateur Is Dead.

HIS HEAPT WAS DISEASED.

The End Came Unexpectedly During the Early Hours.

A GREAT MIND GONE.

He Made Himself Famous by His Dainty Poetic Work.

CHICAGO, Nov 4—Eugene Field, the poet died of heart failure about five this morning

He retired last night in his usual health and apparently slept soundly until daybreak when his son who occupied a room with him, heard him groan.

It was his expiring gasp

Field leaves a widow and five children.

Field had been ill-disposed for several days but no serious results were even thought of by his family and immediate friends

George H Yonowino of this city was at Field's bedside when he died

Field and Yonowino intended to start together for Kansas City, where Field was to read tonight

HIS HISTORY

Eugene Field was born at St Louis September 2nd 1850 the son of Roswell Martin and Frances (Reid) Field His parents were both natives of Windham county, Vermont

His father was Dred Scott's first attorney in the case which resulted in the famous Dred Scott decision by the U. S Supreme Court

Eugene Field's mother died in 1857 He was then put under the care of his cousin, Miss Mary Field Frenche at Amherst, Mass

He attended Williams College Knox College and the State University of Missouri

He adopted the profession of a newspaper writer, beginning with the St Louis Journal in 1872

He was later connected with the St Joseph Mo., Gazette the St Louis Times-Journal, the Kansas City Times and the Denver Tribune

He came to Chicago August 13th, 1883 to accept a position on the editorial staff of the Chicago Morning News (now Record) and his connection with this paper continued without interruption until his death

Fields last contribution to his department in this paper, 'Sharps and Flats' was published Saturday morning, and in it was a characteristic defense of Bill Nye and a refusal to accept the imputations as to the cause of the recent assault on the humorist at Patterson N J

In addition to his newspaper work, Field established a reputation as a powerful and clever writer of stories and verse

His latest poem of pretension was "Dreamships" printed in the October Ladies' Home Journal

He was especially an adept in poems and stories of child life and his printed books now number half a dozen volumes

THE CASE IS CLOSING.

Holmes' Fate Will Soon Be Settled by the Jury.

The Prisoner Listens Nervously to the Prosecution's Charge.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov 2—When the court opened today at 10 o'clock for arguments in the Holmes case Mr Rotan, junior counsel for the defense, announced that his colleague Shoemaker, was suffering from complete nervous prostration and was under the care of a physician

He called this to the attention of the court in view of the point of law regarding the commonwealth's right to make a closing address to the jury when the defense presented no evidence

Graham ended the question by offering to waive his right to a last speech, and there will be but one address on each side, instead of two by the prosecution.

District Attorney Graham began his address at 10 55 o'clock. He said. "The commonwealth of Pennsylvania is prosecutor in this case, and it asks no victim. If you are satisfied when we have done that this prisoner did not commit the crime you must acquit him

"The commonwealth is bound to prove its case from the initial step down to the last syllable of evidence

"The commonwealth has done so. One by one we have established each link, making the chain complete and perfect."

The District Attorney reviewed the evidence in detail.

The condition of the body, he contended, the medical testimony proved could not have been produced, except by chloroform.

Graham's address, which was confined for the most part to a review of the details of the evidence, lasted for two hours and a half

Holmes nervously shifted in his seat as the thunderous tone of the prosecuting officer rang out.

At the conclusion of the address a recess was taken until 2 30 P. M.

The case was given to the jury at 5 30.

REPRESENT NOBODY.

Hill's Caustic Remarks About the New A. R. U. Strike.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

ST PAUL, Nov 2—When asked today regarding the statement of the special A R U committee that is investigating the grievances of the Great Northern employes, President Hill said

You may say they are men not in the employ of the company They represent nobody They have been discharged for offenses against the Government for refusing to obey the orders of their superiors or for stealing We don't want to have anything to do with them

It is said the officers of the Great Northern have no fears of a strike or serious trouble

IN A BAD CONDITION.

The Mayor's Report on the Grant School Sustained on Investigation.

Faulty Work Was Done and the Material Seems to Have Been Very Poor.

The Mayor at the meeting of the Merchants Exchange held last Tuesday night said in the course of his speech 'I went out to see the Grant school the other day It was built in a growing community and built too small Already there is one class having lessons in a shed They should have built it large when they were doing it, for it would have saved the city money I looked the building over carefully and found a miserable job had been done The roof has already dropped from three to four inches The building is cracked and broken and almost ready to fall In some places the ceiling is supported by an inch board split with an ax"

His remarks excited considerable comment and a Tribune reporter went during the week to the school to see if such a state of things existed

The Grant school is one of the new brick structures lately erected by the educational department It is located at the corner of New Broadway and Prospect avenue and is in a growing community It was built less than one and a half years ago at a cost of about $30 000, contains five school rooms office, halls etc and is used only for the primary grades

The old building was the first visited. In this Miss Richardson teaches an infant class Her room is more pleasant than the idea of it given by the Mayor It is large sunny and fairly well ventilated

Oh it is no shed,' she said to The Tribune man 'and I think I ought to feel indignant at the remarks of Mr. Davie"

The Mayor's description of the new building is too true though That the building is settling is noticeable in many places The plastering is badly cracked and in some spots looks as though it was being forced from the laths by a weight from about it From the outside and in the basement bricks which have split can be seen

The building leaks and always has In some places one on the first floor in particular the leakage is so bad that buckets have to be placed to catch the water during a storm

The roof is poorly supported and has sunk badly, perhaps as much as the Mayor represents It is made of slate of a poor quality and it has cracked considerably The 'inch boards split with an ax' are there Most of the supports as seen in the attic, are of this description

Miss Powell, the principal, is somewhat of an aesthetic in taste, and showed the Tribune man many unsightly places and inconveniences The boards in the wainscoting are far from choice and knots are dropping out of many of them The window weights are not the proper weight for the windows the door knobs bolts and locks are of a cheap quality and badly put on In some instances within a week after the building was occupied the department mechanic was called in to make repairs.

The plumbing has had to be fixed several times Whether the breaks in the pipes were because of poor work in this line at first or whether the sinking of the building strained them is not exactly known

The window glass is the cheapest and some has split from top to bottom The flooring is badly laid and its appearance is far from pleasing

The Mayor is looking for the parties responsible for the work and to be better prepared for them has had an investigation made by James Hopkirk, superintendent of construction of the Sixth Ward school

Anderson & Greig were the contractors for the work and William McDonald was the superintendent of construction.

HANEY'S HAY.

Sheriff White Had a Legal Right to Attach the Feed.

Elmer Haney has been non-suited in the action he brought against Sheriff White to recover 140 tons of hay upon which an attachment had been levied in behalf of F S Chadbourne of Pleasanton. The hay belonged originally to William Patterson, a farmer who employed Haney on the ranch. Patterson had given Chadbourne a mortgage on the chattels and personal property on the farm to secure a note for $1100 Patterson owed Haney several hundred dollars for labor and assigned the hay to him. That is why he came into court, but Judge Ellsworth, on motion of District Attorney Snook, granted a non-suit.

ROBBING THE ROOSTS.

Farmers Threaten to Use Shot Guns Upon Chicken Thieves.

Sheriff White is receiving numerous complaints of the depredations of chicken thieves along the San Leandro road Some notorious characters were recently released from the city prison and the county jail Farmers who depend upon their fowl as one means of securing a livelihood are much disturbed over the work of the depredators They threaten to use dangerous tactics to prevent the thefts, which are becoming very monotonous Chickens are stolen by the score and no clue to the thieves seems to have been located Sheriff White has issued instructions to his deputies to keep a sharp look-out for all suspicious characters The farmers say they will do some shotgun patrolling and make a few county hospital cases unless the thieving ceases

"NOBBY" NOT IN IT.

He Filed an Exception That Would Not Hold Water.

Judge Ellsworth Promptly Brings Him Up With a Short Turn.

'Nobby" Clarke came off second best today in a bit of a legal encounter with Judge Ellsworth Nobby knows a great deal about the effect of compound interest and he knows a great many of the tricks about the law that have kept his creditors busy for several years past

But Nobby was pinched a little this morning and he is surprised at what has happened He went into court smilingly confident He had found a flaw in the armor of the distributing assignee, Ell T Sheppard whose hunt for assets keeps Nobby awake nights devising schemes to outwit him

Sheppard located some property in Alameda county in the shape of a judgment for foreclosure against Henry Frank in favor however of Mrs Clarke Sheppard filed suit and alleged that the property was properly Nobby's and had been transferred in an attempt to defraud creditors Sheppard included Sheriff White as a party to the suit merely pro forma

But there 'Nobby" saw his chance He concluded that because Sheriff White was a defendant in the action that he would be obliged to withdraw in his official capacity when it came to serving the papers and call upon the Coroner "Nobby' noted an exception in his own mind when the summons to the suit was served by White Then he went ahead and prepared a motion to have the summons set aside

'I've got him this time where I want them' gleefully ejaculated 'Nobby' when he waddled into court

You ought to be happy' suggested Judge Ellsworth who very promptly denied Nobby's motion and gave him five days in which to file an answer to the suit of Assignee Sheppard

A TRICKY RIVAL.

He Put Up a Mean Job to Hurt His Opponent's Business.

A peculiar method of business rivalry was brought to light by a case that was tried in the Alameda justice court yesterday

John Aiton a partner of the firm of Aiton & Sons, grocers, was charged by Miss Flora Carroll with enticing her into the store during the lunch hour and attempting to take liberties with her The prosecuting witness and her mother took the stand and the young lady told an apparently straight story of how young Aiton had invited her behind the counter and had attempted to behave in a manner unbecoming a gentleman

Aiton produced a host of witnesses and the hour at which the alleged offense is said to have occurred was pretty well accounted for by his attorney, Mr Fry It was shown that during the time between 12 M. and 1 P M of August 28, young Aiton, who was alone in the store at that time, had done about as much work as an ordinary individual could accomplish in three hours The watermelon man came and made a settlement, the baker did ditto, the oil man, who was there half an hour, and some customers were on hand to testify that they had seen the girl come in and leave the store on that day and that nothing improper occurred

Under cross-examination it was brought out that the case was put up by business rivals for the purpose of showing that Aiton's store was not a proper place at which to trade. The prosecuting witness admitted that she had said what was not true. The Prosecuting Attorney said he had never seen a case so perfectly manufactured and the judge, in dismissing the case, said something about perjury and it is not at all unlikely that the affair may yet go to the grand jury

THE DECREE SIGNED.

Mrs. Burbank In Possession of the Walkerly Estate.

FINAL OBJECTIONS SETTLED.

The Property Is Appraised as Worth Fully $600,000.

NEWMAN NOT CRUSHED YET.

He Says He Will Fight on for the Eastern Relatives.

Mrs Blanche M Burbank, formerly the widow of the deceased capitalist, William Walkerley, came into possession today of the estate of her first husband It is worth not less than $600 000 There were some interesting proceedings in the Superior Court this morning before the order of final distribution of the estate was made by Judge Frick It was not all smooth sailing for Attorneys H C Firebaugh and Arthur Rodgers, who represented the executor Frank Barker, and Mrs Burbank respectively An occasional obstacle in the shape of objections to the proceeding were thrown at the attorneys and the court by B P Newman who represents nine of ten nieces and nephews of Walkerley who were beneficiaries under the trust provisions of his will

Newman had a motion on hand to retax costs laid against his clients in the appeal case which were decided against him Newman has kept the estate tied up for a long time and the attorneys on the other side when the saw light ahead today were not disposed to delay matters much further Newman claimed he had standing in the court and started to argue on his motion on the costs which had been assessed to him He persisted and finally Attorneys Firebaugh and Rodgers consented to waive costs and the motion to retax was granted

But Newman was far from through He had some more argument up his sleeve He went off on a long dissertation in which the United States Supreme Court and many intricate law points fine distinctions and the like figured. Rodgers and Firebaugh yawned and stood around complacently while Newman grew red in the face and swung his arms like a mill wheel in his efforts to convince the court

Judge Frick however, was not moved by the pleadings of the representative of the Walkerley nieces and nephews He did not see where Newman had any standing since the Supreme Court had declared the trust void Newman's clients had representation only under the provisions of the trust set forth in the will and after that was declared invalid there could be no recognition of the beneficiaries who were named in the trust

Newman subsided while Frank Barker, the surviving executor gave his testimony Then the speculating attorney requested permission to cross examine Barker The attorneys on the other side made objection which Judge Frick sustained

Then Mrs Burbank was called and the same procedure was followed Newman was indefatigable as long as there was an opportunity left He asked the court to order the attorneys for Mrs Burbank to furnish him with a copy of the petition for an order of final distribution

Judge Frick said there was no reason why he should make such an order If the attorneys desired as a matter of courtesy to supply a copy they had a perfect right to do so

Newman asked for five days' time in which to prepare an answer to the petition but that was denied, and the belligerent attorney piled up a number of large exceptions to which the court said he was entitled

Rodgers finally secured his order and it was submitted to Judge Frick for his signature This action practically gives the estate to Mrs Burbank Newman has a number of schemes in hand to further his fight but the decision of the Supreme Court is very sweeping and Mrs Burbank's legal advisers say they are confident that the estate is perfectly secure from attack

The property mentioned in the decree consists of the homestead in East Oakland including the fine mansion and the surrounding block of land The only other piece of realty is the Pacific Union Club Building at the northwest corner of Stockton and Post streets in San Francisco This is one of the most valuable pieces of property across the bay A modern five story building covers the lot The remainder of the estate consists of personal effects The total value as appraised is in the close neighborhood of $600 000

Mrs Burbank is the wife of William F Burbank a former Oakland newspaper man who became acquainted with her while he was a reporter during the will contest

BOWMAN & CO., DRUGGISTS,

TWENTY YEARS IN OFFICE.

Today Is a Happy Anniversary for Under Sheriff Harlow.

His Courtesy, Efficiency and Honesty Made His Position Permanent.

This morning Under Sheriff Harlow entered the sheriff's office to commence the first week of his twenty-first year of service. Sheriffs have come and sheriffs have gone but for a score of years William S. Harlow has been the man to bid them welcome, guide them safely through their term of office and bid them adieu.

Harry Morse was the man who first invited Harlow to enter the sheriff's office as under sheriff. Harlow was a reporter on the old Oakland News and was on duty at the courts when Morse offered him the position.

"On November 1st, 1875," said Mr. Harlow today, "I was asked if I would like to be under sheriff. I remember that I was in a hurry to make up my mind because I did not know how long the job would last. Had I known it would be for twenty years and more I could have known my own mind quicker."

Sheriff Morse stayed in office three years. He was succeeded by Jere Tyrrell who like Morse and Harlow was a Republican. Tyrrell stayed five years and when Charley McElvenny advised in the work Democrats succeeded him it was considered certain that Harlow would have to go back to reporting. But McElvenny knew that he would have great difficulty in finding a man with eight years experience as an under sheriff in the Democratic party, so politics were waived and Harlow continued to engineer the office.

Then came W. E. Hale a stalwart Republican. Harlow but then served ten years and Hale concluded that it would be folly to jeopardize his bondsmen by removing the under sheriff so Harlow remained. Sheriff Hale held office for six years and left the county building more convinced than ever that Harlow was the right man in the right place.

W. H. Hussey was Alameda county's next sheriff and Mr. Harlow's superior officer but enough importuned to give Mr. Harlow a rest he thought he would be consulting his best interests by discarding his advice and when Mr. Hussey left the office Harlow bade him adieu and welcomed Hussey's successor.

This was Robert McKillican a Democrat and all kinds of pressure were brought to bear on him to displace Harlow by a good Democrat but with none out. Harlow had been there eighteen years and as the office of under sheriff is one of great responsibility McKillican like some of his predecessors waived to matters of politics and last January Harlow saw him go out and C. B. White come in.

It was considered to be a foregone conclusion that C. White Alameda county's first Populist sheriff would have a new under sheriff. He went farther than his predecessors and placed C. E. Lloyd in the office for the purpose of being instructed by Mr. Harlow in the mysteries of under sheriff's work. Mr. Harlow started to instruct Mr. Lloyd with the same thoroughness courtesy and willingness that has distinguished his career of a score of years but somehow or other in the whirligig of time Mr. Lloyd became chief of police and Mr. Harlow is still under sheriff.

The opinion of a newspaper man is the best criterion of worth of a public official. During the past twenty years hundreds of newspaper men have used the sheriff's office, and not one has ever found Mr. Harlow to be other than the same courteous obliging, honest man that he is today.

SWEDISH MISSIONS.

A convention of Swedish Mission friends assembled in the Swedish Mission church on Filbert street last night. There was a large attendance of clergymen. Rev. A. Dallner of Kingsburg preached a very impressive sermon. The convention will be continued next week and exercises will be held every night except Monday. At each meeting the services will be conducted by a different clergyman.

The Swedish Mission churches are not as their name denotes, missionary organizations. On the contrary, they are well organized and form a progressive religious body. They are separated from the State church in Sweden, but because they started missions outside the mother church they received the name "Mission Friends," "Mission churches."

The Mission friends are very pious and active, and make strong efforts to lead holy lives according to the Word of God. They have many able and prominent men and have been very progressive both in Sweden and America. They have strong churches in Washington, Oregon and California.

The church in Oakland has nearly doubled its membership and more than doubled its adherents.

Rev. C. A. Nelson, a young man educated in Chicago, is the pastor of the local Mission church.

THE APPLE CENSUS.

Over Eight Million More Barrels This Year Than Last.

The apple-census man has made his returns. Though he doesn't climb every tree in the United States, he gets a pretty fair idea of the crop with the aid of market returns and the reports of growers. He says that the output this year will be 66,256,000 barrels, an increase over last year of 8,627,000 barrels.

As near New York as Tarrytown apples have been rotting on the ground because it doesn't pay to cart them to the train. They are quoted at Tarrytown at 25 cents a barrel.

The apple crop in this State is placed at 6,375,000 barrels. Last year it was 5,918,000 barrels. England stands ready to buy five or six million bushels wherever she can get them the cheapest.

There is a tempest in the fruit trade, due to a rule made by fruit importers intended to prevent buyers from doing their own trucking. A buyer who wants to do it has to pay two and a half cents a barrel to the importers' truckman for the privilege. The Fruit Buyers' Union is vigorously objecting to this as an arbitrary and unjust tax.

TO AVOID ANY HITCH.

A Dress Rehearsal Given of the Approaching Big Wedding.

Miss Vanderbilt Will Become an English Duchess Next Wednesday.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—The Duke of Marlborough cut his visit short at Washington and was back in town before day break this morning.

Several important considerations hastened his return, one of which was a rehearsal of the wedding set down for some time this afternoon.

It is also rumored that the future Duchess is suffering from a slight indisposition, owing to the worry attendant upon preparations for the grand wedding Wednesday, and the Duke could not remain away from her any longer.

Police are on duty at the corner of Seventy-second street continuously to prevent annoyance to the Vanderbilt family. But they cannot keep the people away as long as there is any chance of getting a glimpse of the Duke or his future bride, or, in fact, any member of the Vanderbilt family.

When Miss Consuelo and her mother go out for a drive detectives follow the carriage, while two brawny policemen mount guard on the sidewalk to keep the crowd of curiosity-seekers at a distance.

The bridal party after the rehearsal today will repair to the house of Mrs. Vanderbilt, where they will look over the wedding presents and later will attend a dinner given by Mrs. Brickhouse Cutting to the bridesmaids.

The Duke of Malborough, with his best man, Hon Ivor C. Guest, and ushers will be among the guests.

The Duke will present souvenirs to the bridesmaids in the shape of diamond and turquoise brooches.

The Twenty-fourth avenue Methodists expect to hold a grand fair and bazaar during the week ending December 21st, somewhere in the vicinity of Broadway. They will have a fine musical entertainment several evenings during the week, and goods of various kinds and description on sale for the benefit of the church. No "grab bags," lotteries or anything of the kind will be allowed.

One of the most social and complete surprises occurred last Wednesday evening at the residence of E. O. Melcher, 121 Chestnut street. It being his forty-sixth birthday, about fifty of his most intimate friends had been called together by his daughter, and by her strategy a most complete surprise was given to her father on his arrival home from his usual vocation that evening. The house was handsomely decorated with rare and beautiful plants arranged by tasteful hands. The evening was spent in social conversation, interspersed with song, musical rendition and dramatic reading. The piece rendered by Mrs. Freshee and Miss Melchor was a masterpiece of itself, and Daniels and Mark, in their usual happy manner, pleased all with their guitar and mandolin. By 10:30 covers had been laid for all, and led by the host the party sat down to a tempting repast. After satisfying the inner wants those who wished tripped the light fantastic to beautiful music until the small hours appeared.

GOLD FOR EVERYBODY.

Oaklanders Strike It Rich in Montana Mines.

George De Golia, W. D. Heaton, Al. Stillwell and P. H. Cameron have returned from Montana, where they have been looking after their mining interests. Their property is about 75 miles from Butte city and sixteen miles from Norris, the nearest railroad station.

They have named the corporation the Bald Mountain Mining Company and several other Oaklanders are interested with them. The ore is assaying very high, and when the mill which is now being erected on the property is completed the stockholders expect to find themselves millionaires.

Educational Exhibits.

The International Educational Exhibit has been brought to Oakland and is now in the north hall of the Young Men's Christian Association building. Tomorrow from 10 o'clock A. M. to 5 P. M. the public are invited to attend. The evening has been specially set apart for business men. Fifty associations are represented in the exhibit, which contains about 500 specimens.

Ran Into the Ice.

The steamer Jeanie, loaded with coal for Taylor & Co., arrived yesterday from Nanaimo. The boat was built by Captain J. N. Knowles as a transport and tender for the whalers and this is her first trip as a coal trader. Her bows still bear the marks of her last encounters with the ice. On her last trip to Herschle Island with supplies for the whalers that had wintered there she found the ice drifting in great quantities and in driving her way through it was considerably damaged.

THURSDAY, THE 28TH

Thanksgiving Day Ordered in a Presidential Message.

Grover Speaks of Some Reasons for Observing the Usual Festival.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—President Cleveland today issued a proclamation designating Thursday, November 28th, as Thanksgiving Day.

The proclamation is as follows:

"The constant goodness and forbearance of Almighty God, which has been vouchsafed the American people during the year just past call for their sincere acknowledgment of devout gratitude.

"To the end, therefore, that we may with thankful hearts unite in extolling the loving care of Our Heavenly Father, I, Grover Cleveland, President of the United States, do hereby appoint and set apart Thursday, the 28th day of the present month of November, as a day of thanksgiving and prayer to be kept and observed by all our people.

"On that day let us forego our usual occupation and in our accustomed places of worship join in rendering thanks to the Giver of every good and perfect gift for the bounteous returns that have rewarded our labors in the fields and business marts of trade, for the peace and order that has prevailed throughout the land, for our protection from pestilence and dire calamity, and for other blessings that have been showered upon us from an open hand.

"And with our thanksgiving let us humbly beseech the Lord to so incline the hearts of our people unto Him that He will not leave us nor forsake us as a nation, but will continue to us His mercy and protecting care, guiding us in the path of national prosperity and happiness, endowing us with rectitude and virtue and keeping alive within us the patriotic love for free institutions which has been given us as our national heritage.

"And let us also on this day of our thanksgiving especially remember the poor and needy, and by acts of charity let us show the sincerity of our gratitude."

AMUSEMENTS.

Good Entertainments Provided for the Present Week.

The Bragg & Muller star course of entertainments will be inaugurated next Friday evening at the Macdonough theater by the celebrated artist trio. The course will include some of the sterling attractions of the musical and literary world. The programme for the initial entertainment will be given by Miss Laura McManis, the world-famed whistling soloist, Miss Cornelia May, dramatic reader, and Miss Julia Phelps, a pianist and harp soloist of eminence. Season tickets are now ready.

"THE COAST GUARD"

A scream, a short struggle and a woman is thrown from the dredger into a large tank of real water by her husband, and a few seconds later is rescued by a heroic young life-saver, who plunges in after her. This is one of many strong situations in the "Coast Guard," which commences tonight. This is not the most agreeable weather in which to take a forced plunge into cold water, but the action requires it and two shivering performers will be seen before the footlights tonight thoroughly wet and wrapped in blankets. A number of other very strong effects are shown, and melo-drama devotees will find sufficient sensational material at the Oakland to thoroughly satisfy them.

Budd and the A. P. A.

And now comes forward the Stockton Record and declares that Governor Budd's appointment of Mr. Jeter to the vacancy left by the death of Mr. Millard is "a virtual slap in the face" of the American Protective Association, to which it claims Mr. Budd is "under known obligations" for more than enough votes to elect him—many times more. It is said that Mr. Jeter's wife is a Catholic, and consequently the A. P. A. vote went for Mr. Millard, and that the A. P. A. also threw their strength for Mr. Budd because Mr. Estee would not discharge his Catholic typewriter. The Record is a recognized organ of the American Protective Association as far as a daily newspaper can be expected to take part in a religious controversy. It says:

"The Governor knows his own business best. So does the American Protective Association. When each does business again at the polls the incident may considerably influence the result. If Mr. Budd has been ill advised he is still, in the eyes of the Association, responsible for what will be termed a breach of trust, if not of actual perfidy."

It is much to be regretted that the religious beliefs of candidates for high office should become controlling considerations in the minds of any considerable number of voters, but at the present this seems to be the case. It is going to be interesting to note what effect this is going to have in the national election next year.—Sacramento Bee.

Geo. Swing's Funeral.

The remains of George H. Swing, who died a few days ago at Swing Station, near Sacramento, were buried yesterday at Mountain View Cemetery. The deceased was formerly a resident of Alameda.

Killed Himself.

D. C. Biestler, a yard night clerk, was found dead in the bushes at Golden Gate Park Saturday afternoon. He had evidently shot himself, though his friends cannot think of any reason for his doing so. He was a single man and despondent ten days ago. His father was at one time a Supreme Justice of the City of Philadelphia.

CHAT OF COUNTY TOWNS.

Notes Showing Progress and Enterprise In Every Direction.

Personal Mention and Business Notes Gleaned in the Interior.

Clement Miller of this city was a candidate for the position of inspector of the work of laying the new sewer in San Mateo, but a resident of that town named Charles Smith was elected. Smith agreed to work for $3 a day while Miller and another aspirant named Vaughan asked $4 a day or $100 a month.

Last Friday night Rev. Mr. Rice of this city delivered an illustrated lecture in I. O. O. F. hall, Alvarado, for the benefit of the Presbyterian church at that place.

The Haywards planing mill will hereafter be run by H. P. Jessen and Mr. Pryor. E. W. Merwin has sold his interest in it to Pryor, owing to ill health.

J. V. Haley of Haywards has invented a burglar alarm.

LIVERMORE

The Herald of last Saturday has an article on the High school at that place in which the following appears:

"It is gratifying to know that Livermore valley has ever been alive to the importance of maintaining her schools. The outlying schools are sustained in a most creditable manner. The district High school located in Livermore is an honor of the whole valley. It occupies a sightly location in ample grounds that are taking on the beauty of a park, set as they are with lustily growing olives, peppers and palms. Principal Connell, with his assistants, the Misses Moore, Hogg and Thayer, is conducting between fifty and sixty students through courses of study genuinely belonging to High school work, and are working with zeal and conscience to bring the institution up to the high standard required by the State University. Nine districts are harmoniously organized to maintain this Union High School, as follows: Livermore, Inman, Vista, Townsend, Mocho, May, Green, Harris and Highland."

Next Thursday the Herald will make its award in the butter contest, which is inaugurated a week ago for the purpose of showing that good butter may be made in the Livermore valley and thus show up the folly of importing butter from abroad. Touching this importation, the Herald says:

"This butter question is no trifling matter. The idea that hundreds of dollars should be shipped into Livermore every month, into one of the largest valleys of all California, is simply shameful. The Herald asks the merchants of Livermore, as well as the farmers themselves, to think seriously of it. Not only the merchants and the farmers, but the consuming public generally, should be awakened to the importance of giving all possible encouragement to the wealth-producing energies and resources of our home people. Let the merchant who ships his twenty-dollar pieces away to Point Reyes for coast butter remember that he is draining his own coffers. The gold that goes out of the valley for this foreign butter never returns. But by the customs of the local trade nearly every dollar that the merchant pays for home butter is immediately yielded back to him for shoes for the children, calico for the wife and overalls for the old man."

The teachers have organized a society which they call the "Teachers' Round Table," and which will hold meetings on the first and fourth Mondays of each month. The object is to pursue a regular course of professional reading and study along pedagogical and psychological lines.

Chief A. G. Beazell has appointed the following aides in the fire department: First assistant, A. W. Feidler; foreman of engine, George Beck; foreman of hose cart, P. H. McVicar; foreman of hook and ladder, Chas. Bradshaw.

The Misses Hobart of East Oakland gave a fine entertainment in the First Presbyterian church last Friday night.

PLEASANTON.

The Times is reading lectures to the people of Pleasanton on the necessity of harmony and in its last issue has the following:

"An exchange rises to make a remark that fits the case of Pleasanton to a dot: 'Shall we advance or not?' Now is the time for us to make our mark; shall we do it? Remember it is the people that make a town, not its climate or surroundings. If we pull together, if we labor early and late, then our town will grow and our property become of greater value."

Rev. Mr. Winning has commenced a series of religious meetings in the M. E. church. The meetings will be held nightly until further notice.

Lime skum from the sugar factory at Alvarado is being utilized for fertilizing purposes in the hop yards in the neighborhood of Pleasanton.

The dredger in the canal injured its dipper in extracting a root from the bottom of the stream and had to order another one by telegraph.

On Friday evening of last week a number of invited guests congregated at the new residence of W. W. Cameron, north of Pleasanton and enjoyed a few hours in merry-making and dancing.

SPOILED A CLAM-BAKE.

The Rain Yesterday Broke Up a Merry Party.

Down came the rain and the clams are yet unbaked. A clam-bake at G. B. Daniel's ranch was planned for yesterday morning but the elements spoiled it. The guests were invited, the gay party started out for the ranch in the early morning, the clams were willing to be sacrificed, but the clouds burst and drove the party home.

At 4 o'clock yesterday morning a big four-horse drag containing the invited guests, left Mr. Daniel's home near the cemetery and drove to the scene of the festivities. The party consisted of the well known Broadway book dealer and his family, Webb N. Pearce and family, Orrin B. Culver and family, Mr. Houghton and others.

Barely had a start been made when the rain came down in torrents and a more miserable party never was seen. They soon became so clammy that they lost all desire for clams and decided to return. Mr. Daniels was in a conveyance by himself. He is somewhat superstitious and refused to turn back, so he kept on, driving all around Lake Chabot, and finally joined the party at Mr. Houghton's place at Fruitvale, where an impromptu clam-bake was enjoyed.

IS IN GOOD HANDS,

A County Hospital Patient Writes Regarding the Institution.

TRUTH OF ITS WORKINGS.

Superintendent, Supervisors and the Staff of Assistants.

GOOD FOOD IS PROVIDED.

Sanitary Needs Are Urgent and the Big Sewer Is Welcomed.

During the past few months there has been considerable discussion, varied as to its sources, in relation to conditions and affairs at the county hospital, and it has occurred to the writer that the general public may be interested in a description of these by an experienced and fair-minded patient recently cured and released from that institution. A county hospital is an institution in which four classes of persons are chiefly interested. These are the superintendent and his staff of assistants, the board of supervisors, the geneal public and the patients, and each of these classes has its rights, duties privileges and limitations, and each is entitled to careful, just and conscientious consideration.

No writer for the public who is without adequate ability and opportunity to observe and judge of facts and their relations to acquire correct information, and who is not disposed to be liberal, fair-minded and honest, has any business dealing with this subject, and yet we find that it is either from those who know the least about affairs at the County Infirmary, or from those whose minds are most violently and viciously prejudiced by fancied offense or mischievous malice, that the general public commonly draws what is termed information regarding this institution.

Thus prefaced, it is now in order to discuss the first class of persons mentioned as interested in the hospital, namely the superintendent and staff.

Primarily it should be stated as a fact that stands out prominently to one acquainted with the situation that the position of superintendent at the infirmary is no mere sinecure, no simple "soft snap." There are few, if any, positions in the county, the duties of which are so onerous, complicated and difficult of satisfactory performance.

The most advanced scientific knowledge, the very best remedies and appliances, the highest order of business and administrative ability, the nicest possible discernment as to surrounding conditions, and the keenest, most comprehensive and sympathetic knowledge of human nature and its many phases and vagaries and weaknesses, must all appear in and about a superintendent, in order that the very best results may be expected of him.

Few men are thus endowed, nor are county hospitals generally noted for those conveniences necessary to the highest success and hence it is not at all wonderful that criticism is often easily possible, especially when the would-be critic is in search of the darkest side.

When Dr. Clark, the present superintendent, assumed control, he found himself confronted with some very difficult problems. In the first place the hospital and the poor house were being run as one institution, the indigent poor and the sick and maimed patients largely eating, sleeping and living together. This plan, notwithstanding the fact that it prevails largely through California and the coast, can never be a success. Not to go into the question at length, let it suffice here to state that anyone can see that merely in the matter of diet the plan is incompatible with success. A person extremely ill, or in a seriously debilitated condition, cannot thrive upon the same food, taken at the same hours as can men merely incapacitated by old age or some form of decrepitude and yet this system compels that both these classes fare very much alike.

DR. CLARK REFORMS.

Dr. Clark saw the difficulties of the situation, as every sensible observer must, and set himself earnestly and resolutely to remedy them as best he could by making such changes and improvements in the hospital conditions and methods as would tend to increase its efficiency, and bring it well up, both in appearance and working ability with other well-kept institutions of like character; and that his efforts in this direction have succeeded most admirably no one really acquainted with the facts will for a moment deny, while at the same time it cannot be truthfully said that the legitimate rights of the indigent poor have in any way suffered from the essential, marked and greatly beneficial changes that he has made in the hospital proper.

Another and very serious difficulty that Dr. Clark had to meet at the outset of his career as superintendent grew out of the habit of liquor drinking on the part of the inmates that had become a recognized institution of the place. Dr. Shirk had been in charge for about five years. He is a man of a kind, gentle, considerate turn of mind and heart, the bent of whose character seems to be to accommodate and please and to be influenced by the idea that the easiest way of doing things is the best way, which is not always the case. He was like a generous and considerate father to these people, and at times, especially toward the end of his service, when his energies were enfeebled by painful disease, they often imposed on his good nature and took advantage of the situation. Now, quite a large proportion of the inmates are men who have been active devotees of old John Barleycorn, and with many the thirst learned of him is still an abiding feature of life. Under the former management when some little job was to be done about the place, instead of a request or a command for these men to take it in hand, a bribe of a few drinks of whisky was used, and it was found that in such a case they would work willingly, cheerfully, and even scramble for the job with the liquid attachment.

Almost the first step of Dr. Clark, founded upon what he believed to be a spirit of public economy and the best interests of the inmates, in the matter of health and good conduct, was to stop the issue, and, as far as possible, the use of liquor, except for medicinal purposes. He has also recently for the same reasons enforced, to some extent, especially as to patients under treatment a similar rule against tobacco. That is, the weed is not liberally furnished, though no one is forbidden to use it. These restrictions have made him some enemies and called down upon his head much harsh criticism, though to every candid mind it must be clearly evident that both these measures are highly sanitary, and generally conducive to good order and favorable results.

ABLE ASSISTANCE.

The early perplexities of the superintendent were greatly increased by the rather incompetent and slipshod character of the staff of assistants, nurses, cooks, etc., whom he found in charge. No man can do good work with poor help, and this Dr. Clark soon realized and remedied, though not without considerable friction and trouble, and the result is that he has now a corps of assistants who are, generally speaking, a credit to him, in themselves and to the institution. The nurses, especially those in charge of the medical and surgical departments are trained and competent persons, with good characters, and excellent papers as in standing and capability. In the kitchen, the backbone of the place, for the stomach is always in evidence around such a concern, the help is likewise of the best. It is in charge of two very competent colored men, the head cook being a man who would not fail to give satisfaction if placed in charge of any of the best hotels or restaurants of the city.

Now it is not the purpose of what has been said to create the view that the superintendent never makes mistakes. It is my opinion that he himself would be the first to repudiate such an idea. No man living could have taken hold of that institution as he did and bring it within proper lines of management without friction and difficulty and an occasional erroneous step. Still I am confident that it is his policy and that this policy is well defined in his mind to transform this charge into the creditable and useful institution that it should be; to secure for it the benefit of the best modern methods, appliances and skill and a beneficient degree of discipline and order; in short, to make of it in all points what the people of Alameda county have a right to expect that it should be—the very best and most efficient hospital and infirmary in the State. He is a bright young man, with his career all before him, and he would be an idiot to do otherwise. Let it not be forgotten that Dr. Clark is very far from being an idiot. The obstacles and difficulties that have been mentioned are but a few out of the many with which he has to contend, but in the midst of them all he holds steadfastly to his purpose of improvement, reform and advancement, and that he is making progress and deserves success is apparent to any observant and fair-minded individual.

THE SUPERVISORS.

The Supervisors are a body of men to whom are committed vast and many responsibilities, and among these, few, if any, are more important than those connected with the county infirmary, and this the gentlemen of the board seem to fully understand and appreciate, and especially those of them comprising the hospital committee. Messrs. Johnson and Church of this committee have been especially active in promoting the interests of the place, visiting it frequently and looking carefully and conscientiously into its condition and needs.

They are men, and among the few at that, who seem to be able to understand that to have become an inmate of such an institution is a misfortune and not a crime, and to be inclined to act accordingly. As has been observed above the stomach is a prime factor in this matter and this fact seems to be recognized in full, for it can be truthfully said that the provisions and supplies sent out by the Supervisors for the use of the patients, are almost universally good in quality and about equal in quantity, nor does it appear that any attempt is being made to make money "on the side" out of the contracts, as is charged in some quarters, or in any way to defraud the inmates of their legitimate rights and privileges.

In the matter of enterprise looking to the future success of the institution, the present Board is said to be showing a very commendable spirit. It has in contemplation the erection of new hospital and infirmary buildings upon the present site upon a comprehensive, practical and very efficient scale, the cost of the various structures needed to be some $80,000. This is an important step in the right direction, and is not being taken a moment too soon. The present barn like shacks and structures all built of wood, have pretty well outlived their usefulness and can be dispensed with to good advantage by all the parties in interest. The real need of a new hostipal structure can hardly be urged too strongly. The present accommodations are not at all adequate to the demands upon them. In the woman's building there is no ward where women can be separately and properly cared for in cases of confinement, a condition which often gives rise to shocking and almost cruel complication. There are only three or four bath tubs available for bathing the 200 or 300 people in the place; the old rotten walls and floors of the various structures fairly reek with filth, and the germs of all the diseases known to humanity, and it is almost impossible to keep them clean and free from vermin; the sewerage of the place is something frightful, and were it not for the extreme healthfulness of the natural location a patient would be about as likely to catch a new disease in the hospital as to get rid of the one he might take with him. This matter of drainage is, however, being reinforced by the construction of a competent sewer to the bay, and this is one of the best things that has ever happened to the institution. Numerous other good and sufficient reasons for the construction of a new hospital, might be given, but space forbids for the present at least.

THE PEOPLE.

Turning now to the third party in interest in the subject under discussion, the people of the county, it is proper to state that it is high time that they should form some sort of a correct idea as to what this institution really is, and its proper relations to them and them to it. This is a place to which they send their poor and sick and blind and wounded, the dregs and wrecks of battered, suffering humanity, perhaps the most pitiable objects on earth, to be cared for and healed and for this the public pays liberally and there it seems to think its duty ends.

Such is by no means the case. The people are the source of power, the court of last resort, in this as in other matters in this country. They should keep a careful eye upon affairs here, insist that their servants do their whole duty, and when, as at the present time, they have a man in charge who is endeavoring to introduce the best modern methods and systems, staking his whole future career upon the success of his ventures in this direction, they should not allow him to be interfered with without reason or condemned unjustly or unheard and undefended.

Another thing: As a rule the people outside very unfortunately and unjustly impress persons going to this place for treatment or residence. It is not a summer hotel, nor a place of holiday outing, yet a large class of persons go there with that idea, and with a plan in their minds for lolling all day in the sun, and generally eating, drinking, sleeping and making merry. This is a very grave mistake and often makes serious trouble. This is a place of healing, of renovation, of rebuilding and of rest and refuge, and proposed inmates should be clearly impressed with the fact that they must conform cheerfully to such rules and treatment as is best calculated to bring about these beneficent ends. In many ways, besides spending money on it, the general public can do much for this institution, and it is greatly to be hoped that the future may develop a more general interest in its success and prosperity.

THE PATIENTS AND INMATES.

The last class of persons that I shall discuss as interested are the inmates, and of these taken generally and particularly it would be easy to write a book. Of them it may be truly said that they are a unique and peculiar people. Not because they are as a rule essentially in any special sense, bad or malicious. One class of them, the patients, is weak, sick, sore and suffering and of course irritable; the other, indigent poor, is aged, decrepid, wrecked, stranded, with blighted lives, and few if any hopes or ambitions.

These people have little, almost nothing to do as a rule they are not great readers or thinkers, amusements are few, and they mostly soon degenerate with gossiping, faultfinders and grumblers, most unpleasant to deal with. The man who could manage 200 or 300 such people without some friction or trouble would be entitled to be considered a genius of the highest order, but it is doubtful if such a man lives. Even the humane and kindly Dr. Shirk, who was a father to them, did not escape censure at their hands and had to stand the test of an investigation ordered through their instigation. During a stay of months in the place, and I have been closely observing, I never saw an inmate subjected to burdensome or injurious labor, or to a real hardship of any kind, unless the cutting off of whisky and tobacco is to be considered in that light.

The real fact of the matter is that the disposition to complain here is largely in line with the spirit of this ancient couplet:

"No rogue yet felt the halter draw,
With good opinion of the law."

Not that I mean to state that any of the inmates here are rogues, far from it but that the principal in this matter is the same as that of the rogue referred to. That is say, to men who have lived the free untrammeled life that has made up the past of most of these people, discipline and order is distasteful and irksome, and they often show this to their own disadvantage; yet they must know that discipline must be maintained. That institution would at once become a Bedlam without it.

There are many other points of interest about the place that I should like to discuss, but space forbids, and I will conclude with the statement that the inmates may thank their lucky stars and count themselves exceedingly fortunate that there is such an institution as this to which they can free in the hour of misfortune and adverse fate. Thankless we may be if it is our nature to be so, but we should never complain much, of the bridge that carries us safely over the deep and dangerous gulf of adversity and helplessness. I will state in closing that, perhaps to the disappointment of some, I have refrained from discussing the idle tales, insinuations, and alleged scandals that are always in the air about a place like this. I do so for the reason that such discussion could serve no good purpose, and further, because in several cases investigation has taught me that these things are for the most part the outgrowth of unhealthy and malicious minds and of diseased and trouble-seeking imaginations; and I have found further that the people who interest themselves most deeply in such matters accomplish little except in the direction of getting themselves into trouble, and of this they frequently make a very good job.

OF INTEREST TO SUFFERERS

Case of Mr. Henry Schrag, Proprietor Club Stables, Fourteenth and Webster Streets.

OAKLAND, Sept. 14th, 1895.
Six years ago I was taken suddenly ill with a lame back and consulted Dr. Mayer, Dr. Simond, Dr. Williams, Dr. Leo Newmark and Dr. J. W. Robertson, all of San Francisco, but their treatment did not benefit me any.
I then went to the Byron Hot Springs, remained there six weeks and still no relief.
After thus having doctored for six long years I tried, as a last resort, an electric chain invented by Dr. J. M. Wulff, and now, after having used the same since August 8th, I feel that I finally found a remedy that has so far done me that much good that I can walk straight again and attend to my business, which I have not been able to do for the last two years, and I have not the slightest doubt that by conscientiously following the doctor's instructions I will ultimately get entirely cured. The relief I have had so far is far beyond what I ever expected.
I know and feel that the doctor has done wonders for me.
Very truly,
HENRY SCHRAG.
Upon the wish of Mr. Henry Schrag we, the undersigned, testify that the above statement is in every respect the true facts.

THE ROUTING OF ROME.

Professor Lansing Delivers a Powerful Lecture on the A. P. A.

A Logical Challenge of Statements Made by Cardinal Gibbons.

Professor J. A. Lansing delivered another address under the auspices of the A. P. A. in the Tabernacle yesterday. W. W. Knickerbocker called the meeting to order and C. G. Dodge acted as chairman, vice H. P. Dalton, who was unable to be present. The attendance was both large and demonstrative.

The exercises opened with the singing of "America" by the audience. Miss Manning sang "The Star Spangled Banner."

Professor Lansing was then introduced. He said he desired to speak of living issues and living men and that was why, he said, he chose as his subject "Cardinal Gibbons at the Congress of Religions."

"I have noticed," said the professor, "that whenever Cardinal Gibbons wants to get his ideas before the American people he sends for a reporter of the Associated Press and his statements are telegraphed broadcast over the country without delay. We will get there ourselves some day. We will soon begin to find out that this is an American country for American people. In one of these published reports he states that the Catholic church is absolutely superior over all other churches, at all times and at all places. And Archbishop Ireland, in Baltimore, has stated that the object of Rome is to make America Catholic.

"That is just what they are working for, and that is just why the A. P. A. is here.

"Cardinal Gibbons has said another thing, which I do not agree with: 'The Catholic church has purified society at the very fountain head, which is the marriage bond.' I will base the bulk of my remarks on this assertion. I will speak of this not as a Protestant, but placing myself in the position of a Catholic and shall talk as one Catholic to another.

"It is always time and always will be that all Rome has can be bought and is for sale for cash. Is that the way to make things pure? When your marriage is made a matter of bargain and sale what do you think of it?

"Must I tell you what the trouble is with Rome? It is dollars and cents. For a price masses will be said which are guaranteed to carry the worst man on earth safely through purgatory and land him in the promised land. When you bring morality down to this basis, what is it worth?

"Mexico is in the hands of Roman Catholic Spain. How is the fountain head of morality there? If a couple desire to marry there under the Roman Catholic rule, they are required to pay $25 to the church. The laborers in that country earn 20 cents a day. At that rate it takes a long time to save enough to get married on. What is the result? Why, these poor creatures who love each other live together as man and wife and rear families. In the eyes of the Roman Catholic church their offspring are illegitimate, $25 was not paid to some priest who claimed the power to make them otherwise.

"The Roman Catholic man and woman needs help, not blows. I am their friend, and will do what I can to emancipate them from the bonds of slavery in which the priests keep them.

"The largest percentage of immorality and illegitimate children are to be found in Catholic countries. It is not because they are less moral than we, but because they can not raise the fee the church requires from them, and, loving each other, they live together. The church pronounces their offspring bastards, but before God those children are legitimate every time! (Great applause).

"President Arthur sent a Mr. Curtis to Chili to investigate the morality of that country. He found the conditions the same as they now exist in Mexico. When that report was made public the Chilian government acted upon it and passed laws regulating the matter. Now a couple can get married in Chili for 25 cents, but the ceremony must be performed by the civil authorities, and a marriage by a priest is not recognized now by the laws of that country. Aside from this the government of Chili sat apart an island off their coast as the home of 2500 illegitimate children of immoral priests.

"This is bottom talk, you know—this is fundamental—this is a Roman Catholic answering the statements of Roman Catholic Cardinal Gibbons, and I think I have said enough to you on this subject to convince you that he makes a mistake in dealing out this kind of stuff.

"The Roman Catholic church invaded sacred ground on this marriage proposition. How long are we, oh, Americans, going to allow such utterances in the United States? I answer for you: Not one hour after we get thoroughly aroused.

"I am a born native American. I love my country better than I love my life. I have proved it because I was one of the boys who swung into line when Abe Lincoln called. Is it possible for us to have a future and go down in history as other great nations do, has been a great problem with me. The nations that legislate for their people as against suppression have caught step with the Son of Man as He marches on to conquer all before him. Those who do not, are to pass away to oblivion and infamy."

Mrs. Martin then sang "The Sword of Bunker Hill," "Columbia" and "The Red White and Blue," and the meeting closed.

Professor Lansing talks in Alameda tonight.

Having examined the Hecht ten letter system of shorthand, I desire to recommend it for its simplicity and its easiness of acquisition. The arrangement of this system displays the use of much time and thought and is certainly a great improvement on any other system which I know of. M. H. ROWEN, Expert stenographer for California Title, Insurance & Trust Co., Mills building, S. F. Investigate at out Institute in the Girard Hotel. Classes forming for day and evening.

One of the finest accommodations which people on this side of the bay experience is the communication which they enjoy with the rest of the world by means of the transportation companies, the leading one of which is the People's Express and Transfer Co., the office of which is at 412-418 Ninth street, between Broadway and Franklin street. This company gives not only perfect services between this city, Berkeley, Alameda and San Francisco, but saves people who go traveling the necessity of personally attending to the checking of their baggage. It checks the baggage at one's house and delivers it there after arrival without extra expense.

NOTED DIVINES TO PREACH.

The First of the "Tribune" Special Sermon Series.

IN SEARCH OF ZEBEDEE.

The Dean of the Cambridge Theological School Speaks.

SAYINGS OF LOCAL PASTORS.

A Resume of the Sermons in the Oakland Churches.

The Tribune today presents the first of its series of Sunday sermons one of which will from now on appear every Monday. They will be furnished by the leading divines in the country and the purpose is to reach both members of churches and the stay-at-homes. The managers of the country have co-operated in this matter with the object of getting a wider hearing for the essential truths of the Christian religion. They will discuss the vital application of Christianity, the ethical bearing of present problems, the solution of hard questions which present themselves in common life, and the relation of the teachings of Jesus Christ to the needs of men in this present century.

The sermon given here with is "In Search of Zebedee," and is by the Rev. George Hodges, D. D., Dean Hambridge Theological school, Cambridge, Mass.

"Then came to him the mother of Zebedee's children, with her sons.—Matt. xx., 20.

When? Last Sunday, at the time of the morning service. The mother was there, and the children were with her, but Zebedee was absent.

What was the matter with Zebedee?

Zebedee was very tired after a week of hard work and worry, and he took Sunday for a rest day. I cannot greatly blame him. In this over-busy time, when commerce and society have placed themselves under the patronage of St. Vitus wher the devil pursues us with the keen prod of competition when the hours of work are long and many, when the chances of financial failure range themselves in grim lines between which the merchant must run a gauntlet every week, when we are all hurried and worried, the parson may properly be grateful that so many men appear at church. It is a matter for encouragement.

Zebedee was absent not because he is a worse sinner than his wife and children but because he is the slave of the two despots who possess this modern world—electricity and steam. The conditions of our present living are against church attendance.

It must be confessed, however, on the part of Zebedee that he is quite cheerfully reconciled to this slavery. He enjoys it. His chains are made of the metal which is used in mints, and he likes to hear them clink. Zebedee would be a saint, indeed, if he were not affected by the bustling, superficial and material life in the midst of which he lives. We may rightly complain against him that he lives so much in the bad air of the world that he sometimes loses his appreciation of good air and stays away from church because he is out of touch with heaven. Zebedee seems to care more about his investments than he does about his soul and is so busy laying up treasure here below that he is in danger of being altogether bankrupt up above.

Jesus Christ was well acquainted with business men. It is significant that when he chose a place of residence he got as far away as he could from Jerusalem, the city of conventional religion, and settled in Capernaum, which was a brisk town of business. He chose a group of alert young business men to be his intimate friends and disciples. He knew the business man, heart and soul; the gospels show it. And when he declared over and over that the greatest danger to the spiritual life comes from devotion to the interests of this present world, and from the deceitfulness of riches, he knew what he was talking about. He had the business man in mind. He was looking at Zebedee.

Church attendance is one of the lesser Christian duties. The New Testament gives no space to it. But it is a fairly accurate thermometer of religion. When it is at zero the chances are that a man's heart is pretty cold. I sympathize with Zebedee as he stays at home, while his wife and children go to church. No doubt he needs rest. But—honestly, now—Zebedee, don't you need the service more? In the life which you are called to live, with its manifold temptations, is it not the part of good sense to make use of all the opportunities which offer themselves for the upbuilding of the soul? It is hard enough to be a good man under the most favorable circumstances. No real help in that direction should be declined.

It is true, I know, that Zebedee complains that he is not greatly helped. The service is monotonous; and the sermon is dull, too long and generally unprofitable. We parsons must confess on our part that Zebedee is sometimes right about that. There is fault on both sides.

In the meantime, here is the situation: Zebedee's wife and children sit in Zebedee's pew, and Zebedee is at home reading the Sunday newspaper.

The Sunday newspaper! Is it not possible through this channel to enter into communication with the good people who keep ardently out of earshot of the pulpit? We have many things to say to them. This great congregation whose sanctuary is the sitting-room, whose service book is the newspaper, can we not enter into telephonic conversation with them? The Christian pulpit, even under present conditions, reaches a vast number of people, and exerts an immeasurable and increasing influence upon the living and thinking of this nation. But we are not content. We want a larger congregation. And here I behold! The church roof is the sky and the church walls are washed by the waves of the two oceans, and we have a pulpit from which we may address an audience which is measured by the million.

MAN'S LOVE FOR MOTION.

Rev. Dr. Kummer Gives an Able Discourse on "Wheels."

Rev. Dr. Kummer at the First Methodist Episcopal church last evening preached on the subject of "Wheels." Perhaps the showers which fell about the church time kept the bicyclists away, for there were not a great many in attendance. There was no text announced, though the clergyman stated that there are a dozen passages in the scriptures thoroughly applicable to such a subject. The fourth commandment might be taken, or "Whatsoever you do, do it for the glory of God."

In brief he said: "The solution of the question of the bicycle craze lies in man's love for motion. Everything is, if not accompanied by motion, attended by it.

"The human race has from its infancy demanded some means of motion. The primitive people were satisfied with a crude ox cart, but in this age civilized man must be carried across the continent at the rate of twenty miles an hour or he thinks he isn't moving at all. The same laws that gave the wheel birth will perpetuate its use.

"So long as people love pleasure the wheel will stay, for in its use they find pleasure, health and recreation. The bicycle is often abused and is in consequence condemned, yet for every one injured by the use of the wheel ten may be found who are dying of ennui. All Christians can and should use the wheel to the glory of God by making it the messenger of mercy, kindness and charity."

LIBERAL MINDED.

Rev. Marshall Law Preaches on Fun That Does no Harm.

The Rev. V. Marshall Law of the Church of the Advent in East Oakland delivered a good sermon last night.

"The church," he said, "has no man-made rules for its members in regard to amusement. The question is left for each one to settle for himself. Not that we do not recognize the injurious nature of certain kinds of amusement, but we think it better to advise than to dictate.

"Theaters, cards and dancing may stand for all that may be said for or against indoor amusements. Each of them may be indulged in by a minister of the gospel in moderation and upon proper occasion without damage to moral character beyond the shocking of ultra religious people who, no longer young themselves, think no one should have any harmless fun any more."

OPPOSES THE MOVE.

Rev. Edwards Davis on the Ministerial Endeavor Matter.

Rev. Edwards Davis made the question of taking the ministers into the Christian Endeavor Union, which is an absorbing matter in Oakland at present, the subject of a prelude to his sermon at the Central Christian church last evening. He takes sides against the majority of the preachers, that they should be made ex-officio members of the County Executive Committee, maintaining that if the indiscriminate clergy becomes an ex-officio voting factor in the society it will merely resolve into a ministerial association.

"It has been a purpose of the Endeavorers to assist the church," said Mr. Davis. "If the pastor is to devote his concern to that which should be his aid, I feel that the fifth wheel of the ecclesiastical machinery had better be torn from the gospel car. The salient feature of the success of the society is the promised unification of the church. If the ministers of denominational prejudices shall poison the impartiality of a new generation, the flaunted banner, 'For Christ and the Church,' may be hauled down, and on the wrecking vessel of disrupted union hoist half-mast the ensigns, Y. P. A. and Y. M. L., the Epworth and the Westminster Leagues, the Baptist Union and the King's Daughters societies.

"The ministers of this city, more loyal to the spirit of Christ than to their respective churches, cannot afford by their interference to lessen the executive responsibility of the young people of the Society of Christian Endeavor."

Dr. Hulme's Debut.

Rev. James Hulme, the newly-elected rector of St. Andrew's Episcopal church, preached his first sermon in Oakland yesterday. "The Impossible Service" was the subject of his discourse and his hearers were greatly pleased. Mr. Hulme is an extemporaneous speaker of great fluency and power, and handled his subject with a degree of proficiency which convinced the congregation that St. Andrew's has been highly favored by obtaining his services as rector. Mr. Hulme was pastor of the Episcopal church in Cloverdale for six years past.

Mormons Meet.

The Oakland members of the Mormon church, together with their brethren in San Francisco to the number of 29, assembled in Calantho hall, Market street, yesterday, and after Sunday school services partook of bread and water in commemoration of the death of Christ. In the evening elder J. H. Shepherd spoke on "The Apostacy of the Primitive Church."

The Institute Tonight.

"The Realization of Democracy" will be the topic of discussion at the meeting of the Institute of Applied Christianity this evening. Rev. J. E. Scott of the Woodbridge Presbyterian church of San Francisco will speak. This is the beginning of a series of meetings to be devoted to the consideration of practical working principles of reform. Meetings are held at Fifteenth and Clay streets and are free to the public. Ministers are especially invited.

A Pastors' Meeting.

The monthly meeting of the pastors of Oakland and vicinity will be held tomorrow, Tuesday, November 5th, at 4 P. M., in the Y. M. C. A. rooms. All ministers are hereby invited to attend. Dr. Kummer will speak of his "Visit to Rome."

Got the Wrong Man.

Officer Curtiss seriously injured his arm last night by breaking down the door of a Chinese gambling den. Curtiss permitted himself to be used as a battering ram but that he would not have minded had he done something worthy of his mettle. He arrested the Chinaman but when the case was called in the Police Court today the prosecuting witness said that the officer had caught the wrong man. OAKLAND TALENT WINS.

The Reliance Football Team's Splendid Game at Portland.

Baseball, Athletic Notes and Gossip of the Sporting Arena.

The Reliance football team on Saturday literally wiped up the field with the Multnomah team of Portland. The Oaklands eleven won by a score of 40 to 0. They simply outplayed the web-footers at every point in the game. Three thousand people witnessed the contest. There was great enthusiasm, somewhat dampened, however, by the crushing defeat of the home team.

A dispatch from Portland says: The local team not only failed to score, but so greatly was it outclassed by the visitors that it was unable to keep the Reliance from making touchdown after touchdown. The explanation of the one-sided result lies in the disparity in weights between the two teams and the lack of training and experience on the part of the home players. The Reliance boys put up one of the cleanest games of football ever seen in this city, and before the Portland public entirely vindicated themselves of the charge of unclean playing made in San Francisco.

Everyone expected the Multnomahs to lose, but no one thought the visitors would pile up touchdowns the way they did. Reliance had the ball practically all the time, and made a series of rushes through the line or plays around the end until Wyckoff surged forward through Multnomah's line and touched the ball down behind the goal posts. Nothing could stop Wyckoff, and he parted the home team's right and left apparently at will.

Jack Sherrard, at the right end, made most of the gains for the visitors, and when he took the ball around the right end, with the splendid interference of Burnett or Oliver, he made thirty to forty yards every time. He was hard to tackle, and when the Multnomah tackles tried to stop him he shook them off and gained a few yards more.

Captain McMillan played a strong game, though handicapped by bruises received in the recent game with Berkeley, but that did not prevent him from carrying the ball and ten or eleven Multnomah men over the line for the prettiest touchdown of the day. Frick was very active, and Oliver, Burnett and Hall played a great game.

From here the Reliance team will go to the Sound, and thence to Butte, where it is likely to meet the only formidable competitor on its trip. Local ballplayers have made a special effort to entertain the visitors, and they appear to be having a very good time.

BERKELEY'S VICTORY.

The State University freshmen football team had a walkover on Saturday in their game at Central Park with the Stanford "freshies." The contest was so one-sided that when the second half was over the score stood 11 to 0 in favor of the Berkeley boys.

ACME CLUB NIGHT.

The Acme Club will hold a "gentlemen's night" two weeks from tomorrow evening. The principal attractions will be two four-round contests between Frank Thurman and J. Dodd of the Olympic club, and Butler of the Olympic and Eugene Kelley of the San Francisco Athletic Club.

A RELIANCE NIGHT.

The Reliance Club will give a "gentlemen's night" November 28th. J. C. Williamson and A. Brill will wrestle, best two out of three falls, catch-as-catch-can. There will be a four-round bout between McMahon, O. C., and Ford of the Phoenix Club.

BASEBALL.

San Francisco won a game in the mud yesterday from San Jose across the bay. The score was 12 to 4. Daniels was hit hard, but the game on the whole was one of the best ever played, notwithstanding a very sloppy field. Experts who witnessed the contest say the fielding was excellent. The play went with snap, vim and vigor and was marked by a lively interest on the part of each player.

At Los Angeles the home team won from Oakland by a score of 14 to 1.

County Expert Davis is saving the county not only a great deal of money, but also his splendid ability as an expert, keeps everything running along without a hitch. He is a most valuable man for the county, and has a wonderful gift in examining accounts and figures. The supervisors did not make any mistake when they appointed him to this position.—Haywards Journal.

County Recorder Charles Spear is already one of our most popular county officers. He thoroughly understands the duties of his office, and every courtesy and attention is paid to all having business with his office. Mr. Spear takes special pride in keeping the office up to the high standard of his predecessor, R. W. Church, and he is being complimented by every one having business at the recorder's office, on the able manner he is discharging the duties of the office.—Haywards Journal.

The Wheelmen's Protective Company of New York, which claims to be an institution that insures bicyclists against loss by theft, recent developments show plainly is a fake concern. Agents of this concern have been doing business among the bicycle men in this city and Oakland and have reaped a harvest. Those who have had the misfortune to have had their bicycles stolen have failed, after efforts lasting many weeks, to collect their insurance, and have awakened to the fact that they have been sold.—San Francisco Argus.

Oakland is in it. Three grass widows is the excitement. They are forming a grass widow's brigade, to don the bloomers and wheel to Chicago within the next three weeks. They are Mrs. Lulu Laro, Mrs. Cora Benson, Mrs. Alice Johnson. They have already left their husbands legally behind and enjoy single blessedness once more, while their whilom happy spouses are putting up their hard round cartwheels in the form of alimony. They will wear bloomers cut in the latest mode and travel by way of the Southern route, keeping near the railroad stations so that they may seek shelter in a hotel in case it should rain. Mrs. Laro, before she got a divorce, got jealous of her husband, a poor tonsorial artist, and horse-whipped him.—San Francisco Argus.

Dr. A. M. Gardner of the Napa asylum has sold his property in this city (Calistoga) to a Mr. Francis of Oakland. The property consists of the large brick building opposite the Magnolia hotel and his handsome residence on Cedar street.—Calistogan.

ROBERTS ON STRIKES.

The A. R. U. Men Discouraged at the Present Outlook.

The possibility of a strike on the Great Northern road is being watched with interest by local A. R. U. men, although they do not think the strike will be ordered.

"It makes no difference who strikes," said T. R. Roberts, of the Oakland A. R. U. this morning, "for so long as the engineers and conductors will not stand in with us there will be nothing accomplished. The last strike proved that if the engineers and conductors will work the trainmen cannot carry the day. If they will join hands they can get everything they want. It is the same all over the country. The men in the Great Northern may go on strike, but they will accomplish nothing and they will not succeed in enlisting the sympathy of other roads. They have got to learn that there is no strength in a dozen pin-head organizations all pulling in opposite directions. Until there is one united organization of railroad men they will have to be contented with just such salary and restriction as the managers condescend to give them."

FABIOLA'S FETE.

Early Arrangements Being Made for the May Day Festivity.

The Board of Managers of the Fabiola Hospital held their regular monthly meeting last week, the following members being present: Mrs. John Yule, Mrs. R. W. Gorrill, Mrs. T. G. Harrison, Mrs. Charles Deering, Miss Crockett, Mrs. R. W. McChesney, Mrs. E. B. Jerome, Mrs. Wallace Everson, Mrs. G. M. Stolp, Mrs. F. I. Kendall, Miss May Burnham, Mrs. Pedar Sather, Mrs. J. J. Scotchler, Miss Janet Haight, Mrs. Ives, Mrs. W. W. Standeford, Mrs. A. A. Barton.

The report of the resident physician for October read as follows.

Patients in hospital October 1st, 33; admitted, 44; treated, 77; discharged, 44; in hospital November 1st, 33, cured, 30; improved, 1; unimproved, 2, died, 2; births, 2 males, 2 females, operations, Dr. Fenton 6, Dr. Chamberlain 3, Dr. Cunningham 2, Dr. Barkey 3, and the following 1 each: Drs. Russell, Rucker, Fisher, Maher and Buss.

The ladies passed a hearty vote of thanks to those who had made donations to the hospital during October. Mrs. Barrett, Mrs. Zeno Mauvais, and Mrs. James Driscoll were voted into the Hospital Association membership and the name of Mrs. Noyes was proposed.

Much interest is manifested among the society ladies of Oakland in regard to the Fabiola May Fete, and preparations are already being made for that event. They have gone about it thus early to prevent nearby cities from choosing their dates, the 1st and 21 of May, for similar festivals. A large portion of the ground surrounding the institution has been laid off by the members of the association to be used for the propogation of corn flowers, with which a Fabiola booth vehicle will be elaborately decorated on the fete day. It has been decided that Friday, May 1st, shall be devoted to the floral parade and exhibit and Saturday will be exclusively for the horse show and sports.

A general meeting will be called upon the return of Mrs. Remi Chabot within a couple of weeks to arrange the details of the festival.

POLICE PICK-UPS.

Felony Cases and Misdemeanors Come Before Judge Wood.

Theodore Lycurgus, a colored man who has made Judge Wood's acquaintance quite often, was in the Police Court this morning, charged with being drunk. Lycurgus made an eloquent plea, but when he reached the point where he said he had not been in court for six years, Judge Wood cut him short with "three days."

James Macdonald, who says that the hoodlum element of Franklin street tormented him into using vulgar language on the public street, pleaded not guilty and will be tried tomorrow.

Frank Wyman, Lert McCord and Max Kohn were charged with stealing Sunday newspapers. They all pleaded not guilty and will be tried tomorrow.

Thomas Hickey, who is in the county jail for a felony and who succeeded in escaping, was brought to the city prison today to be booked for breaking jail. He now regrets that he acted so hastily as the witnesses in the felony case cannot be found and he will probably be released on that charged. Now he has to answer for a second crime.

LITERARY NOTES.

There is one publication in this country that comes as a boon to the hearths and homes and hearts of many women whose worldly opportunities are decidedly limited, and that is Jenness Miller Monthly. Within the scope of its crisp, clear pages there is meat and drink for all classes of women, but more essentially for those who are not endowed with abundant time or opportunity for keeping abreast of the current of progress in domestic, hygienic and social affairs. Jenness Miller Monthly is an educator as well as an entertainer, a companion and friend. Every paragraph glows with something of pertinent interest to women. The November number has an article on "The Reduction of Obesity," so clearly and intelligently written that it will prove of inestimable value everywhere. There is an admirable kindergarten department and a household science paper which has not its counterpart anywhere because of the intelligent and suggestive details by which it is characterized.

The leaves from the Vailima Letters which are published in McClure's for November are capitally illustrated with several photographs taken in the South Seas and now first published. One shows Mr. Stevenson on horseback, another reclining on his couch playing the flute, and there are groups in which Mr. Stevenson appears. The letters are introduced by an article by his closest friend, Mr. Sidney Colvin. No finer piece of autobiography than these letters has ever been written. There is a great deal in them about Stevenson's literary work and plans.

Macmillan & Co. announce for immediate publication "The Universities of Europe in the Middle Ages," by Hastings Rashdall, M. A., Fellow and Lecturer of Hertford College, Oxford. The plan of the book consists in the full description of the great archetypal universities—Bologna, Paris and Oxford, and the rather shorter account of the foundation, constitution and history of the others, arranged in national groups. The writing of this important book is a task in which Professor Rashdall became involved through winning the Chancellor's Prize at Oxford for an essay in 1883. He intended originally merely to revise and enlarge this essay, but while the essay required only a year to write, the revision has occupied more than eleven.

"The Holiday Dance at Worrosquoyacke" is the title of Mrs. Burton Harrison's latest and best short story—a two-part novelette—which opens most delightfully in the November Ladies' Home Journal. It deals with New York fashionables—first at the Horse Show and subsequently in Virginia, the personages and environments appealing to the author's happiest efforts. The story is concluded in the December Journal and is artistically illustrated by W. L. Taylor. Dr. Parkhurst's paper on "The Father's Domestic Headship" lucidly, and with fine discrimination, defines a father's duties and responsibilities in the home. An interesting description of "Girl Life in Modern Jerusalem" is given by United States Consul E. S. Wallace and illustrated by Eric Pape. Thomas Wentworth Higginson selects for "A Young Girl's Library" one hundred books by American authors, best adapted to the instruction of girls of fifteen. Ornamental and decorative uses of crepe paper are detailed by Emma H. Heath and pictured.

DON'T USE A WHIP.

Some Good Pointers on What to Do With Balky Horses.

Good authorities on the horse agree that a balky horse should never be whipped or abused in any manner. One writer says: "If he won't go let him stand and think it over. He will very often think better of it and go on of his own accord; or, if he does not answer, get out of the wagon and pat him and talk to him kindly. Sometimes it is well to loosen a strap or start a buckle. I have known of the mere act of unchecking and rechecking the animal to answer the purpose and stop a determination to resist. For this same reason an apple, or a bunch of grass from the roadside, or a handful of oats, or a few kernels of corn, will often accomplish what an hour's beating could never effect."

Horses are sometimes supposed to be balky when the real trouble is an ill-fitting collar.

'Do not get provoked with the horse. The man who first spoiled him by bad management is the one to be blamed.

A Place for Knox.

When Sutro's new electric road to the Golden Gate Park and beach starts up the first motorman will be Harry Knox, the A. R. U. man who took a leading part in the strike of last year. Knox has been unable to secure steady employment since he went on strike, and he has attributed this to the influence of the railroad company. Sutro has now come to his relief and I will give him a permato his relief and I will give him a permanent job. He is a brother to the Sacramento Knox who figured in the examination into the train disaster that cost Engineer Clarke his life.

The Week's Failures.

The Bradstreet Mercantile Agency reports twenty-two failures for the Pacific Coast States and Territories for last week, as compared with thirty for the previous week and twenty-two for the corresponding week of 1894. The failures are divided among the trades as follows: 2 bakeries, 2 saloons, 1 contractor, 1 shoes, 3 general stores, 1 implements, 1 dry goods, 1 liquors, 1 lumber, 1 milling company, 3 grocers, 1 livery, 1 fancy goods, 1 tailor, 1 men's furnishing goods.

VOL. XXXX. OAKLAND, CALIFORNIA, MONDAY EVENING, NOVEMBER 4, 1895. NO. 109.

A SUDDEN SUMMONS.

Eugene Field, the Well-Known Litterateur Is Dead.

HIS HEART WAS DISEASED.

The End Came Unexpectedly During the Early Hours.

A GREAT MIND GONE.

He Made Himself Famous by His Dainty Poetic Work.

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—Eugene Field, the poet, died of heart failure about five this morning.

He retired last night in his usual health and apparently slept soundly until daybreak, when his son, who occupied a room with him, heard him groan.

It was his expiring gasp.

Field leaves a widow and five children.

Field had been indisposed for several days, but no serious results were even thought of by his family and immediate friends.

George H. Yenowine of this city was at Field's bedside when he died.

Field and Yenowine intended to start together for Kansas City, where Field was to read tonight.

HIS HISTORY.

Eugene Field was born at St. Louis September 2nd, 1850, the son of Roswell Martin and France (Reed) Field. His parents were both natives of Windham county, Vermont.

His father was Dred Scott's first attorney in the case which resulted in the famous Dred Scott decision by the U. S. Supreme Court.

Eugene Field's mother died in 1857. He was then put under the care of his cousin, Miss Mary Field Frenche at Amherst, Mass.

He attended Williams College, Knox College and the State University of Missouri.

He adopted the profession of a newspaper writer, beginning with the St. Louis Journal in 1872.

He was later connected with the St. Joseph, Mo., Gazette, the St. Louis Times-Journal, the Kansas City Times and the Denver Tribune.

He came to Chicago August 13th, 1883, to accept a position on the editorial staff of the Chicago Morning News (now Record) and his connection with this paper continued without interruption until his death.

Fields last contribution to his department in this paper, "Sharps and Flats," was published Saturday morning, and in it was a characteristic defense of Bill Nye and a refusal to accept the imputations as to the cause of the recent assault on the humorist at Patterson, N. J.

In addition to his newspaper work, Field established a reputation as a powerful and clever writer of stories and verse.

His latest poem of pretension was "Dreamships," printed in the October Ladies' Home Journal.

He was especially an adept in poems and stories of child life, and his printed books now number half a dozen volumes.

THE CASE IS CLOSING.

Holmes' Fate Will Soon Be Settled by the Jury.

The Prisoner Listens Nervously to the Prosecution's Charge.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 2.—When the court opened today at 10 o'clock for arguments in the Holmes case, Mr. Rotan, junior counsel for the defense, announced that his colleague, Shoemaker, was suffering from complete nervous prostration and was under the care of a physician.

He called this to the attention of the court in view of the point of law regarding the commonwealth's right to make a closing address to the jury when the defense presented no evidence.

Graham ended the question by offering to waive his right to a last speech, and there will be but one address on each side, instead of two by the prosecution.

District Attorney Graham began his address at 10:55 o'clock. He said: "The commonwealth of Pennsylvania is prosecutor in this case, and it asks no victim. If you are satisfied when we have done that this prisoner did not commit the crime you must acquit him.

"The commonwealth is bound to prove its case from the initial step down to the last syllable of evidence.

"The commonwealth has done so. One by one we have established each link, making the chain complete and perfect."

The District Attorney reviewed the evidence in detail.

The condition of the body, he contended, the medical testimony proved could not have been produced, except by chloroform.

Graham's address, which was confined for the most part to a review of the details of the evidence, lasted for two hours and a half.

Holmes nervously shifted in his seat as the thunderous tone of the prosecuting officer rang out.

At the conclusion of the address a recess was taken until 2:30 P. M.

The case was given to the jury at 5:30.

REPRESENT NOBODY.

Hill's Caustic Remarks About the New A. R. U. Strike.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

ST. PAUL, Nov. 2.—When asked today regarding the statement of the special A. R. U. committee that is investigating the grievances of the Great Northern employes, President Hill said:

"You may say they are men not in the employ of the company. They represent nobody. They have been discharged for offenses against the Government, for refusing to obey the orders of their superiors or for stealing. We don't want to have anything to do with them."

It is said the officers of the Great Northern have no fears of a strike or serious trouble.

IN A BAD CONDITION.

The Mayor's Report on the Grant School Sustained on Investigation.

Faulty Work Was Done and the Material Seems to Have Been Very Poor.

The Mayor at the meeting of the Merchants' Exchange held last Tuesday night said in the course of his speech: "I went out to see the Grant school the other day. It was built in a growing community and built too small. Already there is one class having lessons in a shed. They should have built it larger when they were doing it, for it would have saved the city money. I looked the building over carefully and found a miserable job had been done. The roof has already dropped from three to four inches. The building is cracked and broken and almost ready to fall. In some places the ceiling is supported by an inch board split with an ax."

His remarks excited considerable comment, and a Tribune reporter went during the week to the school to see if such a state of things existed.

The Grant school is one of the new brick structures lately erected by the educational department. It is located at the corner of New Broadway and Prospect avenue and is in a growing community. It was built less than one and a half years ago at a cost of about $30,000, contains five school rooms office, halls, etc., and is used only for the primary grades.

The old building was the first visited. In this Miss Richardson teaches an infant class. Her room is more pleasant than the idea of it given by the Mayor. It is large, sunny and fairly well ventilated.

"Oh, it is no shed," she said to The Tribune man, "and I think I ought to feel indignant at the remarks of Mr. Davie."

The Mayor's description of the new building is too true, though. That the building is settling is noticeable in many places. The plastering is badly cracked and in some spots looks as though it was being forced from the laths by a weight from about it. From the outside and in the basement bricks which have split can be seen.

The building leaks and always has. In some places, one on the first floor in particular, the leakage is so bad that buckets have to be placed to catch the water during a storm.

The roof is poorly supported and has sunk badly, perhaps as much as the Mayor represents. It is made of slate of a poor quality and it has cracked considerably. The "inch boards split with an ax" are there. Most of the supports, as seen in the attic, are of this description.

Miss Powell, the principal, is somewhat of an aesthete in taste, and showed the Tribune man many unsightly places and inconveniences. The boards in the wainscoting are far from choice and knots are dropping out of many of them. The window weights are not the proper weight for the windows, the door knobs, bolts and locks are of a cheap quality and badly put on. In some instances within a week after the building was occupied the department mechanic was called in to make repairs.

The plumbing has had to be fixed several times. Whether the breaks in the pipes were because of poor work in this line at first or whether the sinking of the building strained them is not exactly known.

The window glass is the cheapest and some has split frim top to bottom. The flooring is badly laid and its appearance is far from pleasing.

The Mayor is looking for the parties responsible for the work and to be better prepared for them has had an investigation made by James Hopkirk, superintendent of construction of the Sixth Ward school.

Anderson & Greig were the contractors for the work and William McDonald was the superintendent of construction.

Good for California's Fruit

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—In a report to the State Department Frank A. Dean, consul at Naples, says the orange and lemon crop of Southern Italy this season will be less than that of 1894, or about two-thirds of an average crop. Trees are still suffering from the effect of the extreme weather of last year.

Ran Off the Rails.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

CHICAGO, Nov. 2.—The St. Louis flyer of the Chicago & Alton railroad ran into an open switch at Gardner, Ill., sixty-four miles south of Chicago last night. William House a fireman, jumped and was crushed to death. No passengers were hurt.

A Broken Shank.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

HALIFAX, N. S., Nov. 2.—The steamer Portland is reported off this harbor with the steamer Obdam, from Rotterdam for New York, in tow. It is supposed the latter's shank is broken.

Hit by an Engine.

William Bean was struck by a local engine at Berryman station, Berkeley, last night at 7 o'clock. He was alighting from a car, and the engine in backing down on a switch, hit Bean. He escaped with a badly lacerated scalp, split ear and damaged nose. He was repaired at the Receiving Hospital.

A ROUTINE ROUND-UP

The Supervisors Dispose of a Lot of County Matters.

LIQUOR LICENSES ACTED ON.

Much Road Work Demands the Attention of the Officials.

THE REPORTS FOR OCTOBER.

Applications for Aid Increase as the Winter Comes On.

At the meeting of the Supervisors this morning District Attorney Snook rendered an opinion touching the validity of the signature of W. B. Clark to the application of Joseph Cannon for a liquor license in Temescal. Objection had been made that Clark is not eligible to sign such a petition because he is a resident of San Francisco county. Those who depended upon Clark's signature presented a transcript of the San Francisco great register and accompanied it with a certificate of intention on Clark's part to make Oakland his home. The district attorney held that the transcript and certificate in question did not show that Clark is a resident of Alameda county and that, therefore, he could not legally sign the application referred to.

Applications for permission to sell liquor were made as follows: M. Fassett, Shawsville; John Brannan, Piedmont avenue and Mather avenue; F. B. Granger & Son, Alvarado; J. D. Pitt, Prospect avenue and San Leandro road; E. W. Webb, Forty-first street and San Pablo avenue; S. Hanson & Co., Centreville; Charles G. Tunter, Mather and Piedmont avenues; Raymond Fadie, Niles. They were referred to the Judiciary Committee.

Permission to sell liquor was granted as follows: P. V. Wenig, Sunol; Manuel C. Dias, Centreville; J. Gerken, Junction Park street and Park avenue.

RELIEF APPLICATIONS.

Applications for relief were received and disposed of as follows: Mrs. Joseph Warner, 615 Fourth street, aged 31 years, three children, native of California, referred to Supervisor Church; Ernest Kraft, 1106 San Pablo avenue, aged 72 years, native of Germany, two married children, referred to Supervisor Pelouze; David Walters, 1509 San Pablo, referred to Supervisor Pelouze; Michael Coogan, Nineteenth street and Broadway, aged 34 years, unmarried, blind.

The last named applicant was formerly an inmate of the Industrial Home for the blind at Temescal. Fred A. Campbell said that Coogan simply desired some money to pay his room rent during the winter and that he could hustle and make enough money to supply himself with food and clothing.

Coogan spoke in his own behalf, saying that he had been able to support himself during the past ten months, but now that winter had come on he thought that all he could do would be to supply himself with clothing and food.

Mr. Pelouze said that the county could not give money for room rent. It was suggested, however, that some money might be allowed Coogan on account of food and the applicant might do with the money as he saw fit. The matter was finally referred to Supervisor Johnston.

The application for the relief of Thomas Thompson, 517 San Pablo avenue, 75 years of age, native of Canada, widower, two children at the Orphans' Home, was referred to Supervisor Johnston.

HANEY'S HAY.

Sheriff White Had a Legal Right to Attach the Feed.

Elmer Haney has been non-suited in the action he brought against Sheriff White to recover 140 tons of hay upon which an attachment had been levied in behalf of F. S. Chadbourne of Pleasanton. The hay belonged originally to William Patterson, a farmer who employed Haney on the ranch. Patterson had given Chadbourne a mortgage on the chattels and personal property on the farm to secure a note for $1100. Patterson owed Haney several hundred dollars for labor and assigned the hay to him. That is why he came into court, but Judge Ellsworth, on motion of District Attorney Snook, granted a non-suit.

ROBBING THE ROOSTS.

Farmers Threaten to Use Shot Guns Upon Chicken Thieves.

Sheriff White is receiving numerous complaints of the depredations of chicken thieves along the San Leandro road. Some notorious characters were recently released from the city prison and the county jail. Farmers who depend upon their fowls as one means of securing a livelihood are much disturbed over the work of the depredators. They threaten to use dangerous tactics to prevent the thefts, which are becoming very monotonous. Chickens are stolen by the score, and no clue to the thieves seems to have been located. Sheriff White has issued instructions to his deputies to keep a sharp look-out for all suspicious characters. The farmers say they will do some shotgun patrolling and make a few county hospital cases unless the thieving ceases.

"NOBBY" NOT IN IT.

He Filed an Exception That Would Not Hold Water.

Judge Ellsworth Promptly Brings Him Up With a Short Turn.

"Nobby" Clarke came off second best today in a bit of a legal encounter with Judge Ellsworth. "Nobby" knows a great deal about the effect of compound interest and he knows a great many of the tricks about the law that have kept his creditors busy for several years past.

But "Nobby" was pinched a little this morning and he is surprised at what has happened. He went into court smilingly content. He had found a flaw in the armor of the distributing assignee, Ell T. Sheppard whose hunt for assets keeps "Nobby" awake nights devising schemes to outwit him.

Sheppard located some property in Alameda county in the shape of a judgment for foreclosure against Henry Frank, in favor, however, of Mrs. Clarke. Sheppard filed suit and alleged that the property was properly "Nobby's" and had been transferred in an attempt to defraud creditors. Sheppard included Sheriff White as a party to the suit, merely pro forma.

But there "Nobby" saw his chance. He concluded that because Sheriff White was a defendant in the action that he would be obliged to withdraw in his official capacity when it came to serving the papers and call upon the Coroner. "Nobby" noted an exception in his own mind when the summons to the suit was served by White. Then he went ahead and prepared a motion to have the summons set aside.

"I've got him this time where I want them," gleefully ejaculated "Nobby" when he waddled into court.

"You ought to be happy," suggested Judge Ellsworth, who very promptly denied "Nobby's" motion and gave him five days in which to file an answer to the suit of Assignee Sheppard.

A TRICKY RIVAL.

He Put Up a Mean Job to Hurt His Opponent's Business.

A peculiar method of business rivalry was brought to light by a case that was tried in the Alameda justice court yesterday.

John Alton, a partner of the firm of Alton & Sons, grocers, was charged by Miss Flora Carroll with enticing her into the store during the lunch hour and attempting to take liberties with her. The prosecuting witness and her mother took the stand and the young lady told an apparently straight story of how young Alton had invited her behind the counter and had attempted to behave in a manner unbecoming a gentleman.

Alton produced a host of witnesses and the hour at which the alleged offense is said to have occurred was pretty well accounted for by his attorney, Mr. Fry. It was shown that during the time between 12 M. and 1 P. M. of August 28, young Alton, who was alone in the store at that time, had done about as much work as an ordinary individual could accomplish in three hours. The watermelon man came and made a settlement, the baker did ditto, the oil man, who was ther half an hour, and some customers were on hand to testify that they had seen the girl come in and leave the store on that day and that nothing improper occurred.

Under cross-examination it was brought out that the case was put up by business rivals for the purpose of showing that Alton's store was not a proper place at which to trade. The prosecuting witness admitted that she had said what was not true. The Prosecuting Attorney said he had never seen a case so perfectly manufactured and the judge, in dismissing the case, said something about perjury and it is not at all unlikely that the affair may yet go to the grand jury.

POLICE PICK-UPS.

THE ELEVATOR FIGHT.

Twelve Informations Are Filed by Attorney General Maloney.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

CHICAGO, Nov. 2.—Attorney General Maloney filed in the Circuit Court today twelve informations in chancery against the elevator companies.

The bills pray for injunctions to restrain the companies from buying grain and depositing it in their warehouse to restrain them from buying inferior grain and mixing it with better grain they have in store, and to restrain them from conspiring to control the market.

The Attorney General gave notice that he will also file eight petitions for leave to file information in the nature of quo warranto in the elevator cases.

THE METROPOLE.

A First-Class Hotel Under Able Management.

There has been a change in the management of the Hotel Metropole at the corner of Thirteenth and Jefferson streets and the place is now under the management of Richard M. Briare, one of the most successful hotel men of this State.

Mr. Briare has devoted a number of years to this line of business, having acted as manager of the Hotel Pleasanton, San Francisco, Sea Beach Hotel, Santa Cruz, and proprietor of the Lark Spur Inn, Marine county.

Mr. Braire has raised the standard of the cuisine at the Metropole and has thus greatly pleased his patrons. He has also made a radical change in the method of serving meals.

The rates at the Metropole will be reasonable because Mr. Braire has obtained the hotel on favorable terms.

The Metropole is centrally located and is convenient to all the principal stores and public offices. It is the only first class hotel in Oakland and Mr. Braire is determined to have it continue in that respect. It affords desired accommodation to transients and is particularly adapted as a family hotel.

The assumption by Mr. Braire of the management of the Metropole has occasioned a great deal of satisfaction among the business men of this city, who feel now that Oakland will be guaranteed a hotel of which the city may be proud.

THE DECREE SIGNED.

Mrs. Burbank in Possession of the Walkerly Estate.

FINAL OBJECTIONS SETTLED.

The Property Is Appraised as Worth Fully $600,000.

NEWMAN NOT CRUSHED YET.

He Says He Will Fight on for the Eastern Relatives.

Mrs. Blanche M. Burbank, formerly the widow of the deceased capitalist, William Walkerley, came into possession today of the estate of her first husband. It is worth not less than $600,000. There were some interesting proceedings in the Superior Court this morning before the order of final distribution of the estate was made by Judge Frick. It was not all smooth sailing for Attorneys H. C. Firebaugh and Arthur Rodgers, who represented the executor, Frank Barker, and Mrs. Burbank respectively. An occasional obstacle in the shape of objections to the proceeding were thrown at the attorneys and the court by H. H. Newman, who represents nine or ten nieces and nephews of Walkerley who were beneficiaries under the trust provisions of his will.

Newman had a motion on hand to retax costs laid against his clients in the appeal case which were decided against him. Newman has kept the estate tied up for a long time and the attorneys on the other side, when they saw light ahead today, were not disposed to delay matters much further. Newman claimed he had standing in the court and started to argue on his motion on the costs which had been assessed to him. He persisted and finally Attorneys Firebaugh and Rodgers consented to waive costs and the motion to retax was granted.

But Newman was far from through. He had some more argument up his sleeve. He went off on a long dissertation in which the United States Supreme Court and many intricate law points, fine distinctions and the like figured. Rodgers and Firebaugh yawned and stood around complacently while Newman grew red in the face and swung his arms like a mill wheel in his efforts to convince the court.

Judge Frick, however, was not moved by the pleadings of the representative of the Walkerley nieces and nephews. He did not see where Newman had any standing since the Supreme Court had declared the trust void. Newman's clients had representation only under the provisions of the trust set forth in the will and after that was declared invalid, there could be no recognition of the beneficiaries who were named in the trust.

Newman subsided while Frank Barker, the surviving executor, gave his testimony. Then the gesticulating attorney requested permission to cross examine Barker. The attorneys on the other side made objection which Judge Frick sustained.

Then Mrs. Burbank was called and the same procedure was followed. Newman was indefatigable as long as there was an opportunity left. He asked the court to order the attorneys for Mrs. Burbank to furnish him with a copy of the petition for an order of final distribution.

Judge Frick said there was no reason why he should make such an order. If the attorneys desired as a matter of courtesy to supply a copy they had a perfect right to do so.

Newman asked for five days' time in which to prepare an answer to the petition, but that was denied, and the belligerent attorney piled up a number of large exceptions to which the court said he was entitled.

Rodgers finally secured his order and it was submitted to Judge Frick for his signature. This action practically gives the estate to Mrs. Burbank. Newman has a number of schemes in hand to further his fight, but the decision of the Supreme Court is very sweeping and Mrs. Burbank's legal advisers say they are confident that the estate is perfectly secure from attack.

The property mentioned in the decree consists of the homestead in East Oakland, including the fine mansion and the surrounding block of land. The only other piece of realty is the Pacific Union Club Building at the northwest corner of Stockton and Post streets in San Francisco. This is one of the most valuable pieces of property across the bay. A modern five story building covers the lot. The remainder of the estate consists of personal effects. The total value as appraised is in the close neighborhood of $600,000.

Mrs. Burbank is the wife of William F. Burbank, a former Oakland newspaper man who became acquainted with her while he was a reporter during the will contest.

Hot Water

In a rubber bag with a thick wool protector will keep warm for several hours. Good for no end of things—neuralgic pains, colic, toothache—most any pain is helped by heat. A hot water bag, partly filled, without the woolen bag, will keep a poultice warm—you know how desirable that is. We have a lot of bags from 2 quarts up to 4 quarts, not the best, though fair, that we will sell for 50 cents each. We have better ones. Other rubber things too.

A SUDDEN SUMMONS.

Eugene Field, the Well-Known Litterateur Is Dead.

HIS HEART WAS DISEASED.

The End Came Unexpectedly During the Early Hours.

A GREAT MIND GONE.

He Made Himself Famous by His Dainty Poetic Work.

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—Eugene Field, the poet, died of heart failure about five this morning.

He retired last night in his usual health and apparently slept soundly until daybreak, when his son, who occupied a room with him, heard him groan.

It was his expiring gasp.

Field leaves a widow and five children.

Field had been indisposed for several days, but no serious results were even thought of by his family and immediate friends.

George H. Yenowine of this city was at Field's bedside when he died.

Field and Yenowine intended to start together for Kansas City, where Field was to read tonight.

HIS HISTORY.

Eugene Field was born at St. Louis September 2nd, 1850, the son of Roswell Martin and France (Reed) Field.. His parents were both natives of Windham county, Vermont.

His father was Dred Scott's first attorney in the case which resulted in the famous Dred Scott decision by the U. S. Supreme Court.

Eugene Field's mother died in 1857. He was then put under the care of his cousin, Miss Mary Field Frenche at Amherst, Mass.

He attended Williams College, Knox College and the State University of Missouri.

He adopted the profession of a newspaper writer, beginning with the St. Louis Journal in 1872.

He was later connected with the St. Joseph, Mo., Gazette, the St. Louis Times-Journal, the Kansas City Times and the Denver Tribune.

He came to Chicago August 13th, 1883, to accept a position on the editorial staff of the Chicago Morning News (now Record) and his connection with this paper continued without interruption until his death.

Fields last contribution to his department in this paper, "Sharps and Flats," was published Saturday morning, and in it was a characteristic defense of Bill Nye and a refusal to accept the imputations as to the cause of the recent assault on the humorist at Patterson, N. J.

In addition to his newspaper work, Field established a reputation as a powerful and clever writer of stories and verse.

His latest poem of pretension was "Dreamships," printed in the October Ladies' Home Journal.

He was especially an adept in poems and stories of child life, and his printed books now number half a dozen volumes.

THE CASE IS CLOSING.

Holmes' Fate Will Soon Be Settled by the Jury.

The Prisoner Listens Nervously to the Prosecution's Charge.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 2.—When the court opened today at 10 o'clock for arguments in the Holmes case, Mr. Rotan, junior counsel for the defense, announced that his colleague, Shoemaker, was suffering from complete nervous prostration and was under the care of a physician.

He called this to the attention of the court in view of the point of law regarding the commonwealth's right to make a closing address to the jury when the defense presented no evidence.

Graham ended the question by offering to waive his right to a last speech, and there will be but one address on each side, instead of two by the prosecution.

District Attorney Graham began his address at 10:55 o'clock. He said: "The commonwealth of Pennsylvania is prosecutor in this case, and it asks no victim. If you are satisfied when we have done that this prisoner did not commit the crime you must acquit him.

"The commonwealth is bound to prove its case from the initial step down to the last syllable of evidence.

"The commonwealth has done so. One by one we have established each link, making the chain complete and perfect."

The District Attorney reviewed the evidence in detail.

The condition of the body, he contended, the medical testimony proved could not have been produced, except by chloroform.

Graham's address, which was confined for the most part to a review of the details of the evidence, lasted for two hours and a half.

Holmes nervously shifted in his seat as the thunderous tone of the prosecuting officer rang out.

At the conclusion of the address a recess was taken until 2:30 P. M.

The case was given to the jury at 5:30.

REPRESENT NOBODY.

Hill's Caustic Remarks About the New A. R. U. Strike.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

ST. PAUL, Nov. 2.—When asked today regarding the statement of the special A. R. U. committee that is investigating the grievances of the Great Northern employes, President Hill said:

"You may say they are men not in the employ of the company. They represent nobody. They have been discharged for offenses against the Government, for refusing to obey the orders of their superiors or for stealing. We don't want to have anything to do with them."

It is said the officers of the Great Northern have no fears of a strike or serious trouble.

IN A BAD CONDITION.

The Mayor's Report on the Grant School Sustained on Investigation.

Faulty Work Was Done and the Material Seems to Have Been Very Poor.

The Mayor at the meeting of the Merchants' Exchange held last Tuesday night said in the course of his speech: "I went out to see the Grant school the other day. It was built in a growing community and built too small. Already there is one class having lessons in a shed. They should have built it larger when they were doing it, for it would have saved the city money. I looked the building over carefully and found a miserable job had been done. The roof has already dropped from three to four inches. The building is cracked and broken and almost ready to fall. In some places the ceiling is supported by an inch board split with an ax."

His remarks excited considerable comment, and a Tribune reporter went during the week to the school to see if such a state of things existed.

The Grant school is one of the new brick structures lately erected by the educational department. It is located at the corner of New Broadway and Prospect avenue and is in a growing community. It was built less than one and a half years ago at a cost of about $30,000, contains five school rooms office, halls, etc., and is used only for the primary grades.

The old building was the first visited. In this Miss Richardson teaches an infant class. Her room is more pleasant than the idea of it given by the Mayor. It is large, sunny and fairly well ventilated.

"Oh, it is no shed," she said to The Tribune man, "and I think I ought to feel indignant at the remarks of Mr. Davie."

The Mayor's description of the new building is too true, though. That the building is settling is noticeable in many places. The plastering is badly cracked and in some spots looks as though it was being forced from the laths by a weight from about it. From the outside and in the basement bricks which have split can be seen.

The building leaks and always has. In some places, one on the first floor in particular, the leakage is so bad that buckets have to be placed to catch the water during a storm.

The roof is poorly supported and has sunk badly, perhaps as much as the Mayor represents. It is made of slate of a poor quality and it has cracked considerably. The "inch boards split with an ax" are there. Most of the supports, as seen in the attic, are of this description.

Miss Powell, the principal, is somewhat of an aesthetic in taste, and showed the Tribune man many unsightly places and inconveniences. The boards in the wainscoting are far from choice and knots are dropping out of many of them. The window weights are not the proper weight for the windows, the door knobs, bolts and locks are of a cheap quality and badly put on. In some instances within a week after the building was occupied the department mechanic was called in to make repairs.

The plumbing has had to be fixed several times. Whether the breaks in the pipes were because of poor work in this line at first or whether the sinking of the building strained them is not exactly known.

The window glass is the cheapest and some has split frim top to bottom. The flooring is badly laid and its appearance is far from pleasing.

The Mayor is looking for the parties responsible for the work and to be better prepared for them has had an investigation made by James Hopkirk, superintendent of construction of the Sixth Ward school.

Anderson & Greig were the contractors for the work and William McDonald was the superintendent of construction.

A ROUTINE ROUND-UP

The Supervisors Dispose of a Lot of County Matters.

LIQUOR LICENSES ACTED ON.

Much Road Work Demands the Attention of the Officials.

THE REPORTS FOR OCTOBER.

Applications for Aid Increase as the Winter Comes On.

At the meeting of the Supervisors this morning District Attorney Snook rendered an opinion touching the validity of the signature of W. B. Clark to the application of Joseph Cannon for a liquor license in Temescal. Objection had been made that Clark is not eligible to sign such a petition because he is a resident of San Francisco county. Those who depended upon Clark's signature presented a transcript of the San Francisco great register and accompanied it with a certificate of intention on Clark's part to make Oakland his home. The district attorney held that the transcript and certificate in question did not show that Clark is a resident of Alameda county and that, therefore, he could not legally sign the application referred to.

Applications for permission to sell liquor were made as follows: M. Fassett, Shawsville; John Brannan, Piedmont avenue and Mather avenue; F. B. Granger & Son, Alvarado; J. D. Plitt, Prospect avenue and San Leandro road; E. W. Webb, Forty-first street and San Pablo avenue; S. Hanson & Co., Centreville; Charles G. Tunter, Mather and Piedmont avenues; Raymond Fudie, Niles. They were referred to the Judiciary Committee.

Permission to sell liquor was granted as follows: P. V. Wenig, Sunol; Manuel C. Dias, Centreville; J. Gerken, junction Park street and Park avenue.

RELIEF APPLICATIONS.

Applications for relief were received and disposed of as follows: Mrs. Joseph Warner, 615 Fourth street, aged 31 years, three children, native of California, referred to Supervisor Church; Ernest Kraft, 1106 San Pablo avenue, aged 72 years, native of Germany, two married children, referred to Supervisor Pelouze; David Walters, 1509 San Pablo, referred to Supervisor Pelouze; Michael Coogan, Nineteenth street and Broadway, aged 34 years, unmarried, blind.

The last named applicant was formerly an inmate of the Industrial Home for the blind at Temescal. Fred A. Campbell said that Coogan simply desired some money to pay his room rent during the winter and that he could hustle and make enough money to supply himself with food and clothing.

Coogan spoke in his own behalf, saying that he had been able to support himself during the past ten months, but now that winter had come on he thought that all he could do would be to supply himself with clothing and food.

Mr. Pelouze said that the county could not give money for room rent. It was suggested, however, that some money might be allowed Coogan on account of food and the applicant might do with the money as he saw fit. The matter was finally referred to Supervisor Johnston.

The application for the relief of Thomas Thompson, 517 San Pablo avenue, 75 years of age, native of Canada, widower, two children at the Orphans' Home, was referred to Supervisor Johnston.

J. L. Tyson and Frank Soto, prisoners in the County Jail, were granted the legal reduction in their terms of imprisonment for good behavior.

ROAD MATTERS.

A petition from residents in Temescal road district for the opening of Linden street from Fortieth to Forty-sixth was referred to the County Surveyor.

HANEY'S HAY.

Sheriff White Had a Legal Right to Attach the Feed.

Elmer Haney has been non-suited in the action he brought against Sheriff White to recover 140 tons of hay upon which an attachment had been levied in behalf of F. S. Chadbourne of Pleasanton. The hay belonged originally to William Patterson, a farmer who employed Haney on the ranch. Patterson had given Chadbourne a mortgage on the chattels and personal property on the farm to secure a note for $1100. Patterson owed Haney several hundred dollars for labor and assigned the hay to him. That is why he came into court, but Judge Ellsworth, on motion of District Attorney Snook, granted a non-suit.

ROBBING THE ROOSTS.

Farmers Threaten to Use Shot Guns Upon Chicken Thieves.

Sheriff White is receiving numerous complaints of the depredations of chicken thieves along the San Leandro road. Some notorious characters were recently released from the city prison and the county jail. Farmers who depend upon their fowl as one means of securing a livelihood are much disturbed over the work of the depredators. They threaten to use dangerous tactics to prevent the thefts, which are becoming very monotonous. Chickens are stolen by the score, and no clue to the thieves seems to have been located. Sheriff White has issued instructions to his deputies to keep a sharp look-out for all suspicious characters. The farmers say they will do some shotgun patrolling and make a few county hospital cases unless the thieving ceases.

"NOBBY" NOT IN IT.

He Filed an Exception That Would Not Hold Water.

Judge Ellsworth Promptly Brings Him Up With a Short Turn.

"Nobby" Clarke came off second best today in a bit of a legal encounter with Judge Ellsworth. "Nobby" knows a great deal about the effect of compound interest and he knows a great many of the tricks about the law that have kept his creditors busy for several years past.

But "Nobby" was pinched a little this morning and he is surprised at what has happened. He went into court smilingly content. He had found a flaw in the armor of the distributing assignee, Ell T. Sheppard whose hunt for assets keeps "Nobby" awake nights devising schemes to outwit him.

Sheppard located some property in Alameda county in the shape of a judgment for foreclosure against Henry Frank, in favor, however, of Mrs. Clarke. Sheppard filed suit and alleged that the property was properly "Nobby's" and had been transferred in an attempt to defraud creditors. Sheppard included Sheriff White as a party to the suit, merely pro forma.

But there "Nobby" saw his chance. He concluded that because Sheriff White was a defendant in the action that he would be obliged to withdraw in his official capacity when it came to serving the papers and call upon the Coroner. "Nobby" noted an exception in his own mind when the summons to the suit was served by White. Then he went ahead and prepared a motion to have the summons set aside.

"I've got him this time where I want them," gleefully ejaculated "Nobby" when he waddled into court.

"You ought to be happy," suggested Judge Ellsworth, who very promptly denied "Nobby's" motion and gave him five days in which to file an answer to the suit of Assignee Sheppard.

PRESIDENTIAL CHANGES.

Appointments and Promotions Announced by Cleveland.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—The President has appointed James B. Agello of Michigan, John E. Russell of Massachusetts and Lyman E. Cooley of Illinois commissioners to make inquiry and report upon the feasibility of a deep water canal between the Great Lakes and the Atlantic Ocean. Claude N. Bennett of Atlanta, Ga., is appointed agent to make allotments to the Indians; Patrick Kiernan of Olivia Minn., surveyor general of Montana and K. W. Perry, first lieutenant in the revenue cutter service.

Lieutenant D. L. Wilson, N. J., Halpine, Houston, Eldridge and Chief Engineer E. A. Magee have been placed on the retired list of the navy.

The following promotions in the navy have been made by the President:

Commodore S. O. Selfridge to be rear admiral; Commander Francis A. Cook, to be captain; Lieutenant Frederick Singer, to be lieutenant commander; Ensigns H. P. Jones and W. O. Hulme, to be lieutenants; Surgeon Dwight Dixon, to be medical inspector; Assistant Engineers A. H. Halstead and W. B. Day, to be first assistant engineers.

A TRICKY RIVAL.

He Put Up a Mean Job to Hurt His Opponent's Business.

A peculiar method of business rivalry was brought to light by a case that was tried in the Alameda justice court yesterday.

John Alton, a partner of the firm of Alton & Sons, grocers, was charged by Miss Flora Carroll with enticing her into the store during the lunch hour and attempting to take liberties with her. The prosecuting witness and her mother took the stand and the young lady told an apparently straight story of how young Alton had invited her behind the counter and had attempted to behave in a manner unbecoming a gentleman.

Alton produced a host of witnesses and the hour at which the alleged offense is said to have occurred was pretty well accounted for by his attorney, Mr. Fry. It was shown that during the time between 12 M. and 1 P. M. of August 28, young Alton, who was alone in the store at that time, had done about as much work as an ordinary individual could accomplish in three hours. The watermelon man came and made a settlement, the baker did ditto, the oil man, who was ther half an hour, and some customers were on hand to testify that they had seen the girl come in and leave the store on that day and that nothing improper occurred.

Under cross-examination it was brought out that the case was put up by business rivals for the purpose of showing that Alton's store was not a proper place at which to trade. The prosecuting witness admitted that she had said what was not true. The Prosecuting Attorney said he had never seen a case so perfectly manufactured and the judge, in dismissing the case, said something about perjury and it is not at all unlikely that the affair may yet go to the grand jury.

POLICE PICK-UPS.

Criminal Cases of All Sorts Come Up at the City Hall.

Mary Smith, a woman of years and untidiness and with luxurious but dishevelled and matted hair, was the only drunk in the Police Court today. She is an old attendant and was sent below for five days.

James Welch, the leader of a social set at Temescal, who was found guilty a week ago of breaking in the door of a ball room because his set was not invited, was allowed to go this morning as it was proved that he is now behaving himself.

Jim Lee Lang was fined $5 for keeping a laundry without a license. Big Jim was on hand and paid the fine.

John Hamilton, an old man who is very lame and who cannot when sober stand without a crutch, got drunk last night and smashed the windows in front of Mr. W. P. Slattery's house with his crutch to the surprise of his friends. He pleaded guilty and will occupy a cell for five days.

George W. Reeves, who stole a hatchet, was given $20 or ten days.

THE ELEVATOR FIGHT.

Twelve Informations Are Filed by Attorney General Maloney.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

CHICAGO, Nov. 2.—Attorney General Maloney filed in the Circuit Court today twelve informations in chancery against the elevator companies.

The bills pray for injunctions to restrain the companies from buying grain and depositing it in their warehouse to restrain them from buying inferior grain and mixing it with better grain they have in store, and to restrain them from conspiring to control the market.

The Attorney General gave notice that he will also file eight petitions for leave to file informations in the nature of quo warranto in the elevator cases.

HIT BY A TRAIN.

A Chicago Millionaire Run Down and Instantly Killed.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

CHICAGO, Nov. 2.—Laurin P. Hillard, aged 83, one of the oldest residents of Chicago, whose estate involved millions, met instant death today.

He lived in the suburbs of Longwood, situated on the Rock Island and Panhandle Railroads.

He was out for a morning drive, attended by a hired man.

At a crossing the buggy was struck by a fast passenger train on the Panhandle Road.

Hillard was dead when picked up.

The hired man sustained serious injuries.

THE METROPOLE.

A First-Class Hotel Under Able Management.

There has been a change in the management of the Hotel Metropole at the corner of Thirteenth and Jefferson streets and the place is now under the management of Richard M. Briare, one of the most successful hotel men of this State.

Mr. Briare has devoted a number of years to this line of business, having acted as manager of the Hotel Pleasanton, San Francisco, Sea Beach Hotel, Santa Cruz, and proprietor of the Lark Spur Inn, Marine county.

Mr. Braire has raised the standard of the cuisine at the Metropole and has thus greatly pleased his patrons. He has also made a radical change in the method of serving meals.

The rates at the Metropole will be reasonable because Mr. Braire has obtained the hotel on favorable terms.

The Metropole is centrally located and is convenient to all the principal stores and public offices. It is the only first class hotel in Oakland and Mr. Braire is determined to have it continue in that respect. It affords desired accommodation to transients and is particularly adapted as a family hotel.

The assumption by Mr. Braire of the management of the Metropole has occasioned a great deal of satisfaction among the business men of this city, who feel now that Oakland will be guaranteed a hotel of which the city may be proud.

Everett Riner's Partner Charges Him With Felony.

Everett Riner and C. A. Miller, former partners in the business of street contracting, quarreled yesterday and as an outcome Riner attempted to assist Miller into eternity with a stick of wood. Miller swore to a complaint and Riner was arrested on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon.

He was represented this morning at his arraignment by Attorney Phillip N. Walsh, who had the preliminary examination set for next Saturday.

THE DECREE SIGNED.

Mrs. Burbank In Possession of the Walkerly Estate.

FINAL OBJECTIONS SETTLED.

The Property Is Appraised as Worth Fully $600,000.

NEWMAN NOT CRUSHED YET.

He Says He Will Fight on for the Eastern Relatives.

Mrs. Blanche M. Burbank, formerly the widow of the deceased capitalist, William Walkerley, came into possession today of the estate of her first husband. It is worth not less than $600,000. There were some interesting proceedings in the Superior Court this morning before the order of final distribution of the estate was made by Judge Frick. It was not all smooth sailing for Attorneys H. C. Firebaugh and Arthur Rodgers, who represented the executor, Frank Barker, and Mrs. Burbank respectively. An occasional obstacle in the shape of objections to the proceeding were thrown at the attorneys and the court by B. E. Newman, who represents nine or ten nieces and nephews of Walkerley who were beneficiaries under the trust provisions of his will.

Newman had a motion on hand to retax costs laid against his clients in the appeal case which were decided against him. Newman has kept the estate tied up for a long time and the attorneys on the other side, when they saw light ahead today, were not disposed to delay matters much further. Newman claimed he had standing in the court and started to argue on his motion on the costs which had been assessed to him. He persisted and finally Attorneys Firebaugh and Rodgers consented to waive costs and the motion to retax was granted.

But Newman was far from through. He had some more argument up his sleeve. He went off on a long dissertation in which the United States Supreme Court and many intricate law points, fine distinctions and the like figured. Rodgers and Firebaugh yawned and stood around complacently while Newman grew red in the face and swung his arms like a mill wheel in his efforts to convince the court.

Judge Frick, however, was not moved by the pleadings of the representative of the Walkerley nieces and nephews. He did not see where Newman had any standing since the Supreme Court had declared the trust void. Newman's clients had representation only under the provisions of the trust set forth in the will and after that was declared invalid, there could be no recognition of the beneficiaries who were named in the trust.

Newman subsided while Frank Barker, the surviving executor, gave his testimony. Then the gesticulating attorney requested permission to cross examine Barker. The attorneys on the other side made objection which Judge Frick sustained.

Then Mrs. Burbank was called and the same procedure was followed. Newman was indefatigable as long as there was an opportunity left. He asked the court to order the attorneys for Mrs. Burbank to furnish him with a copy of the petition for an order of final distribution.

Judge Frick said there was no reason why he should make such an order. If the attorneys desired as a matter of courtesy to supply a copy they had a perfect right to do so.

Newman asked for five days' time in which to prepare an answer to the petition, but that was denied, and the belligerent attorney piled up a number of large exceptions to which the court said he was entitled.

Rodgers finally secured his order and it was submitted to Judge Frick for his signature. This action practically gives the estate to Mrs. Burbank. Newman has a number of schemes in hand to further his fight, but the decision of the Supreme Court is very sweeping and Mrs. Burbank's legal advisers say they are confident that the estate is perfectly secure from attack.

The property mentioned in the decree consists of the homestead in East Oakland, including the fine mansion and the surrounding block of land. The only other piece of realty is the Pacific Union Club Building at the northwest corner of Stockton and Post streets in San Francisco. This is one of the most valuable pieces of property across the bay. A modern five story building covers the lot. The remainder of the estate consists of personal effects. The total value as appraised is in the close neighborhood of $600,000.

Mrs. Burbank is the wife of William F. Burbank, a former Oakland newspaper man who became acquainted with her while he was a reporter during the will contest.

Hot Water

In a rubber bag with a thick wool protector will keep warm for several hours. Good for no end of things—neuralgic pains, colic, toothache—most any pain is helped by heat. A hot water bag, partly filled, without the woolen bag, will keep a poultice warm—you know how desirable that is. We have a lot of bags from 2 quarts up to 4 quarts, not the best, though fair, that we will sell for 50 cents each. We have better ones. Other rubber things too.

BOWMAN & CO., DRUGGISTS,

COR. NINTH AND BROADWAY

TWENTY YEARS IN OFFICE.

Today Is a Happy Anniversary for Under Sheriff Harlow.

His Courtesy, Efficiency and Honesty Made His Position Permanent.

This morning Under Sheriff Harlow entered the sheriff's office to commence the first week of his twenty-first year of service. Sheriffs have come and sheriffs have gone, but for a score of years William S. Harlow has been the man to bid them welcome, guide them safely through their term of office and bid them adieu.

Harry Morse was the man who first invited Harlow to enter the sheriff's office as under sheriff. Harlow was a reporter on the old Oakland News and was on duty at the courts when Morse offered him the position.

"On November 1st 1875," said Mr. Harlow today, "I was asked if I would like to be under sheriff. I remember that I was in no hurry to make up my mind, because I did not know how long the job would last. Had I known it would be for twenty years and more I could have known my own mind quicker."

Sheriff Morse stayed in office three years. He was succeeded by Jere Tyrell, who, like Morse and Harlow, was a Republican. Tyrrell stayed five years and when Charley McCleverty, a dyed-in-the-wool Democrat, succeeded him it was considered certain that Harlow would have to go back to reporting. But McCleverty knew that he would have great difficulty in finding a man with eight years experience as an under sheriff in the Democratic party, so politics were waived and Harlow continued to engineer the office.

Then came W. E. Hale, a stalwart Republican. Harlow had then served ten years and Hale concluded that it would be folly to jeopardize his bondsmen by removing the under sheriff, so Harlow remained. Sheriff Hale held office for six years and left the county building more convinced than ever that Harlow was the right man in the right place.

W. H. Hussey was Alameda county's next sheriff and Mr. Harlow's superior office, but although importuned to give Mr. Harlow a rest he thought he would be consulting his best interests by discarding the advice and when Mr. Hussey left the office Harlow bade him adieu and welcomed his successor.

This was Robert McKillican, a Democrat, and all kinds of pressure were brought to bear on him to displace Harlow by a good Democrat, but with no result. Harlow had been there eighteen years and as the office of under sheriff is one of great responsibility, McKillican, like some of his predecessors, waived the matter of politics and last January Harlow saw him go out and C. E. White come in.

It was considered to be a foregone conclusion that Mr. White, Alameda county's first Populist sheriff, would have a new under sheriff. He went farther than his predecessors and placed C. E. Lloyd in the office for the purpose of being instructed by Mr. Harlow in the mysteries of under sheriff's work. Mr. Harlow started to instruct Mr. Lloyd with the same thoroughness, courtesy and willingness that has distinguished his career of a score of years, but somehow or other in the whirligig of time Mr. Lloyd became chief of police and Mr. Harlow is still under sheriff.

The opinion of a newspaper man is the best criterion of worth of a public official. During the past twenty years hundreds of newspaper men have used the sheriff's office, and not one has ever found Mr. Harlow to be other than the same courteous, obliging, honest man that he is today.

SWEDISH MISSIONS.

A convention of Swedish Mission friends assembled in the Swedish Mission church on Filbert street last night. There was a large attendance of clergymen. Rev. A. Dallner of Kingsburg preached a very impressive sermon. The convention will be continued next week and exercises will be held every night except Monday. At each meeting the services will be conducted by a different clergyman.

The Swedish Mission churches are not as their name denotes, missionary organizations. On the contrary, they are well organized and form a progressive religious body. They are separated from the State church in Sweden, but because they started missions outside the mother church they received the name "Mission Friends," "Mission churches."

The Mission friends are very pious and active, and make strong efforts to lead holy lives according to the Word of God. They have many able and prominent men and have been very progressive both in Sweden and America. They have strong churches in Washington, Oregon and California.

The church in Oakland has nearly doubled its membership and more than doubled its adherents.

Rev. C. A. Nelson, a young man educated in Chicago, is the pastor of the local Mission church.

When tired and thirsty, for rest, a nice bit of lunch and a cool drink, go to Burt & Martin's wine rooms, 467 10th st., bet. Broadway and Washington.

TWENTY YEARS IN OFFICE.

Today Is a Happy Anniversary for Under Sheriff Harlow.

His Courtesy, Efficiency and Honesty Made His Position Permanent.

This morning Under Sheriff Harlow entered the sheriff's office to commence the first week of his twenty-first year of service. Sheriffs have come and sheriffs have gone, but for a score of years William S. Harlow has been the man to bid them welcome, guide them safely through their term of office and bid them adieu.

Harry Morse was the man who first invited Harlow to enter the sheriff's office as under sheriff. Harlow was a reporter on the old Oakland News and was on duty at the courts when Morse offered him the position.

"On November 1st 1875," said Mr. Harlow today, "I was asked if I would like to be under sheriff. I remember that I was in no hurry to make up my mind, because I did not know how long the job would last. Had I known it would be for twenty years and more I could have known my own mind quicker."

Sheriff Morse stayed in office three years. He was succeeded by Jere Tyrell, who, like Morse and Harlow, was a Republican. Tyrrell stayed five years and when Charley McCleverty, a dyed-in-the-wool Democrat, succeeded him it was considered certain that Harlow would have to go back to reporting. But McCleverty knew that he would have great difficulty in finding a man with eight years experience as an under sheriff in the Democratic party, so politics were waived and Harlow continued to engineer the office.

Then came W. E. Hale, a stalwart Republican. Harlow had then served ten years and Hale concluded that it would be folly to jeopardize his bondsmen by removing the under sheriff, so Harlow remained. Sheriff Hale held office for six years and left the county building more convinced than ever that Harlow was the right man in the right place.

W. H. Hussey was Alameda county's next sheriff and Mr. Harlow's superior office, but although importuned to give Mr. Harlow a rest he thought he would be consulting his best interests by discarding the advice and when Mr. Hussey left the office Harlow bade him adieu and welcomed his successor.

This was Robert McKillican, a Democrat, and all kinds of pressure were brought to bear on him to displace Harlow by a good Democrat, but with no result. Harlow had been there eighteen years and as the office of under sheriff is one of great responsibility, McKillican, like some of his predecessors, waived the matter of politics and last January Harlow saw him go out and C. B. White come in.

It was considered to be a foregone conclusion that Mr. White, Alameda County's first Populist sheriff, would have a new under sheriff. He went farther than his predecessors and placed C. E. Lloyd in the office for the purpose of being instructed by Mr. Harlow in the mysteries of under sheriff's work. Mr. Harlow started to instruct Mr. Lloyd with the same thoroughness, courtesy and willingness that has distinguished his career of a score of years, but somehow or other in the whirligig of time Mr. Lloyd became chief of police and Mr. Harlow is still under sheriff.

The opinion of a newspaper man is the best criterion of worth of a public official. During the past twenty years hundreds of newspaper men have used the sheriff's office, and not one has ever found Mr. Harlow to be other than the same courteous, obliging, honest man that he is today.

When ordering Cocoa or Chocolates, be sure and ask for Snyder's. Purity and flavor unexcelled.

SWEDISH MISSIONS.

A convention of Swedish Mission friends assembled in the Swedish Mission church on Filbert street last night. There was a large attendance of clergymen. Rev. A. Dallner of Kingsburg preached a very impressive sermon. The convention will be continued next week and exercises will be held every night except Monday. At each meeting the services will be conducted by a different clergyman.

The Swedish Mission churches are not as their name denotes, missionary organizations. On the contrary, they are well organized and form a progressive religious body. They are separated from the State church in Sweden, but because they started missions outside the mother church they received the name "Mission Friends," "Mission churches."

The Mission friends are very pious and active, and make strong efforts to lead holy lives according to the Word of God. They have many able and prominent men and have been very progressive both in Sweden and America. They have strong churches in Washington, Oregon and California.

The church in Oakland has nearly doubled its membership and more than doubled its adherents.

Rev. C. A. Nelson, a young man educated in Chicago, is the pastor of the local Mission church.

THE APPLE CENSUS.

Over Eight Million More Barrels This Year Than Last.

The apple-census man has made his returns. Though he doesn't climb every tree in the United States, he gets a pretty fair idea of the crop with the aid of market returns and the reports of growers. He says that the output this year will be 66,256,000 barrels, an increase over last year of 8,627,000 barrels.

As near New York as Tarrytown apples have been rotting on the ground because it doesn't pay to cart them to the train. They are quoted at Tarrytown at 25 cents a barrel.

The apple crop in this State is placed at 6,375,000 barrels. Last year it was 5,918,000 barrels. England stands ready to buy five or six million bushels, wherever she can get them the cheapest.

There is a tempest in the fruit trade, due to a rule made by fruit importers intended to prevent buyers from doing their own trucking. A buyer who wants to do it has to pay two and a half cents a barrel to the importers' truckman for the privilege. The Fruit Buyers' Union is vigorously objecting to this as an arbitrary and unjust tax.

THE APPLE CENSUS.

Over Eight Million More Barrels This Year Than Last.

The apple-census man has made his returns. Though he doesn't climb every tree in the United States, he gets a pretty fair idea of the crop with the aid of market returns and the reports of growers. He says that the output this year will be 66,256,000 barrels, an increase over last year of 8,627,000 barrels.

As near New York as Tarrytown apples have been rotting on the ground because it doesn't pay to cart them to the train. They are quoted at Tarrytown at 25 cents a barrel.

The apple crop in this State is placed at 6,375,000 barrels. Last year it was 5,918,000 barrels. England stands ready to buy five or six million bushels, wherever she can get them the cheapest.

There is a tempest in the fruit trade, due to a rule made by fruit importers intended to prevent buyers from doing their own trucking. A buyer who wants to do it has to pay two and a half cents a barrel to the importers' truckman for the privilege. The Fruit Buyers' Union is vigorously objecting to this as an arbitrary and unjust tax.

MONDAY.....NOVEMBER 4, 1895.

At the general election on the 5th of November New York will vote on the question whether $9,000,000 shall be expended in enlarging the facilities of her canal system. If the vote is favorable it will follow almost to a certainty that electricity will be employed for towage in the canal. By that means it is believed that the freight capacity of the canals will be doubled; and the ship canal project will be dropped.

The St. Paul on her first trip across the Atlantic failed to make the speed of the sister ship St. Louis. But for twenty-four hours the former ship maintained an average speed of 21½ miles an hour. For a new ship with engines not yet working smoothly that rate of speed ought to satisfy reasonable people. A few years ago 21 miles an hour was a long way beyond the speed capacity of any ship afloat.

While the French have assumed a protectorate over Madagascar the Hovas are allowed a nominal sovereignty. The Queen resides in her palace at the capital. It is not outright annexation; but it is near enough to become absolute by taking one more step. In the treaty of 1875 France was given the sole right to represent Madagascar abroad. There is now the additional right to supervise the internal government of the island.

The Star of Ohio Men.

Ohio men have always been fortunate politically. Harrison was born in Ohio and had a run of good luck for the Presidency, with a turn of the tide on the succeeding canvass. There is an undercurrent of belief that, being an Ohio man by birth, his luck will turn in his favor next year. Now John Sherman was an Ohio man, and reached every important office but that of President. That ought to be enough for any man from the Buckeye State; but it is not. McKinley is to the manner born. Ohio is the name to conjure with. Just how this success is attained is not easily explained.

Of course when the Ohio man wants anything in the way of office he goes right after it and generally gets it. But so do men from other States seek office, with the difference that they don't so often get it. Hayes never would have been President if he had not been an Ohio man. Nor would Chase have been Chief Justice. True, he aspired to be President, but all the aspirants from that State cannot fill this one office. General Grant was born in Ohio and stepped into the highest office for two terms. Garfield reached the same prize, while any number of Ohio men have had places in the Cabinet. McKinley and Harrison are both on the Presidential track, while Reed will have to make the race for the nomination without the flavor of Ohio soil on his boots. We shall see what luck there is for Ohio men next year.

The Man Who Said Too Much.

Robert T. Lincoln's recent declaration that he could conceive no greater misfortune could befall him than to become President of the United States is provoking not a little criticism. Of course one in that office will have a great many trials and vexations; not the least of these will come from the place hunters. The Philadelphia Times notes the fact that not a single delegate from Illinois to any convention ever favored Robert Lincoln's candidacy for President. If a candidate cannot carry his own State he would have little chance in a National Convention. John Sherman could never obtain the support of the entire delegation from Ohio, and therefore never secured the nomination. These points are well made:

"These deliverances from the son of Abraham Lincoln explain why the prestige of his father's great name has not fallen upon him as a possible successor to his father's distinction as an American ruler. Abraham Lincoln had many attributes of greatness, but the one that was most conspicuous was his devotion to the people of the whole country; and so far from regarding their importunities as pestering him to death he ever welcomed the people, heard their counsels however crude or wise, and was governed by them in the determination of the gravest questions of national policy ever decided by any nation of the earth.

"It is evident that Robert T. Lincoln is not thus in touch with the American people, and that explains why he is not in touch with the people of his own city and State who, while reverencing the name he bears almost to the extent of idolatry, never lisp the name of the son as worthy of the high honors attained by his father. Mr. Lincoln is a most estimable, upright and generally sensible man, but his failure to put himself in touch with the people who worship his honored name, has made him an impossible candidate for the Presidency; and he doubtless accepts the inevitable in declaring that he views with utter abhorence the mention of his name for the highest civil trust of the world."

If Lincoln were nominated he would find it very inconvenient to neutralize the force of his own declarations. The fate of his illustrious father may serve as an excuse in part for declarations that have neither the wit nor the wisdom of the sire who served his country so well in that high office.

The Elections Tomorrow.

There will be elections tomorrow in thirteen States. These, coming a year before the Presidential election, will have more than a local interest as to some of the States. In New York a number of important officers are to be elected, but no Governor. The interest centers principally in the election of a Secretary of State, Controller, Treasurer, Attorney General, judges of the Supreme Court and an Associate Judge of the Court of Appeals. One of the most important State issues is that for an appropriation of $9,000,000 to improve the canals. A Senate and Assembly will be elected for the first time from the new districts designated by the constitution. It is believed that the State as a whole will go Republican.

In Ohio a full State ticket is to be elected. The incoming Legislature will elect a Senator in the place of Brice. There are five tickets in the field. There is hardly a doubt that the Republican ticket will prevail by a very large majority. In that State there is a more distinct marshalling of forces for the Presidential election next year than in any other State. McKinley, the present Governor, and Campbell, the Democratic nominee, are both candidates for a Presidential nomination. It is probable that the Democratic ticket will show gains over the election a year ago, when the Republicans had a plurality of 137,000.

In Maryland there is a hot fight over the State tickets which reaches over to Senator Gorman, with some prospect that the Republican ticket will prevail on account of the strong opposition to Gorman. In Massachusetts there are also five tickets in the field. Greenhalge, the Republican candidate for Governor, was elected a year ago by a plurality exceeding 60,000. There is little doubt that he will be re-elected by a large majority.

In Pennsylvania it is an off year in politics. A State Treasurer and a number of judges are to be elected. The Republican governor was elected last year by the enormous majority of 241,000. It is not likely that the State ticket will prevail by any such majority this year. New Jersey elects a full State ticket. The chances are in favor of the election of a Democratic Governor. In Kentucky hot politics have been the order of the day. There are four tickets in the field, with an even chance that the Republicans may win. The Legislature to be elected will elect a Federal Senator to succeed Blackburn. In Utah the election will be one of special interest. There is the question of adopting a constitution preparatory to admission to the Union. A full State ticket is to be voted. Local questions are uppermost. The chances seem to be in favor of the success of the Republican ticket.

In Iowa the election will have more than a local interest. Senator Allison is a candidate for a Presidential nomination. The Legislature to be elected will choose a Senator to succeed Allison. A full State ticket is to be elected. In Kansas a Chief Justice is to be elected. Very little interest has been manifested in this election. In Nebraska the most important State officer to be elected this year is a Justice of the Supreme Court. The Democrats seem to have an even chance of electing their ticket. In Virginia and Mississippi the Democratic ticket will of course be elected. This forecast on the eve of the elections may be subject to some revisions tomorrow.

All Aboard for San Francisco.

While the metropolis of the Pacific coast may not be chosen for either of the National Conventions to be held next year, a great many good words have been uttered for the proposition. The entire country knows today that San Francisco is a candidate for that honor. Her advantages are freely discussed everywhere.

The New York Sun makes some timely hints. "A trip across the United States on one of the transcontinental railroads, with curtains securely pulled up and with each delegate sitting near a window, would be instructive, especially to those Eastern delegates whose knowledge of mountainous regions is based on their observation of the Berkshire hills, or those patriotic Southern Republicans who travel in a land of corn and cotton on Southern accommodation trains, warranted to exceed in scheduled speed twenty miles an hour.

"The glorious climate of California! The splendid city of the Golden Gate! The toilsome railroad trip, across the Rockies and Sierras, among peaks and across valleys, ravines and rivers! What instruction to those Republican delegates who still regard Buffalo as a Western outpost, and Denver as on the other side of the world!"

And then the Sun wants to know if a comprehensive knowledge of the extent, resources and all other material advantages of the boundless West can only be acquired by crossing to San Francisco. "Why should not Democratic delegates derive from the trip the same benefit as Republicans? A transcontinental journey by all means for the better instruction of those who are now shaping the foreign policy of the United States Government. If by a railroad ride from seashore to seashore these Cuckoos could be brought to a thorough understanding of the power and importance of the American republic, and the need of defending the rights and protecting the interests of Americans at home and abroad, great gain might accrue and a true and more distinctly American foreign policy might be the result.

"All aboard for San Francisco on the Democratic limited!"

An Eastern paper records the culinary tastes of John W. Mackay. "He gets little or nothing in the way of personal comfort from his millions. His digestion and his tastes cause him to live simply and even coarsely. Fine wines and delicately cooked foods are not for him. His culinary tastes were illustrated by a lunch which he gave to Mr. Hermann Oelrichs and some other friends before their departure for Alaska. It consisted of clam chowder, corned beef and cabbage, squash pie and buttermilk." Well, let the culinary critic put his finger on a single dish here enumerated that is not altogether a good and wholesome one. If he can't do it let him hereafter hold his peace. No millionaire is under any obligation to invite the gout by a daily surfeit of rich food.

In 1894 the census of Japan showed the population to be 42,000,000. But 3,000,000 have since been added by the annexation of Formosa. This aggregate population of 45,000,000 does not make Japan a leading power among the great nations. But when this island nation is shown to have within three millions as many people as Great Britain and even a larger home area it is not difficult to see that a great power is looming up in Japan.

NOTES AND EXCERPTS.

Felix Faure, President of France, is a great first-nighter at the Parisian theatres. He is a well-equipped critic and owns a library that is full of valuable editions of the classic French drama.

The Hope diamond, which the trustees of Lord Francis Hope's estate are desirous of selling, is valued at $10,000. It is rather an ugly stone, the size of a hen's egg and blue in color, and is supposed to be the blue diamond which Louis XIV. bought in 1668. This diamond was lost in 1792.

The claims of politics for which he once sacrificed a Harvard professorship, have led Dr. William Everett into the lists once more, this time as a candidate for the Massachusetts Legislature. It is to represent the city of Quincy that he aspires, and it is there that the preacher-poet-Congressman-teacher is better known than, perhaps anywhere else, for he was for several years Master of Adams Academy. Dr. Everett has many foibles and not a few eccentricities, but he is a talented man—one of the best orators and one of the best Latin scholars of the old-fashioned kind in the Commonwealth.

Henri Rochefort is now telling the stirring story of his career through the columns of a Paris journal, and it is said that an American publishing house has guaranteed him $20,00 for the exclusive rights of publishing his memoirs in the United States. In addition he is to receive one franc for each volume of his reminiscences sold on this side of the Atlantic. In the initial installment of his memoirs Rochefort says that the first great man he met was Lamartine, and his first love was Mlle. Farguell, the actress, for whom he conceived a violent passion when he was only five years old.

Madagascar is a tropical island as big as New England, the Middle States, Ohio and Indiana, and as the French have done what would be equivalent to landing at Portland, Me., and marching to Williamsport, Penn., through a tropical, fever-stricken jungle, it can scarcely surprise anyone that the job has been a hard one. Now that Antananarivo is taken the war is over, to the profound relief of the French ministry. Madagascar, it must be remembered, is not inhabited by a single people struggling for liberty, but a number of tribes ruled in brutal and despotic fashion by a single tribe, the Hova. Now that the forces of this tribe are scattered the French will have no difficulty in establishing themselves in the island but that offered by the climate. This is a very serious obstacle, but it can be met and there will probably be little more fighting, and so far 100 men have died of fever to one fallen in battle.—Philadelphia Press.

Wilhelm II has caused the imprisonment of another editor for criticising one of his speeches. Vain Kaiser! foolish man, who requires every German editor to shout his praise when he makes a speech. He not only misses lots of fun, but he loses all the advantages of criticism. He would certainly make better speeches than he has ever made if he gave the critics a show, permitted them to point out the faults in his oratory and carefully studied all their utterances. By so doing his voice would be tempered, his presumption reduced, his swagger modified, and his rhetoric improved. Every Kaiser ought to keep a squad of critics in his pay.—New York Sun.

Habits of the Manatee.

The manatee belongs to a mammalian order called Sirenia, or sea cows, which contains only three species—our manatee, that of West Africa, and the dugong of Australia. As its clumsy form suggests, it is an animal of quiet, and even sluggish habits, entirely harmless and easily taken when once its haunts are known. When at home its food consists of tender aquatic plants and grasses, always eaten under water, and its presence is generally revealed by the bits of broken stems and grass which escape and float to the surface above where it is feeding.

In captivity it feeds on cabbage, lettuce, the leaves of the canna, celery tops, watercress, spinach, and also certain kinds of ocean seaweed. In the St. Lucie river its favorite food is a luxuriant, trailing, aquatic grass called manatee grass, in which the manatee finds not only good food, but good hiding-places from its human enemies.

The bones of this animal are massive, solid and quite heavy (some hunters will tell you its bones are "solid ivory") and its skin is as thick and tough as that of a hippopotamus. I have seen very good canes made of strips of manatee skin, twisted like a lightning-rod and dried. Its flesh is very good, and to me it tastes like lean pork. Curiously enough, this strange creature actually sheds its outer skin every year, as does a serpent. The living specimens that from time to time have been captured and kept for exhibition in Demerara, Philadelphia, New York and London have in all cases been of small or medium size, varying in length from four to seven feet. The one which was shown in the Central Park Menagerie in 1873 was 6 fee 9½ inches in length and weighed 450 pounds.—St. Nicholas.

Finery for Women.

Navy blue has probed to be, as the manufacturers predicted, to be a very fashionable color, especially in wools. A street gown has skirt and sleeves of a navy blue angora wool—that is to say, the angora wool cloth, which has a very soft surface, with fine hairs on it. The waist is fitted and basque shaped, and is made of fancy velvet and satin, with pleated coat-tails in the back of blue velvet. There is a deep collar of velvet edged with sable. It forms wings over the sleeves and comes down each side of a narrow vest, which is formed of heavy lace jabots.

Another blue cloth gown has the skirt trimmed with two rows of heavy black braid, one at the hem, and the other about twelve inches above, the top row forming a cloved leaf pattern at every seam. The fitted waist has three jacket tail pieces fastened to it, one in the middle of the back and the other on each side. These are pleated and trimmed with black braid and adjusted to a waist with a line of braid. The waist turns away in front, jacket fashion, and shows a waistcoat of white corduroy velvet fastening double-breasted, with two rows of small gilt buttons. There is a double collar of the white, arranged something in the manner of a rouche. It is a little clumsy, but the rest of the gown is "chic" and charming.—New York Tribune.

ASTOR MENDED THE ENGINE.

He Surprised His Companions With His Knowlege of Mechanics.

An echo of the trip made by Governor Morton and his staff to the southern battlefields was made a few days ago. It appears that on the return trip the special train bearing the Governor, his staff, the Legislative Committee and some invited guests met a mishap which served to give a member of the staff an opportunity to show that he knew as much about practical mechanics as some people who made that a business.

A member of the party in speaking of the incident said: "It was on one of those days when the whole country was sweltering and when it seemed that no one had energy enough to think. We had made ourselves as comfortable as a temperature of 101 degrees would permit, no one wore any more clothing than was absolutely necessary, conversation as to the state of the thermometer was tabooed, and as we bowled along northward and homeward, the hope of meeting a cold wave or the edge of one or anything that would offer relief was uppermost in the minds of all.

"Just as our train of six cars reached the Bull Run battlefield and when that fact rather stimulated the wilted passengers and caused them to notice things, our train stopped with a jolt and everybody knew that something was wrong. Accoutred as we were we climbed from the cars," continued the story-teller, "and stood around as people usually do on such occasions. Some one said that an eccentric had broken or something like that. Presently some one said, pointing toward the group which stood about the engineer: 'Look at Astor.' There stood Colonel Astor clad in the lightest kind of a feather-weight costume, and his yellow suspenders were hanging down his back. It was not long before he had the whole party as an audience, while he explained to the engineer how the engine could be made to run. The experienced mechanic was at first inclined to laugh at the advice which the slender young man volunteered, but presently he became impressed with the fact that he was talking to a man who was well acquainted with a locomotive. He acted on his suggestion, and within a short time our train started away from Bull Run. We reached Alexandria in good shape, and if you had asked any one aboard the special: 'Who mended the engine?' the answer would have been: 'Colonel Astor,'"

A CHALLENGE

To the Contra Costa Water Company, Oakland:

Some time ago I had occasion to make a microscopical analysis of the water furnished to the city of Oakland by your company, coming from Lakes Temescal and Chabot.

At your instance I am informed this analysis has been questioned and my reputation placed in a doubtful position.

In order that I may prove to your satisfaction and to that of the general public of the city of Oakland, the absolute correctness of my conclusions that the water supplied by your company IS UNFIT FOR HUMAN CONSUMPTION, I now make the following proposition:

I will meet any expert appointed by you and proceed to Lakes Temescal and Chabot, where we will procure samples of water from each lake, under the usual precautions taken relative to any analysis under dispute. Having obtained the samples, we will proceed to some proper place in the city of Oakland, fitted up as a laboratory, to be selected by your expert and myself—your expert to provide the necessary material for his investigation, and I will do likewise; both investigations to be conducted simultaneously and in the presence of each other. And daily upon leaving the operating room we will seal it up with the dual seals of the experts and place a watchman in charge, that there may be no opportunity for fraud or chicanery by anybody.

The expense of these investigations to be mutual, each side to pay their own expert and any extra expenses to be divided. I will undertake to establish without cavil the absolute correctness of my previous analysis of the waters from Lakes Temescal and Chabot, whereby it was proven without the reason of any doubt to unbiased people that SAID WATERS FROM LAKES TEMESCAL AND CHABOT ARE ABSOLUTELY UNWHOLESOME, UNHEALTHY AND UNFIT FOR HUMAN CONSUMPTION.

In event of your refusing to accept or consider this challenge I shall make a proposition to the authorities of Oakland to name a committee, that I may establish to it the correctness of my previous conclusions regarding the unfitness for human consumption of the water which comes from either Lake Temescal or Chabot.

Respectfully,
THOMAS BOWHILL,
F. R. C. V. S. F. R. P. S. Edinb.

MONDAY.....NOVEMBER 4, 1895

At the general election on the 5th of November New York will vote on the question whether $9,000 000 shall be expended in enlarging the facilities of her canal system. If the vote is favorable it will follow almost to a certainty that electricity will be employed for towage in the canal. By that means it is believed that the freight capacity of the canals will be doubled; and the ship canal project will be dropped.

The St Paul on her first trip across the Atlantic failed to make the speed of the sister ship St. Louis. But for twenty-four hours the former ship maintained an average speed of 21½ miles an hour. For a new ship with engines not yet working smoothly that rate of speed ought to satisfy reasonable people. A few years ago 21 miles an hour was a long way beyond the speed capacity of any ship afloat.

While the French have assumed a protectorate over Madagascar the Hovas are allowed a nominal sovereignty. The Queen resides in her palace at the capital. It is not outright annexation; but it is near enough to become absolute by taking one more step In the treaty of 1875 France was given the sole right to represent Madagascar abroad. There is now the additional right to supervise the internal government of the island.

The Star of Ohio Men.

Ohio men have always been fortunate politically. Harrison was born in Ohio and had a run of good luck for the President, with a turn of the tide on the succeeding canvass There is an undercurrent of belief that, being an Ohio man by birth, his luck will turn in his favar next year. Now John Sherman was an Ohio man, and reached every important office but that of President. That ought to be enough for any man from the Buckeye State; but it is not McKinley is to the manner born. Ohio is the name to conjure with. Just how this success is attained is not easily explained

Of course when the Ohio man wants anything in the way of office he goes right after it and generally gets it. But so do men from other States seek office, with the difference that they don't so often get it Hayes never would have been President if he had not been an Ohio man. Nor would Chase have been Chief Justice. True, he aspired to be President, but all the aspirants from that State cannot fill this one office General Grant was born in Ohio and stepped into the highest office for two terms. Garfield reached the same prize, while any number of Ohio men have had places in the Cabinet. McKinley and Harrison are both on the Presidential track, while Reed will have to make the race for the nomination without the flavor of Ohio soil on his boots. We shall see what luck there is for Ohio men next year.

The Man Who Said Too Much.

Robert T. Lincoln's recent declaration that he could conceive no greater misfortune could befall him than to become President of the United States is provoking not a little criticism. Of course one in that office will have a great many trials and vexations; not the least of these will come from the place hunters. The Philadelphia Times notes the fact that not a single delegate from Illinois to any convention ever favored Robert Lincoln's candidacy for President. If a candidate cannot carry his own State he would have little chance in a National Convention. John Sherman could never obtain the support of the entire delegation from Ohio, and therefore never secured the nomination. These points are well made:

"These deliverances from the son of Abraham Lincoln explain why the prestige of his father's great name has not fallen upon him as a possible successor to his father's distinction as an American ruler. Abraham Lincoln had many attributes of greatness, but the one that was most conspicuous was his devotion to the people of the whole country; and so far from regarding their importunities as pestering him to death he ever welcomed the people, heard their counsels however crude or wise, and was governed by them in the determination of the gravest questions of national policy ever decided by any nation of the earth.

"It is evident that Robert T. Lincoln is not thus in touch with the American people, and that explains why he is not in touch with the people of his own city and State who, while reverencing the name he bears almost to the extent of idolatry, never lisp the name of the son as worthy of the high honors attained by his father. Mr. Lincoln is a most estimable, upright and generally sensible man, but his failure to put himself in touch with the people who worship his honored name, has made him an impossible candidate for the Presidency; and he doubtless accepts the inevitable in declaring that he views with utter abhorence the mention of his name for the highest civil trust of the world."

If Lincoln were nominated he would find it very inconvenient to neutralize the force of his own declarations. The fate of his illustrious father may serve

The Elections Tomorrow.

There will be elections tomorrow in thirteen States. These, coming a year before the Presidential election, will have more than a local interest as to some of the States. In New York a number of important officers are to be elected, but no Governor. The interest centers principally in the election of a Secretary of State, Controller, Treasurer, Attorney General, judges of the Supreme Court and an Associate Judge of the Court of Appeals. One of the most important State issues is that for an appropriation of $9,000,000 to improve the canals. A Senate and Assembly will be elected for the first time from the new districts designated by the constitution. It is believed that the State as a whole will go Republican.

In Ohio a full State ticket is to be elected The incoming Legislature will elect a Senator in the place of Brice. There are five tickets in the field. There is hardly a doubt that the Republican ticket will prevail by a very large majority. In that State there is a more distinct marshalling of forces for the Presidential election next year than in any other State McKinley, the present Governor, and Campbell, the Democratic nominee, are both candidates for a Presidential nomination It is probable that the Democratic ticket will show gains over the election a year ago, when the Republicans had a plurality of 137,000.

In Maryland there is a hot fight over the State tickets which reaches over to Senator Gorman, with some prospect that the Republican ticket will prevail on account of the strong opposition to Gorman. In Massachusetts there are also five tickets in the field. Greenhalge, the Republican candidate for Governor, was elected a year ago by a plurality exceeding 60,000 There is little doubt that he will be re-elected by a large majority.

In Pennsylvania it is an off year in politics. A State Treasurer and a number of judges are to be elected. The Republican governor was elected last year by the enormous majority of 241,000 It is not likely that the State ticket will prevail by any such majority this year. New Jersey elects a full State ticket. The chances are in favor of the election of a Democratic Governor. In Kentucky hot politics have been the order of the day. There are four tickets in the field, with an even chance that the Republicans may win. The Legislature to be elected will elect a Federal Senator to succeed Blackburn. In Utah the election will be one of special interest. There is the question of adopting a constitution preparatory to admission to the Union A full State ticket is to be voted. Local questions are uppermost. The chances seem to be in favor of the success of the Republican ticket.

In Iowa the election will have more than a local interest. Senator Allison is a candidate for a Presidential nomination. The Legislature to be elected will choose a Senator to succeed Allison. A full State ticket is to be elected. In Kansas a Chief Justice is to be elected. Very little interest has been manifested in this election In Nebraska the most important State officer to be elected this year is a Justice of the Supreme Court. The Democrats seem to have an even chance of electing their ticket In Virginia and Mississippi the Democratic ticket will of course be elected. This forecast on the eve of the elections may be subject to some revisions tomorrow.

All Aboard for San Francisco.

While the metropolis of the Pacific coast may not be chosen for either of the National Conventions to be held next year, a great many good words have been uttered for the proposition. The entire country knows today that San Francisco is a candidate for that honor. Her advantages are freely discussed everywhere.

The New York Sun makes some timely hints. "A trip across the United States on one of the transcontinental railroads, with curtains securely pulled up and with each delegate sitting near a window, would be instructive, especially to those Eastern delegates whose knowledge of mountainous regions is based on their observation of the Berkshire hills, or those patriotic Southern Republicans who travel in a land of corn and cotton on Southern accommodation trains, warranted to exceed in scheduled speed twenty miles an hour.

"The glorious climate of California! The splendid city of the Golden Gate! The tollsome railroad trip, across the Rockies and Sierras, among peaks and across valleys, ravines and rivers! What instruction to those Republican delegates who still regard Buffalo as a Western outpost, and Denver as on the other side of the world!"

And then the Sun wants to know if a comprehensive knowledge of the extent, resources and all other material advantages of the boundless West can only be acquired by crossing to San Francisco. "Why should not Democratic delegates derive from the trip the same benefit as Republicans? A transcontinental journey by all means for the better instruction of those who are now shaping the foreign policy of the United States Government. If by a railroad ride from seashore to seashore these Cuckoos could be brought to a thorough understanding of the power and importance of the American republic, and the need of defending the rights and protecting the interests of Americans at home and abroad, great gain might accrue and a true and more distinctly American foreign policy might be the result.

"All aboard for San Francisco on the Democratic limited!"

An Eastern paper records the culinary tastes of John W. Mackay. "He gets little or nothing in the way of personal comfort from his millions. His digestion and his tastes cause him to live simply and even coarsely. Fine wines and delicately cooked foods are not for him. His culinary tastes were illustrated by a lunch which he gave to Mr. Hermann Oelrichs and some other friends before their departure for Alaska. It consisted of clam chowder, corned beef and cabbage, squash pie and buttermilk." Well, let the culinary critic put his finger on a single dish here enumerated that is not altogether a good and wholesome one. If he can't do it let him hereafter hold his peace. No millionaire is under any obligation to invite the gout by a daily surfeit of rich food.

NOTES AND EXCERPTS.

Felix Faure, President of France, is a great first-nighter at the Parisian theatres He is a well-equipped critic and owns a library that is full of valuable editions of the classic French drama.

The Hope diamond, which the trustees of Lord Francis Hope's estate are desirous of selling, is valued at $10,000. It is rather an ugly stone, the size of a hen's egg and blue in color, and is supposed to be the blue diamond which Louis XIV bought in 1668. This diamond was lost in 1792.

The claims of politics for which he once sacrificed a Harvard professorship, have led Dr. William Everett into the lists once more, this time as a candidate for the Massachusetts Legislature. It is to represent the city of Quincy that he aspires, and it is there that the preacher-poet-Congressman-teacher is better known than perhaps anywhere else, for he was for several years Master of Adams Academy. Dr. Everett has many foibles and not a few eccentricities, but he is a talented man—one of the best orators and one of the best Latin scholars of the old-fashioned kind in the Commonwealth.

Henri Rochefort is now telling the stirring story of his career through the columns of a Paris journal, and it is said that an American publishing house has guaranteed him $20,00 for the exclusive rights of publishing his memoirs in the United States. In addition he is to receive one franc for each volume of his reminiscences sold on this side of the Atlantic In the initial installment of his memoirs Rochefort says that the first great man he met was Lamartine, and his first love was Mlle. Farguell, the actress, for whom he conceived a violent passion when he was only five years old

Madagascar is a tropical island as big as New England, the Middle States, Ohio and Indiana, and as the French have done what would be equivalent to landing at Portland, Me., and marching to Williamsport, Penn., through a tropical, fever-stricken jungle, it can scarcely surprise anyone that the job has been a hard one. Now that Antananarivo is taken the war is over, to the profound relief of the French ministry. Madagascar, it must be remembered, is not inhabited by a single people struggling for liberty, but a number of tribes ruled in brutal and despotic fashion by a single tribe, the Hova. Now that the forces of this tribe are scattered the French will have no difficulty in establishing themselves in the island but that offered by the climate. This is a very serious obstacle, but it can be met and there will probably be little more fighting, and so far 100 men have died of fever to one fallen in battle.—Philadelphia Press.

Wilhelm II has caused the imprisonment of another editor for criticising one of his speeches. Vain Kaiser! fool sir man, who requires every German editor to shout his praise when he makes a speech He not only misses lots of fun, but he loses all the advantages of criticism He would certainly make better speeches than he has ever made if he gave the critics a show, permitted them to point out the faults in his oratory and carefully studied all their utterances. By so doing his voice would be tempered, his presumption reduced, his swagger modified, and his rhetoric improved. Every Kaiser ought to keep a squad of critics in his pay.—New York Sun.

Habits of the Manatee.

The manatee belongs to a mammalian order called Sireunia, or sea cows, which contains only three species—our manatee, that of West Africa, and the dugong of Australia. As its clumsy form suggests, it is an animal of quiet, and even sluggish habits, entirely harmless and easily taken when once its haunts are known. When at home its food consists of tender aquatic plants and grasses, always eaten under water, and its presence is generally revealed by the bits of broken stems and grass which escape and float to the surface above where it is feeding.

In captivity it feeds on cabbage, lettuce, the leaves of the canna, celery tops, watercress, spinach, and also certain kinds of ocean seaweed. In the St. Lucie river its favorite food is a luxuriant, trailing, aquatic grass called manatee grass, in which the manatee finds not only good food, but good hiding-places from its human enemies.

The bones of this animal are massive, solid and quite heavy (some hunters will tell you its bones are "solid ivory") and its skin is as thick and tough as that of a hippopotamus. I have seen very good canes made of strips of manatee skin, twisted like a lightning-rod and dried. Its flesh is very good, and to me it tastes like lean pork. Curiously enough, this strange creature actually sheds its outer skin every year, as does a serpent. The living specimens that from time to time have been captured and kept for exhibition in Demerara, Philadelphia, New York and London have in all cases been of small or medium size, varying in length from four to seven feet. The one which was shown in the Central Park Menagerie in 1873 was 6 fee 9½ inches in length and weighed 450 pounds.—St. Nicholas.

Finery for Women.

Navy blue has probed to be, as the manufacturers predicted, to be a very fashionable color, especially in wools. A street gown has skirt and sleeves of a navy blue angora wool—that is to say, the angora wool cloth, which has a very soft surface, with fine hairs on it. The waist is fitted and basque shaped, and is made of fancy velvet and satin, with pleated coat-tails in vest, which is formed of heavy lace jabots.

Another blue cloth gown has the skirt trimmed with two rows of heavy black braid, one at the hem, and the other about twelve inches above the top row forming a closed leaf pattern at every seam The fitted waist has three jacket tail pieces fastened to it, one in the middle of the back and the other on each side These are pleated and trimmed with black braid and adjusted to a waist with a line of braid. The waist turns away in front, jacket fashion, and shows a waistcoat of white corduroy velvet fastening double-breasted, with two rows of small gilt buttons. There is a double collar of the white, arranged something in the manner of a rouche. It is a little clumsy, but the rest of the gown is "chic" and charming.—New York Tribune

ASTOR MENDED THE ENGINE.

He Surprised His Companions With His Knowlege of Mechanics.

An echo of the trip made by Governor Morton and his staff to the southern battlefields was made a few days ago It appears that on the return trip the special train bearing the Governor, his staff, the Legislative Committee and some invited guests met a mishap which served to give a member of the staff an opportunity to show that he knew as much about practical mechanics as some people who made that a business.

A member of the party in speaking of the incident said "It was on one of those days when the whole country was sweltering and when it seemed that no one had energy enough to think. We had made ourselves as comfortable as a temperature of 101 degrees would permit, no one wore any more clothing than was absolutely necessary, conversation as to the state of the thermometer was tabooed and as we bowled along northward and homeward, the hope of meeting a cold wave or the edge of one or anything that would offer relief was uppermost in the minds of all.

"Just as our train of six cars reached the Bull Run battlefield and when that fact rather stimulated the wilted passengers and caused them to notice things, our train stopped with a jolt and everybody knew that something was wrong Accosted as we were we climbed from the cars," continued the story-teller, "and stood around as people usually do on such occasions. Some one said that an eccentric had broken or something like that Presently some one said pointing toward the group which stood about the engineer, 'Look at Astor' There stood Colonel Astor clad in the lightest kind of a feather-weight costume, and his yellow suspenders were hanging down his back. It was not long before he had the whole party as an audience, while he explained to the engineer how the engine could be made to run. The experienced mechanic was at first inclined to laugh at the advice which the slender young man volunteered, but presently he became impressed with the fact that he was talking to a man who was well acquainted with a locomotive He acted on his suggestion, and within a short time our train started away from Bull Run. We reached Alexandria in good shape, and if you had asked any one aboard the special, 'Who mended the engine?' the answer would have been: 'Colonel Astor,'"

A CHALLENGE

To the Contra Costa Water Company, Oakland:

Some time ago I had occasion to make a microscopical analysis of the water furnished to the city of Oakland by your company, coming from Lakes Temescal and Chabot.

At your instance I am informed this analysis has been questioned and my reputation placed in a doubtful position.

In order that I may prove to your satisfaction and to that of the general public of the city of Oakland, the absolute correctness of my conclusions that the water supplied by your compauy IS UNFIT FOR HUMAN CONSUMPTION, I now make the following proposition:

I will meet any expert appointed by you and proceed to Lakes Temescal and Chabot, where we will procure samples of water from each lake, under the usual precautions taken relative to any analysis under dispute. Having obtained the samples, we will proceed to some proper place in the city of Oakland, fitted up as a laboratory, to be selected by your expert and myself—your expert to provide the necessary material for his investigation, and I will do likewise; both investigations to be conducted simulataneously and in the presence of each other. And daily upon leaving the operating room we will seal it up with the dual seals of the experts and place a watchman in charge, that there may be no opportunity for fraud or chicanery by anybody.

The expense of these investigations to be mutual, each side to pay their own expert and any extra expenses to be divided. I will undertake to establish without cavil the absolute correctness of my previous analysis of the waters from Lakes Temescal and Chabot, whereby it was proven without the reason of any doubt to unbiased people that SAID WATERS FROM LAKES TEMESCAL AND CHABOT ARE ABSOLUTELY UNWHOLESOME, UNHEALTHY AND UNFIT FOR HUMAN CONSUMPTION.

In event of your refusing to accept or consider this challenge I shall make a proposition to the authorities of Oakland to name a committee, that I may establish to it the correctness of my previous conclusions regarding the unfitness for human consumption of the water which comes from either Lake Temescal or Chabot.

Respectfully,
THOMAS BOWHILL,
F. R. C. V. S. F. R. P. S.

A Dress Rehearsal Given of the Approaching Big Wedding.

Miss Vanderbilt Will Become an English Duchess Next Wednesday.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—The Duke of Marlborough cut his visit short at Washington and was back in town before day break this morning.

Several important considerations hastened his return, one of which was a rehearsal of the wedding set down for some time this afternoon.

It is also rumored that the future Duchess is suffering from a slight indisposition, owing to the worry attendant upon preparations for the grand wedding Wednesday, and the Duke could not remain away from her any longer.

Police are on duty at the corner of Seventy-second street continuously to prevent annoyance to the Vanderbilt family. But they cannot keep the people away as long as there is any chance of getting a glimpse of the Duke or his future bride, or, in fact, any member of the Vanderbilt family.

When Miss Consuelo and her mother go out for a drive detectives follow the carriage, while two brawny policemen mount guard on the sidewalk to keep the crowd of curiosity-seekers at a distance.

The bridal party after the rehearsal today will repair to the house of Mrs. Vanderbilt, where they will look over the wedding presents and later will attend a dinner given by Mrs. Brickholst Cutting to the bridesmaids.

The Duke of Malborough, with his best man, Hon. Ivor C. Guest, and ushers will be among the guests

The Duke will present souvenirs to the bridesmaids in the shape of diamond and turquoise brooches

They will have a fine musical entertainment several evenings during the week, and goods of various kinds and descriptions on sale for the benefit of the church. No "grab bags," lotteries or anything of the kind will be allowed.

One of the most social and complete surprises occurred last Wednesday evening at the residence of E. O. Melcher, 121 Chestnut street. It being his forty-sixth birthday, about fifty of his most intimate friends had been called together by his daughter, and by her strategy a most complete surprise was given to her father on his arrival home from his usual vocation that evening The house was handsomely decorated with rare and beautiful plants arranged by tasteful hands. The evening was spent in social conversation, interspersed with song, musical rendition and dramatic reading. The piece rendered by Mrs Freshee and Miss Milcher was a masterpiece of itself. Paul Daniels and Mark, in their usual happy manner, pleased all with their guitar and mandolin. By 10 30 covers had been laid for all, and led by the host the party sat down to a tempting repast. After satisfying the inner wants those who wished tripped the light fantastic to beautiful music until the small hours appeared.

GOLD FOR EVERYBODY.

Oaklanders Strike It Rich in Montana Mines.

George De Golia, W. D. Heaton, Al. Sullwell and P. H. Cameron have returned from Montana, where they have been looking after their mining interests. Their property is about 75 miles from Butte city and sixteen miles from Norris, the nearest railroad station.

They have named the corporation the Bald Mountain Mining Company and several other Oaklanders are interested with them. The ore is assaying very high, and when the mill which is now being erected on the property is completed the stockholders expect to find themselves millionaires.

Ran Into the Ice.

The steamer Jeanie, loaded with coal for Taylor & Co., arrived yesterday from Nanaimo. The boat was built by Captain J. N. Knowles as a transport and tender for the whalers and this is her first trip as a coal trader. Her bows still bear the marks of her last encounters with the ice. On her last trip to Herschle Island with supplies for the whalers that had wintered there, she found the ice drifting in great quantities and in driving her way through it was somewhat damaged.

THURSDAY, THE 28TH.

Thanksgiving Day Ordered in a Presidential Message.

Grover Speaks of Some Reasons for Observing the Usual Festival.

By Associated Press to The Tribune

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—President Cleveland today issued a proclamation designating Thursday, November 28th, as Thanksgiving Day.

The proclamation is as follows.

"The constant goodness and forbearance of Almighty God, which has been vouchsafed the American people during the year just past call for their sincere teknowledgment of devout gratitude

"To the end, therefore, that we may with thankful hearts unite in extolling the loving care of Our Heavenly Father, I, Grover Cleveland, President of the United States, do hereby appoint and set apart Thursday, the 28th day of the present month of November, as a day of thanksgiving and prayer, to be kept and observed by all our people.

"On that day let us forego our usual occupation and in our accustomed places of worship join in rendering thanks to th Giver of every good and perfect gift for the bounteous returns that have rewarded our labors in the fields and busy marts of trade, for the peace and order that has prevailed throughout the land, for our protection from pestilence and dire calamity, and for other blessings that have been showered upon us from an open hand,

"And with our thanksgiving let us humbly beseech the Lord to so incline the hearts of our people unto Him that He will not leave us nor forsake us as a nation, but will continue to us His mercy and protecting care, guiding us in the path of national prosperity and happiness, enduing us with rectitude and virtue and keeping alive within us the patriotic love for free institutions which has been given us as our national heritage.

"And let us also on the day of our thanksgiving especially remember the poor and needy, and by deed of charity let us show the sincerity of our gratitude."

AMUSEMENTS.

The course will include some of the sterling attractions of the musical and literary world. The programme for the initial entertainment will be given by Miss Laura McManis, the world-famed whistling soloist, Miss Cornelia May, dramatic reader, and Miss Julia Phelps, a pianist and harp soloist of eminence. Season tickets are now ready.

"THE COAST GUARD."

A scream, a short struggle and a woman is thrown from the dredger into a large tank of real water by her husband, and a few seconds later is rescued by a heroic young life-saver, who plunges in after her. This is one of many strong situations in the "Coast Guard," which commences tonight. This is not the most agreeable weather in which to take a forced plunge into cold water, but the action requires it and two shivering performers will be seen before the footlights tonight thoroughly wet and wrapped in blankets. A number of other very strong effects are shown, and melo-drama devotees will find sufficient sensational material at the Oakland to thoroughly satisfy them.

Budd and the A. P. A.

And now comes forward the Stockton Record and declares that Governor Budd's appointment of Mr. Jeter to the vacancy left by the death of Mr. Millard is "a virtual slap in the face" of the American Protective Association, to which it claims Mr. Budd is "under known obligations" for more than enough votes to elect him—many times more. It is said that Mr. Jeter's wife is a Catholic, and consequently the A. P. A. vote went for Mr. Millard, and that the A P. A. also threw their strength for Mr. Budd because Mr. Estee would not discharge his Catholic typewriter. The Record is a recognized organ of the American Protective Association as far as a daily newspaper can be expected to take part in a religious controversy. It says:

"The Governor knows his own business best. So does the American Protective Association. When each does business again at the polls the incident may considerably influence the result. If Mr. Budd has been ill advised he is still, in the eyes of the Association, responsible for what will be termed a breach of trust, if not of actual perfidy."

It is much to be regretted that the religious beliefs of candidates for high office should become controlling considerations in the minds of any considerable number of voters, but at the present this seems to be the case. It is going to be interesting to note what effect this is going to have in the national election next year.—Sacramento Bee.

Geo. Swing's Funeral.

The remains of George H. Swing, who died a few days ago at Swing Station, near Sacramento, were buried yesterday at Mountain View Cemetery. The deceased was formerly a resident of Alameda.

Killed Himself.

D. C. Biestler, a yard night clerk, was found dead in the bushes at Golden Gate Park Saturday afternoon. He had evidently shot himself, though his friends cannot think of any reason for his doing so. He was a single man and disappeared ten days ago. His father was at one time a Supreme Justice of the City of Philadelphia.

CHAT OF COUNTY TOWNS.

Notes Showing Progress and Enterprise in Every Direction.

Personal Mention and Business Notes Gleaned in the Interior.

Clement Miller of this city was a candidate for the position of inspector of the work of laying the new sewer in San Mateo, but a resident of that town named Charles Smith was elected. Smith agreed to work for $3 a day while Miller and another aspirant named Vaughan asked $4 a day or $100 a month.

Last Friday night Rev. Mr. Rice of this city delivered an illustrated lecture in I. O. O. F. hall, Alvarado, for the benefit of the Presbyterian church at that place.

The Haywards planing mill will hereafter be run by H P Jessen and Mr. Pryor. E. W. Merwin has sold his interest in it to Pryor, owing to ill health.

LIVERMORE

The Herald of last Saturday has an article on the High school at that place in which the following appears:

"It is gratifying to know that Livermore valley has ever been alive to the importance of maintaining her schools The outlying schools are sustained in a most creditable manner. The district High school located in Livermore is an honor of the whole valley. It occupies a sightly location in ample grounds that are taking on the beauty of a park, set as they are with lustily growing olives, peppers and palms Principal Connell, with his assistants, the Misses Moore, Hogg and Thayer, is conducting between fifty and sixty students through courses of study genuinely belonging to High school work, and are working with zeal and conscience to bring the institution up to the high standard required by the State University. Nine districts are harmoniously organized to maintain this Union High School, as follows. Livermore, Inman, Vista, Townsend, Mocho, May, Green, Harris and Highland."

Next Thursday the Herald will make its award in the butter contest, which it inaugurated a week ago for the purpose of showing that good butter may be made in the Livermore valley and thus show up the folly of importing butter from abroad Touching this importation, the Herald says:

"This butter question is no trifling matter The idea that hundreds of dollars should be shipped into Livermore every month, into one of the largest valleys of all California, is simply shameful. The Herald asks the merchants of Livermore, as well as the farmers themselves, to think seriously of it. Not only the merchants and the farmers, but the consuming public generally, should be awakened to the importance of giving all possible encouragement to the wealth-producing energies and resources of our home people. Let the merchant who ships his twenty-dollar pieces away to Point Reyes for coast butter remember that he is draining his own coffers. The gold that goes out of the valley for this foreign butter never returns. But by the customs of the local trade nearly every dollar that the merchant pays for home butter is immediately yielded back to him for shoes for the children, calico for the wife and overalls for the old man."

The teachers have organized a society which they call the 'Teachers' Round Table," and which will hold meetings on the first and fourth Mondays of each month. The object is to pursue a regular course of professional reading and study along pedagogical and psychological lines.

Chief A. G Benzell has appointed the following aides in the fire department: First assistant, A. W. Feidler; foreman of engine, George Beck; foreman of hose cart, P. H. McVicar; foreman of hook and ladder, Chas Bradshaw.

The Misses Hobart of East Oakland gave a fine entertainment in the First Presbyterian church last Friday night.

PLEASANTON.

The Times is reading lectures to the people of Pleasanton on the necessity of harmony and in its last issue has the following:

"An exchange rises to make a remark that fits the case of Pleasanton to a dot' 'Shall we advance or not?' Now is the time for us to make our mark; shall we do it? Remember it is the people that make a town, not its climate or surroundings. If we pull together, if we labor early and late, then our town will grow and our property become of greater value."

Rev. Mr. Winning has commenced a series of religious meetings in the M. E. church. The meetings will be held nightly until further notice.

Lime skum from the sugar factory at Alvarado is being utilized for fertilizing purposes in the hop yards in the neighborhood of Pleasanton.

The dredger in the canal injured its dipper in extracting a root from the bottom of the stream and had to order another one by telegraph.

On Friday evening of last week a number of invited guests congregated at the new residence of W. W. Cameron, north of Pleasanton and enjoyed a few hours in merry-making and dancing.

SPOILED A CLAM-BAKE.

The Rain Yesterday Broke Up a Merry Party.

Down came the rain and the clams are yet unbaked. A clambake at G. B. Daniel's ranch was planned for yesterday morning but the elements spoiled it. The guests were invited, the gay party started out for the ranch in the early morning, the clams were willing to be sacrificed, but the clouds burst and drove the party home.

At 4 o'clock yesterday morning a big four-horse drag containing the invited guests, left Mr. Daniel's home near the cemetery and drove to the scene of the festivities. The party consisted of the well known Broadway book dealer and his family, Webb N. Pearce and family, Orrin B. Culver and family, Mr. Houghton and others

Barely had a start been made when the rain came down in torrents and a more miserable party never was seen. They soon became so clammy that they lost all desire for clams and decided to return. Mr. Daniels was in a conveyance by himself. He is somewhat superstitious and refused to turn back, so he kept on, driving all around Lake Chabot, and finally joined the party at Mr. Houghton's place at Fruitvale, where an impromptu clambake was enjoyed.

TO AVOID ANY HITCH.

A Dress Rehearsal Given of the Approaching Big Wedding.

Miss Vanderbilt Will Become an English Duchess Next Wednesday.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—The Duke of Marlborough cut his visit short at Washington and was back in town before day break this morning.

Several important considerations hastened his return, one of which was a rehearsal of the wedding set down for some time this afternoon.

It is also rumored that the future Duchess is suffering from a slight indisposition, owing to the worry attendant upon preparations for the grand wedding Wednesday, and the Duke could not remain away from her any longer.

Police are on duty at the corner of Seventy-second street continuously to prevent annoyance to the Vanderbilt family. But they cannot keep the people away as long as there is any chance of getting a glimpse of the Duke or his future bride, or, in fact, any member of the Vanderbilt family.

When Miss Consuelo and her mother go out for a drive detectives follow the carriage, while two brawny policemen mount guard on the sidewalk to keep the crowd of curiosity-seekers at a distance.

The bridal party after the rehearsal today will repair to the house of Mrs. Vanderbilt, where they will look over the wedding presents and later will attend a dinner given by Mrs. Brickhoist Cutting to the bridesmaids.

The Duke of Malborough, with his best man, Hon. Ivor C. Guest, and ushers will be among the guests.

The Duke will present souvenirs to the bridesmaids in the shape of diamond and turquoise brooches.

The Alumnae Association of Mills College will give a concert on the 29th of this month at Beethoven hall, which will be quite a society event. Six young ladies dressed in white and carrying gold batons, thus representing the school colors, will be selected from the alumnae of the institution to act as ushers. Besides the musical talent of the seminary the California Quartette will participate in the programme.

The wedding of Miss Anna C. Munch of Livermore and William L. Tibbett of Kernville took place at the home of the bride last Wednesday. Rev. J. R. Wolfe performed the ceremony. After a brief wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Tibbett will reside in Kernville.

Cards have been issued for the marriage of Miss Evangeline Wade, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. K. H. Wade, and Dr. Edward Strong Bogert, Jr., U. S. N. The ceremony will take place at St. Paul's church in San Diego on November 11th and promises to be a very fashionable affair.

An elaborate dinner was given at the Metropole last night in honor of the new proprietor, R. M. Briare. It was a very delightful affair. The dining room was decorated tastefully and the meal was all that could be desired. After ample justice had been done to the menu the guests resorted to the parlors and passed the remainder of the evening most enjoyably.

The Twenty-fourth avenue Methodists expect to hold a grand fair and bazaar during the week ending December 21st, somewhere in the vicinity of Broadway. They will have a fine musical entertainment several evenings during the week, and goods of various kinds and descriptions on sale for the benefit of the church. No "grab bags," lotteries or anything of the kind will be allowed.

One of the most social and complete surprises occurred last Wednesday evening at the residence of E. O. Melcher, 121 Chestnut street. It being his forty-sixth birthday, about fifty of his most intimate friends had been called together by his daughter, and by her strategy a most complete surprise was given to her father on his arrival home from his usual vocation that evening. The house was handsomely decorated with rare and beautiful plants arranged by tasteful hands. The evening was spent in social conversation, interspersed with song, musical rendition and dramatic reading. The piece rendered by Mrs. Freshee and Miss Milcher was a masterpiece of itself. Paul Daniels and Mark, in their usual happy manner, pleased all with their guitar and mandolin. By 10 30 covers had been laid for all, and led by the host the party sat down to a tempting repast. After satisfying the inner wants those who wished tripped the light fantastic to beautiful music until the small hours appeared.

GOLD FOR EVERYBODY.

Oaklanders Strike It Rich in Montana Mines.

George De Golia, W. D. Heaton, Al. Stilwell and P. H. Cameron have returned from Montana, where they have been looking after their mining interests. Their property is about 75 miles from Butte city and sixteen miles from Norris, the nearest railroad station.

They have named the corporation the Bald Mountain Mining Company and several other Oaklanders are interested with them. The ore is assaying very high, and when the mill which is now being erected on the property is completed the stockholders expect to find themselves millionaires.

Ran Into the Ice.

The steamer Jeanie, loaded with coal for Taylor & Co., arrived yesterday from Nanaimo. The boat was built by Captain J. N. Knowles as a transport and tender for the whalers and this is her first trip as a coal trader. Her bows still bear the marks of her last encounters with the ice. On her last trip to Herschle Island with supplies for the whalers that had wintered there she found the ice drifting in great quantities and in driving her way through it was somewhat damaged.

THURSDAY, THE 28TH.

Thanksgiving Day Ordered in a Presidential Message.

Grover Speaks of Some Reasons for Observing the Usual Festival.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—President Cleveland today issued a proclamation designating Thursday, November 28th, as Thanksgiving Day.

The proclamation is as follows:

"The constant goodness and forbearance of Almighty God which has been vouchsafed the American people during the year just past call for their sincere acknowledgment of devout gratitude.

"To the end, therefore, that we may with thankful hearts unite in extolling the loving care of Our Heavenly Father, I, Grover Cleveland, President of the United States, do hereby appoint and set apart Thursday, the 28th day of the present month of November, as a day of thanksgiving and prayer, to be kept and observed by all our people.

"On that day let us forego our usual occupation and in our accustomed places of worship join in rendering thanks to the giver of every good and perfect gift for the bounteous returns that have rewarded our labors in the fields and busy marts of trade, for the peace and order that has prevailed throughout the land for our protection from pestilence and dire calamity, and for other blessings that have been showered upon us from an open hand.

"And with our thanksgiving let us humbly beseech the Lord to so incline the hearts of our people unto Him that He will not leave us nor forsake us as a nation, but will continue to us His mercy and protecting care, guiding us in the path of national prosperity and happiness, enduing us with rectitude and virtue and keeping alive within us the patriotic love for free institutions which has been given us as our national heritage.

"And let us also on the day of our thanksgiving especially remember the poor and needy, and by deed of charity let us show the sincerity of our gratitude."

AMUSEMENTS.

Good Entertainments Provided for the Present Week.

The Bragg & Muller star course of entertainments will be inaugurated next Friday evening at the Macdonough theater by the celebrated artist trio. The course will include some of the sterling attractions of the musical and literary world. The programme for the initial entertainment will be given by Miss Laura McManis, the world-famed whistling soloist; Miss Cornelia May, dramatic reader, and Miss Julia Phelps, a pianist and harp soloist of eminence. Season tickets are now ready.

"THE COAST GUARD."

A scream, a short struggle and a woman is thrown from the dredger into a large tank of real water by her husband, and a few seconds later is rescued by a heroic young life-saver, who plunges in after her. This is one of many strong situations in the "Coast Guard," which commences tonight. This is not the most agreeable weather in which to take a forced plunge into cold water, but the action requires it and two shivering performers will be seen before the footlights tonight thoroughly wet and wrapped in blankets. A number of other very strong effects are shown, and melo-drama devotees will find sufficient sensational material at the Oakland to thoroughly satisfy them.

Budd and the A. P. A.

And now comes forward the Stockton Record and declares that Governor Budd's appointment of Mr. Jeter to the vacancy left by the death of Mr. Millard is "a virtual slap in the face" of the American Protective Association, to which it claims Mr. Budd is "under known obligations" for more than enough votes to elect him—many times more. It is said that Mr. Jeter's wife is a Catholic, and consequently the A. P. A. vote went for Mr. Millard, and that the A. P. A. also threw their strength for Mr. Budd because Mr. Estee would not discharge his Catholic typewriter. The Record is a recognized organ of the American Protective Association as far as a daily newspaper can be expected to take part in a religious controversy. It says:

"The Governor knows his own business best. So does the American Protective Association. When each does business again at the polls the incident may considerably influence the result. If Mr. Budd has been ill advised he is still, in the eyes of the Association, responsible for what will be termed a breach of trust, if not of actual perfidy."

It is much to be regretted that the religious beliefs of candidates for high office should become controlling considerations in the minds of any considerable number of voters, but at the present this seems to be the case. It is going to be interesting to note what effect this is going to have in the national election next year.—Sacramento Bee.

Geo. Swing's Funeral.

The remains of George H. Swing, who died a few days ago at Swing Station, near Sacramento, were buried yesterday at Mountain View Cemetery. The deceased was formerly a resident of Alameda.

Killed Himself.

D. C. Biestler, a yard night clerk, was found dead in the bushes at Golden Gate Park Saturday afternoon. He had evidently shot himself, though his friends cannot think of any reason for his doing so. He was a single man and disappeared ten days ago. His father was at one time a Supreme Justice of the City of Philadelphia.

CHAT OF COUNTY TOWNS.

Notes Showing Progress and Enterprise in Every Direction.

Personal Mention and Business Notes Gleaned in the Interior.

Clement Miller of this city was a candidate for the position of inspector of the work of laying the new sewer in San Mateo, but a resident of that town named Charles Smith was elected. Smith agreed to work for $3 a day while Miller and another aspirant named Vaughan asked $4 a day or $100 a month.

Last Friday night Rev. Mr. Rice of this city delivered an illustrated lecture in I. O. O. F. hall, Alvarado, for the benefit of the Presbyterian church at that place.

The Haywards planing mill will hereafter be run by H. P. Jessen and Mr. Pryor. E. W. Merwin has sold his interest in it to Pryor, owing to ill health.

J. V. Haley of Haywards has invented a burglar alarm.

LIVERMORE.

The Herald of last Saturday has an article on the High school at that place in which the following appears:

"It is gratifying to know that Livermore valley has ever been alive to the importance of maintaining her schools. The outlying schools are sustained in a most creditable manner. The district high school located in Livermore is an honor of the whole valley. It occupies a sightly location in ample grounds that are taking on the beauty of a park, set as they are with lustily growing olives, pepperia and palms. Principal Connell, with his assistants, the Misses Moore, Hogg and Thayer, is conducting between fifty and sixty students through courses of study genuinely belonging to High school work, and are working with zeal and conscience to bring the institution up to the high standard required by the State University. Nine districts are harmoniously organized to maintain this Union High School, as follows: Livermore, Inman, Vista, Townsend, Mocho, May, Green, Harris and Highland."

Next Thursday the Herald will make its award in the butter contest, which it inaugurated a week ago for the purpose of showing that good butter may be made in the Livermore valley and thus show up the folly of importing butter from abroad. Touching this importation, the Herald says:

"This butter question is no trifling matter. The idea that hundreds of dollars should be shipped into Livermore every month, into one of the largest valleys of all California, is simply shameful. The Herald asks the merchants of Livermore, as well as the farmers themselves, to think seriously of it. Not only the merchants and the farmers, but the consuming public generally, should be awakened to the importance of giving all possible encouragement to the wealth-producing energies and resources of our home people. Let the merchant who ships his twenty-dollar pieces away to Point Reyes for coast butter remember that he is draining his own coffers. The gold that goes out of the valley for this foreign butter never returns. But by the customs of the local trade nearly every dollar that the merchant pays for home butter is immediately yielded back to him for shoes for the children, calico for the wife and overalls for the old man."

The teachers have organized a society which they call the "Teachers' Round Table," and which will hold meetings on the first and fourth Mondays of each month. The object is to pursue a regular course of professional reading and study along pedagogical and psychological lines.

Chief A. G. Benzell has appointed the following aides in the fire department: First assistant, A. W. Foelder; foreman of engine, George Beck, foreman of hose cart, P. H. McVicar; foreman of hook and ladder, Chas. Bradshaw.

The Misses Hobart of East Oakland gave a fine entertainment in the First Presbyterian church last Friday night.

PLEASANTON.

The Times is reading lectures to the people of Pleasanton on the necessity of harmony and in its last issue has the following:

"An exchange rises to make a remark that fits the case of Pleasanton to a dot: 'Shall we advance or not?' Now is the time for us to make our mark; shall we do it? Remember it is the people that make a town, not its climate or surroundings. If we pull together, if we labor early and late, then our town will grow and our property become of greater value."

Rev. Mr. Winning has commenced a series of religious meetings in the M. E. church. The meetings will be held nightly until further notice.

Lime skum from the sugar factory at Alvarado is being utilized for fertilizing purposes in the hop yards in the neighborhood of Pleasanton.

The dredger in the canal injured its dipper in extracting a root from the bottom of the stream and had to order another one by telegraph.

On Friday evening of last week a number of invited guests congregated at the new residence of W. W. Cameron, north of Pleasanton and enjoyed a few hours in merry-making and dancing.

SPOILED A CLAM-BAKE.

The Rain Yesterday Broke Up a Merry Party.

Down came the rain and the clams are yet unbaked. A clambake at G. B. Daniel's ranch was planned for yesterday morning but the elements spoiled it. The guests were invited, the gay party started out for the ranch in the early morning, the clams were willing to be sacrificed, but the clouds burst and drove the party home.

At 4 o'clock yesterday morning a big four-horse drag containing the invited guests, left Mr. Daniel's home near the cemetery and drove to the scene of the festivities. The party consisted of the well known Broadway book dealer and his family, Webb N. Pearce and family, Orrin B. Culver and family, Mr. Houghton and others.

Barely had a start been made when the rain came down in torrents and a more miserable party never was seen. They soon became so clammy that they lost all desire for clams and decided to return. Mr. Daniels was in a conveyance by himself. He is somewhat superstitious and refused to turn back, so he kept on, driving all around Lake Chabot, and finally joined the party at Mr. Houghton's place at Fruitvale, where an impromptu clambake was enjoyed.

A County Hospital Patient Writes Regarding the Institution.

TRUTH OF ITS WORKINGS.

Superintendent, Supervisors and the Staff of Assistants.

GOOD FOOD IS PROVIDED.

Sanitary Needs Are Urgent and the Big Sewer Is Welcomed.

During the past few months there has been considerable discussion, varied as to its sources, in relation to conditions and affairs at the county hospital, and it has occurred to the writer that the general public may be interested in a description of these by an experienced and fair-minded patient recently cured and released from that institution. A county hospital is an institution in which four classes of persons are chiefly interested. These are the superintendent and his staff of assistants, the board of supervisors, the geneal public and the patients, and each of these classes has its rights, duties, privileges and limitations, and each is entitled to careful, just and conscientious consideration.

No writer for the public who is without adequate ability and opportunity to observe and judge of facts and their relations, to acquire correct information, and who is not disposed to be liberal, fair-minded and honest, has any business dealing with this subject, and yet we find that it is either from those who know the least about affairs at the County Infirmary, or from those whose minds are most violently and viciously prejudiced by fancied offense or mischievous malice, that the general public commonly draws what is termed information regarding this institution.

Thus prefaced, it is now in order to discuss the first class of persons mentioned as interested in the hospital, namely the superintendent and staff.

Primarily it should be stated as a fact that stands out prominently to one acquainted with the situation that the position of superintendent at the infirmary is no mere sinecure, no simple "soft snap." There are few, if any, positions in the county, the duties of which are so onerous, complicated and difficult of satisfactory performance.

The most advanced scientific knowledge, the very best remedies and appliances, the highest order of business and administrative ability, the nicest possible discernment as to surrounding conditions, and the keenest, most comprehensive and sympathetic knowledge of human nature and its many phases and vagaries and weaknesses, must all appear in and about a superintendent, in order that the very best results may be expected of him.

Few men are thus endowed, nor are county hospitals generally noted for those conveniences necessary to the highest success, and hence it is not at all wonderful that criticism is often easily possible, especially when the would-be critic is in search of the darkest side.

When Dr. Clark, the present superintendent, assumed control, he found himself confronted with some very difficult problems. In the first place the hospital and the poor house were being run as one institution, the indigent poor and the sick and maimed patients largely eating, sleeping and living together. This plan, notwithstanding the fact that it prevails largely through California and the coast, can never be a success. Not to go into the question at length, let it suffice here to state that anyone can see that merely in the matter of diet the plan is incompatible with success. A person extremely ill, or in a seriously debilitated condition, cannot thrive upon the same food, taken at the same hours, as can men merely incapacitated by old age or some form of decrepitude, and yet this system compels that both these classes fare very much alike.

DR. CLARK REFORMS.

Dr. Clark saw the difficulties of the situation, as every sensible observer must, and set himself earnestly and resolutely to remedy them as best he could by making such changes and improvements in the hospital conditions and methods as would tend to increase its efficiency, and bring it well up, both in appearance and working ability, with other well-kept institutions of like character; and that his efforts in this direction have succeeded most admirably no one really acquainted with the facts will for a moment deny, while at the same time it cannot be truthfully said that the legitimate rights of the indigent poor have in any way suffered from the essential, marked and greatly beneficial changes that he has made in the hospital proper.

Another and very serious difficulty that Dr. Clark had to meet at the outset of his career as superintendent grew out of the habit of liquor drinking on the part of the inmates that had become a recognized institution of the place. Dr. Shirk had been in charge for about five years. He is a man of a kind, gentle, considerate turn of mind and heart, the bent of whose character seems to be to accommodate and please and to be influenced by the idea that the easiest way of doing things is the best way, which is not always the case. He was like a generous and considerate father to these people, and at times, especially toward the end of his service, when his energies were enfeebled by painful disease, they often imposed on his good nature and took advantage of the situation. Now, quite a large proportion of the inmates are men who have been active devotees of old John Barleycorn, and with many the thirst learned of him is still an abiding feature of life. Under the former management when some little job was to be done about the place, instead of a request or a command for these men to take it in hand, a bribe of a few drinks of whisky was used, and it was found that in such a case they would work willingly, cheerfully, and even scramble for the job with the liquid attachment.

Almost the first step of Dr. Clark, founded upon what he believed to be a spirit of public economy and the best interests of the inmates, in the matter of health and good conduct, was to stop the issue, and, as far as possible, the use of liquor, except for medicinal purposes. He has also recently for the same reasons enforced, to some extent, especially as to patients under treatment, a similar rule against tobacco. That is, the weed is not liberally furnished, though no one is forbidden to use it. These restrictions have made him some enemies and called down upon his head much harsh criticism, though to every candid mind it must be clearly evident that both these measures are highly sanitary, and generally conducive to good order and favorable results.

ABLE ASSISTANCE.

The early perplexities of the superintendent were greatly increased by the rather incompetent and slipshod character of the staff of assistants, nurses, cooks, etc., whom he found in charge. No man can do good work with poor help, and this Dr. Clark soon realized and remedied, though not without considerable friction and trouble, and the result is that he has now a corps of assistants who are, generally speaking, a credit to him, in themselves and to the institution. The nurses, especially those in charge of the medical and surgical departments are trained and competent persons, with good characters, and excellent papers as in standing and capability. In the kitchen, the backbone of the place, for the stomach is always in evidence around such a concern, the help is likewise of the best. It is in charge of two very competent colored men, the head cook being a man who would not fail to give satisfaction if placed in charge of any of the best hotels or restaurants of the city.

Now it is not the purpose of what has been said to create the view that the superintendent never makes mistakes. It is my opinion that he himself would be the first to repudiate such an idea. No man living could have taken hold of that institution as he did and bring it within proper lines of management without friction and difficulty and an occasional erroneous step. Still I am confident that it is his policy and that this policy is well defined in his mind to transform this charge into the creditable and useful institution that it should be; to secure for it the benefit of the best modern methods, appliances and skill and a beneficient degree of discipline and order; in short, to make of it in all points what the people of Alameda county have a right to expect that it should be—the very best and most efficient hospital and infirmary in the State. He is a bright young man, with his career all before him, and he would be an idiot to do otherwise. Let it not be forgotten that Dr. Clark is very far from being an idiot. The obstacles and difficulties that have been mentioned are but a few out of the many with which he has to contend, but in the midst of them all he holds steadfastly to his purpose of improvement, reform and advancement, and that he is making progress and deserves success is apparent to any observant and fair-minded individual.

THE SUPERVISORS.

The Supervisors are a body of men to whom are committed vast and many responsibilities, and among these, few, if any, are more important than those connected with the county infirmary, and this the gentlemen of the board seem to fully understand and appreciate, and especially those of them comprising the hospital committee, Messrs. Johnson and Church of this committee have been especially active in promoting the interests of the place, visiting it frequently and looking carefully and conscientiously into its condition and needs.

They are men, and among the few at that, who seem to be able to understand that to have become an inmate of such an institution is a misfortune and not a crime, and to be inclined to act accordingly. As has been observed above the stomach is a prime factor in this matter and this fact seems to be recognized in full, for it can be truthfully said that the provisions and supplies sent out by the Supervisors for the use of the patients, are almost universally good in quality and about equal in quantity, nor does it appear that any attempt is being made to make money "on the side" out of the contracts, as is charged in some quarters, or in any way to defraud the inmates of their legitimate rights and privileges.

In the matter of enterprise looking to the future success of the institution, the present Board is said to be showing a very commendable spirit. It has in contemplation the erection of new hospital and infirmary buildings upon the present site upon a comprehensive, practical and very efficient scale, the cost of the various structures needed to be some $80,000. This is an important step in the right direction, and is not being taken a moment too soon. The present barn like shucks and structures all built of wood, have pretty well outlived their usefulness and can be dispensed with to good advantage by all the parties in interest. The real need of a new hospital structure can hardly be urged too strongly. The present accommodations are not at all adequate to the demands upon them. In the woman's building there is no ward where women can be separately and properly cared for in cases of confinement, a condition which often gives rise to shocking and almost cruel complication. There are only three or four bath tubs available for bathing the 200 or 300 people in the place; the old rotten walls and floors of the various structures fairly reek with filth, and the germs of all the diseases known to humanity, and it is almost impossible to keep them clean and free from vermin; the sewerage of the place is something frightful, and were it not for the extreme healthfulness of the natural location a patient would be about as likely to catch a new disease in the hospital as to get rid of the one he might take with him. This matter of drainage is, however, being reinforced by the construction of a competent sewer to the bay, and this is one of the best things that has ever happened to the institution. Numerous other good and sufficient reasons for the construction of a new hospital, might be given, but space forbids for the present at least.

THE PEOPLE.

Turning now to the third party in interest in the subject under discussion, the people of the county, it is proper to state that it is high time that they should form some sort of a correct idea as to what this institution really is, and its proper relations to them and them to it. This is a place to which they send their poor and sick and blind and wounded, the dregs and wrecks of battered, suffering humanity, perhaps, the most pitiable objects on earth, to be cared for and healed and for this the public pays liberally and there it seems to think its duty ends.

Such is by no means the case. The people are the source of power, the court of last resort, in this as in other matters in this country. They should keep a careful eye upon affairs here, insist that their servants do their whole duty, and when, as at the present time, they have a man in charge who is endeavoring to introduce the best modern methods and systems, staking his whole future career upon the success of his ventures in this direction, they should not allow him to be interfered with without reason, or condemned unjustly or unheard and undefended.

Another thing: As a rule the people outside very unfortunately and injuriously impress persons going to this place for treatment or residence. It is not a summer hotel, nor a place of holiday outing, yet a large class of persons go there with that idea, and with a plan in their minds for lolling all day in the sun, and generally eating, drinking, sleeping and making merry. This is a very grave mistake and often makes serious trouble. This is a place of healing, of renovation, of rebuilding and of rest and refuge, and proposed inmates should be clearly impressed with the fact that they must conform cheerfully to such rules and treatment as is best calculated to bring about these beneficent ends. In many ways, besides spending money on it, the general public can do much for this institution, and it is greatly to be hoped that the future may develop a more general interest in its success and prosperity.

THE PATIENTS AND INMATES.

The last class of persons that I shall discuss as interested are the inmates, and of these taken generally and particularly it would be easy to write a book. Of them it may be truly said that they are a unique and peculiar people. Not because they are as a rule essentially ill any special sense, bad or malicious. One class of them, the patients, is weak, sick, sore and suffering, and of course irritable; the other, indigent poor, is aged, decrepid, wrecked, stranded, with blighted lives, and few if any hopes or ambitions.

These people have little, almost nothing to do as a rule they are not great readers or thinkers, amusements are few, and they mostly soon degenerate with gossiping, faultfinders and grumblers, most unpleasant to deal with. The man who could manage 200 or 300 such people without some friction or trouble would be entitled to be considered a genius of the highest order, but it is doubtful if such a man lives. Even the humane and kindly Dr. Shirk, who was a father to them, did not escape censure at their hands and had to stand the test of an investigation ordered through their instigation. During a stay of months in the place, and I have been closely observing, I never saw an inmate subjected to burdensome or injurious labor, or to a real hardship of any kind, unless the cutting off of whisky and tobacco is to be considered in that light.

The real fact of the matter is that the disposition to complain here is largely in line with the spirit of this ancient couplet:

"No rogue yet felt the halter draw,
With good opinion of the law."

Not that I mean to state that any of the inmates here are rogues; far from it; but that the principal in this matter is the same as that of the rogue referred to. That is say, to men who have lived the free untrammeled life that has made up the past of most of these people, discipline and order is distasteful and irksome, and they often show this to their own disadvantage; yet they must know that discipline must be maintained. That institution would at once become a Bedlam without it.

There are many other points of interest about the place that I should like to discuss, but space forbids, and I will conclude with the statement that the inmates may thank their lucky stars and count themselves exceedingly fortunate that there is such an institution as this to which they can flee in the hour of misfortune and adverse fate. Thankless we may be if it is our nature to be so, but we should never complain much of the bridge that carries us safely over the deep and dangerous gulf of adversity and helplessness. I will state in closing that, perhaps to the disappointment of some, I have refrained from discussing the idle tales, insinuations, and alleged scandals that are always in the air about a place like this. I do so for the reason that such discussion could serve no good purpose, and further, because in several cases, investigation has taught me that these things are for the most part the outgrowth of unhealthy and malicious minds and of diseased and trouble-seeking imaginations; and I have found further that the people who interest themselves most deeply in such matters accomplish little except in the direction of getting themselves into trouble, and of this they frequently make a very good job.

OF INTEREST TO SUFFERERS

Case of Mr. Henry Schrag, Proprietor Club Stables, Fourteenth and Webster Streets.

OAKLAND, Sept. 14th, 1895.

Six years ago I was taken suddenly ill with a lame back and consulted Dr. Mayer, Dr. Simond, Dr. Williams, Dr. Leo Newmark and Dr. J. W. Robertson, all of San Francisco, but their treatment did not benefit me any.

I then went to the Byron Hot Springs, remained there six weeks and still no relief.

After thus having doctored for six long years I tried, as a last resort, an electric chain invented by Dr. J. M. Wulff, and now, after having used the same since August 8th, I feel that I finally found a remedy that has so far done me that much good that I can walk straight again and attend to my business, which I have not been able to do for the last two years, and I have not the slightest doubt that by conscientiously following the doctor's instructions I will ultimately get entirely cured. The relief I have had so far is far beyond what I ever expected.

I know and feel that the doctor has done wonders for me.

Very truly,
HENRY SCHRAG.

Upon the wish of Mr. Henry Schrag we, the undersigned, testify that the above statement is in every respect the true facts.

IS IN GOOD HANDS.

A County Hospital Patient Writes Regarding the Institution.

TRUTH OF ITS WORKINGS.

Superintendent, Supervisors and the Staff of Assistants.

GOOD FOOD IS PROVIDED.

Sanitary Needs Are Urgent and the Big Sewer Is Welcomed.

During the past few months there has been considerable discussion, varied as to its sources, in relation to conditions and affairs at the county hospital, and it has occurred to the writer that the general public may be interested in a description of these by an experienced and fair-minded patient recently cured and released from that institution. A county hospital is an institution in which four classes of persons are chiefly interested. These are the superintendent and his staff of assistants, the board of supervisors, the geneal public and the patients, and each of these classes has its rights, duties, privileges and limitations, and each is entitled to careful, just and conscientious consideration.

No writer for the public who is without adequate ability and opportunity to observe and judge of facts and their relations, to acquire correct information, and who is not disposed to be liberal, fair-minded and honest, has any business dealing with this subject, and yet we find that it is either from those who know the least about affairs at the County Infirmary, or from those whose minds are most violently and viciously prejudiced by fancied offense or mischeivous malice, that the general public commonly draws what is termed information regarding this institution.

Thus prefaced, it is now in order to discuss the first class of persons mentioned as interested in the hospital, namely the superintendent and staff.

Primarily it should be stated as a fact that stands out prominently to one acquainted with the situation that the position of superintendent at the infirmary is no mere sinecure, no simple "soft snap." There are few, if any, positions in the county, the duties of which are so onerous, complicated and difficult of satisfactory performance.

The most advanced scientific knowledge, the very best remedies and appliances, the highest order of business and administrative ability, the nicest possible discernment as to surrounding conditions, and the keenest, most comprehensive and sympathetic knowledge of human nature and its many phases and vagaries and weaknesses, must all appear in and about a superintendent, in order that the very best results may be expected of him.

Few men are thus endowed, nor are county hospitals generally noted for those conveniences necessary to the highest success, and hence it is not at all wonderful that criticism is often easily possible, especially when the would-be critic is in search of the darkest side.

When Dr. Clark, the present superintendent, assumed control, he found himself confronted with some very difficult problems. In the first place the hospital and the poor house were being run as one institution, the indigent poor and the sick and maimed patients largely eating, sleeping and living together. This plan, notwithstanding the fact that it prevails largely through California and the coast, can never be a success. Not to go into the question at length, let it suffice here to state that anyone can see that merely in the matter of diet the plan is incompatible with success. A person extremely ill, or in a seriously debilitated condition, cannot thrive upon the same food, taken at the same hours, as can men merely incapacitated by old age or some form of decrepitude, and yet this system compels that both these classes fare very much alike.

DR. CLARK REFORMS.

Dr. Clark saw the difficulties of the situation, as every sensible observer must, and set himself earnestly and resolutely to remedy them as best he could by making such changes and improvements in the hospital conditions and methods as would tend to increase its efficiency, and bring it well up, both in appearance and working ability, with other well-kept institutions of like character; and that his efforts in this direction have succeeded most admirably no one really acquainted with the facts will for a moment deny, while at the same time it cannot be truthfully said that the legitimate rights of the indigent poor have in any way suffered from the essential, marked and greatly beneficial changes that he has made in the hospital proper.

Another and very serious difficulty that Dr. Clark had to meet at the outset of his career as superintendent grew out of the habit of liquor drinking on the part of the inmates that had become a recognized institution of the place. Dr. Shirk had been in charge for about five years. He is a man of a kind, gentle, considerate turn of mind and heart, the bent of whose character seems to be to accommodate and please and to be influenced by the idea that the easiest way of doing things is the best way, which is not always the case. He was like a generous and considerate father to these people, and at times, especially toward the end of his service, when his energies were enfeebled by painful disease, they often imposed on his good nature and took advantage of the situation. Now, quite a large proportion of the inmates are men who have been active devotees of old John Barleycorn, and with many the thirst learned of him is still an abiding feature of life. Under the former management when some little job was to be done about the place, instead of a request or a command for these men to take it in hand, a bribe of a few drinks of whisky was used, and it was found that in such a case they would work willingly, cheerfully, and even scramble for the job with the liquid attachment.

Almost the first step of Dr. Clark, founded upon what he believed to be a spirit of public economy and the best interests of the inmates, in the matter of health and good conduct, was to stop the issue, and, as far as possible, the use of liquor, except for medicinal purposes. He has also recently for the same reasons enforced, to some extent, especially as to patients under treatment, a similar rule against tobacco. That is, the weed is not liberally furnished, though no one is forbidden to use it. These restrictions have made him some enemies and called down upon his head much harsh criticism, though to every candid mind it must be clearly evident that both these measures are highly sanitary, and generally conducive to good order and favorable results.

ABLE ASSISTANCE.

The early perplexities of the superintendent were greatly increased by the rather incompetent and slipshod character of the staff of assistants, nurses, cooks, etc, whom he found in charge No man can do good work with poor help, and this Dr Clark soon realized and remedied, though not without considerable friction and trouble, and the result is that he has now a corps of assistants who are, generally speaking, a credit to him, in themselves and to the institution. The nurses, especially those in charge of the medical and surgical departments are trained and competent persons, with good characters, and excellent papers as in standing and capability. In the kitchen, the backbone of the place, for the stomach is always in evidence around such a concern, the help is likewise of the best. It is in charge of two very competent colored men, the head cook being a man who would not fail to give satisfaction if placed in charge of any of the best hotels or restaurants of the city.

Now it is not the purpose of what has been said to create the view that the superintendent never makes mistakes, it is my opinion that he himself would be the first to repudiate such an idea. No man living could have taken hold of that institution as he did and bring it within proper lines of management without friction and difficulty and an occasional erroneous step. Still I am confident that it is his policy and that this policy is well defined in his mind to transform this charge into the creditable and useful institution that it should be; to secure for it the benefit of the best modern methods, appliances and skill and a beneficient degree of discipline and order; in short, to make of it in all points what the people of Alameda county have a right to expect that it should be—the very best and most efficient hospital and infirmary in the State. He is a bright young man, with his career all before him, and he would be an idiot to do otherwise Let it not be forgotten that Dr. Clark is very far from being an idiot. The obstacles and difficulties that have been mentioned are but a few out of the many with which he has to contend, but in the midst of them all he holds steadfastly to his purpose of improvement, reform and advancement, and that he is making progress and deserves success is apparent to any observant and fair-minded individual.

THE SUPERVISORS.

The Supervisors are a body of men to whom are committed vast and many responsibilities, and among these, few, if any, are more important than those connected with the county infirmary, and this the gentlemen of the board seem to fully understand and appreciate, and especially those of them comprising the hospital committee. Messrs., Johnson and Church of this committee have been especially active in promoting the interests of the place, visiting it frequently and looking carefully and conscientiously into its condition and needs.

They are men, and among the few at that, who seem to be able to understand that to have become an inmate of such an institution is a misfortune and not a crime, and to be inclined to act accordingly. As has been observed above the stomach is a prime factor in this matter and this fact seems to be recognized in full, for it can be truthfully said that the provisions and supplies sent out by the Supervisors for the use of the patients, are almost universally good in quality and about equal in quantity, nor does it appear that any attempt is being made to make money "on the side" out of the contracts, as is charged in some quarters, or in any way to defraud the inmates of their legitimate rights and privileges.

In the matter of enterprise looking to the future success of the institution, the present Board is said to be showing a very commendable spirit. It has in contemplation the erection of new hospital and infirmary buildings upon the present site upon a comprehensive, practical and very efficient scale, the cost of the various structures needed to be some $80,000. This is an important step in the right direction, and is not being taken a moment too soon. The present barn like shucks and structures all built of wood, have pretty well outlived their usefulness and can be dispensed with to good advantage by all the parties in interest. The real need of a new hospital structure can hardly be urged too strongly. The present accommodations are not at all adequate to the demands upon them. In the woman's building there is no ward where women can be separately and properly cared for in cases of confinement, a condition which often gives rise to shocking and almost cruel complication. There are only three or four bath tubs available for bathing the 200 or 300 people in the place; the old rotten walls and floors of the various structures fairly reek with filth, and the germs of all the diseases known to humanity, and it is almost impossible to keep them clean and free from vermin; the sewerage of the place is something frightful, and were it not for the extreme healthfulness of the natural location a patient would be about as likely to catch a new disease in the hospital as to get rid of the one he might take with him. This matter of drainage is, however, being reinforced by the construction of a competent sewer to the bay, and this is one of the best things that has ever happened to the institution. Numerous other good and sufficient reasons for the construction of a new hospital, might be given, but space forbids for the present at least.

THE PEOPLE.

Turning now to the third party in interest in the subject under discussion, the people of the county, it is proper to state that it is high time that they should form some sort of a correct idea as to what this institution really is, and its proper relations to them and them to it. This is a place to which they send their poor and sick and blind and wounded, the dregs and wrecks of battered, suffering humanity, perhaps the most pitiable objects on earth, to be cared for and healed and for this the public pays liberally and there it seems to think its duty ends.

Such is by no means the case. The people are the source of power, the court of last resort, in this as in other matters in this country. They should keep a careful eye upon affairs here, insist that their servants do their whole duty, and when, as at the present time, they have a man in charge who is endeavoring to introduce the best modern methods and systems, staking his whole future career upon the success of his ventures in this direction, they should not allow him to be interfered with without reason, or condemned unjustly or unheard and undefended.

Another thing: As a rule the people outside very unfortunately and injuriously impress persons going to this place for treatment or residence It is not a summer hotel, nor a place of holiday outing, yet a large class of persons go there with that idea, and with a plan in their minds for lolling all day in the sun, and generally eating, drinking, sleeping and making merry. This is a very grave mistake and often makes serious trouble. This is a place of healing, of renovation, of re-building and of rest and refuge, and proposed inmates should be clearly impressed with the fact that they must conform cheerfully to such rules and treatment as is best calculated to bring about these beneficent ends. In many ways, besides spending money on it, the general public can do much for this institution, and it is greatly to be hoped that the future may develop a more general interest in its success and prosperity

THE PATIENTS AND INMATES.

The last class of persons that I shall discuss as interested are the inmates, and of these taken generally and particularly it would be easy to write a book. Of them it may be truly said that they are a unique and peculiar people. Not because they are as a rule essentially in any special sense, bad or malicious. One class of them, the patients, is weak, sick, sore and suffering, and of course irritable: the other, indigent poor, is aged decrepid, wrecked, stranded, with blighted lives, and few if any hopes or ambitions.

These people have little, almost nothing to do as a rule they are not great readers or thinkers, amusements are few, and they mostly soon degenerate with gossiping, faultfinders and grumblers, most unpleasant to deal with The man who could manage 200 or 300 such people without some friction or trouble would be entitled to be considered a genius of the highest order, but it is doubtful if such a man lives. Even the humane and kindly Dr. Shirk, who was a father to them, did not escape censure at their hands and had to stand the test of an investigation ordered through their instigation. During a stay of months in the place, and I have been closely observing, I never saw an inmate subjected to burdensome or injurious labor, or to a real hardship of any kind unless the cutting off of whisky and tobacco is to be considered in that light.

The real fact of the matter is that the disposition to complain here is largely in line with the spirit of this ancient couplet:

"No rogue yet felt the halter draw,
With good opinion of the law."

Not that I mean to state that any of the inmates here are rogues, far from it, but that the principal in this matter is the same as that of the rogue referred to That is say, to men who have lived the free untrammeled life that has made up the past of most of these people discipline and order is distasteful and irksome, and they often show this to their own disadvantage, yet they must know that discipline must be maintained. That institution would at once become a Bedlam without it.

There are many other points of interest about the place that I should like to discuss, but space forbids, and I will conclude with the statement that the inmates may thank their lucky stars and count themselves exceedingly fortunate that there is such an institution as this to which they can flee in the hour of misfortune and adverse fate. Thankless we may be if it is our nature to be so, but we should never complain much of the bridge that carries us safely over the deep and dangerous gulf of adversity and helplessness. I will state in closing that, perhaps to the disappointment of some, I have refrained from discussing the idle tales, insinuations, and alleged scandals that are always in the air about a place like this. I do so for the reason that such discussion could serve no good purpose, and further, because in several cases, investigation has taught me that these things are for the most part the outgrowth of unhealthy and malicious minds and of diseased and trouble-seeking imaginations, and I have found further that the people who interest themselves most deeply in such matters accomplish little except in the direction of getting themselves into trouble, and of this they frequently make a very good job.

OF INTEREST TO SUFFERERS

Case of Mr. Henry Schrag, Proprietor Club Stables, Fourteenth and Webster Streets.

OAKLAND, Sept. 14th, 1895.
Six years ago I was taken suddenly ill with a lame back and consulted Dr. Mayer, Dr. Simond, Dr. Williams, Dr. Leo Newmark and Dr. J. W. Robertson, all of San Francisco, but their treatment did not benefit me any.
I then went to the Byron Hot Springs, remained there six weeks and still no relief.
After thus having doctored for six long years I tried, as a last resort, an electric chain invented by Dr. J. M. Wulff, and now, after having used the same since August 8th, I feel that I finally found a remedy that has so far done me that much good that I can walk straight again and attend to my business, which I have not been able to do for the last two years, and I have not the slightest doubt that by conscientiously following the doctor's instructions I will ultimately get entirely cured. The relief I have had so far is far beyond what I ever expected.
I know and feel that the doctor has done wonders for me.

THE ROUTING OF ROME.

Professor Lansing Delivers a Powerful Lecture on the A. P. A.

A Logical Challenge of Statements Made by Cardinal Gibbons.

Professor J. A. Lansing delivered another address under the auspices of the A. P. A. in the Tabernacle yesterday. W. W. Knickerbocker called the meeting to order and C. G. Dodge acted as chairman, vice H. P. Dalton, who was unable to be present. The attendance was both large and demonstrative.

The exercise opened with the singing of "America" by the audience. Miss Manning sang "The Star Spangled Banner."

Professor Lansing was then introduced. He said he desired to speak of living issues and living men and that was why, he said, he chose as his subject "Cardinal Gibbons at the Congress of Religions."

"I have noticed," said the professor, "that whenever Cardinal Gibbons wants to get his ideas before the American people he sends for a reporter of the Associated Press and his statements are telegraphed broadcast over the country without delay. We will get there ourselves some day. We will soon begin to find out that this is an American country for American people. In one of these published reports he states that the Catholic church is absolutely superior over all other churches, at all times and at all places. And Archbishop Ireland, in Baltimore, has stated that the object of Rome is to make America Catholic.

'That is just what they are working for, and that is just why the A. P. A. is here.

"Cardinal Gibbons has said another thing, which I do not agree with: 'The Catholic church has purified society at the very fountain head, which is the marriage bond.' I will base the bulk of my remarks on this assertion. I will speak of this not as a Protestant, but placing myself in the position of a Catholic and shall talk as one Catholic to another.

"It is always time and always will be that all Rome has can be bought and is for sale for cash. Is that the way to make things pure? When your marriage is made a matter of bargain and sale what do you think of it?

"Must I tell you what the trouble is with Rome? It is dollars and cents. For a price masses will be said which are guaranteed to carry the worst man on earth safely through purgatory and land him in the promised land. When you bring morality down to this basis, what is it worth?

"Mexico is in the hands of Roman Catholic Spain. How is the fountain head of morality there? If a couple desire to marry there under the Roman Catholic rule, they are required to pay $25 to the church. The laborers in that country earn 20 cents a day. At that rate it takes a long time to save enough to get married on. What is the result? Why, these poor creatures who love each other live together as man and wife and rear families. In the eyes of the Roman Catholic church their offspring are illegitimate, $25 was not paid to some priest who claimed the power to make them otherwise.

"The Roman Catholic man and woman needs help, not blows. I am their friend, and will do what I can to emancipate them from the bonds of slavery in which the priests keep them.

"The largest percentage of immorality and illegitimate children are to be found in Catholic countries. It is not because they are less moral than we, but because they can not raise the fee the church requires from them, and, loving each other, they live together. The church pronounces their offspring bastards, but before God those children are legitimate every time! (Great applause).

"President Arthur sent a Mr. Curtis to Chili to investigate the morality of that country. He found the conditions the same as they now exist in Mexico. When that report was made public the Chilian government acted upon it and passed laws regulating the matter. Now a couple can get married in Chili for 25 cents, but the ceremony must be performed by the civil authorities, and a marriage by a priest is not recognized now by the laws of that country. Aside from this the government of Chili sat apart an island off their coast as the home of 2500 illegitimate children of immoral priests.

"This is bottom talk, you know—this is fundamental—this is a Roman Catholic answering the statements of Roman Catholic Cardinal Gibbons, and I think I have said enough to you on this subject to convince you that he makes a mistake in dealing out this kind of stuff.

"The Roman Catholic church invaded sacred ground on this marriage proposition. How long are we, oh, Americans, going to allow such utterances in the United States? I answer for you: Not one hour after we get thoroughly aroused.

"I am a born native American. I love my country better than I love my life. I have proved it because I was one of the boys who swung into line when Abe Lincoln called. Is it possible for us to have a future and go down in history as other great nations do, has been a great problem with me. The nations that legislate for their people as against suppression have caught step with the Son of Man as He marches on to conquer all before him. Those who do not, are to pass away to oblivion and infamy."

Mrs. Martin then sang "The Sword of Bunker Hill," "Columbia" and "The Red White and Blue," and the meeting closed.

Professor Lansing talks in Alameda tonight.

Having examined the Hecht ten letter system of shorthand, I desire to recommend it for its simplicity and its easiness of acquisition. The arrangement of this system displays the use of much time and thought and is certainly a great improvement on any other system which I know of. M. H. ROWEN, Expert stenographer for California Title, Insurance & Trust Co., Mills building, S. F. Investigate at out institute in the Girard Hotel. Classes forming for day and evening.

THE ROUTING OF ROME.

Professor Lansing Delivers a Powerful Lecture on the A. P. A.

A Logical Challenge of Statements Made by Cardinal Gibbons.

Professor J. A Lansing delivered another address under the auspices of the A. P. A. in the Tabernacle yesterday. W. W. Knickerbocker called the meeting to order and C. G. Dodge acted as chairman, vice H. P. Dalton, who was unable to be present. The attendance was both large and demonstrative.

The exercises opened with the singing of "America" by the audience. Miss Manning sang "The Star Spangled Banner."

Professor Lansing was then introduced. He said he desired to speak of living issues and living men and that was why, he said, he chose as his subject "Cardinal Gibbons at the Congress of Religions."

"I have noticed," said the professor, "that whenever Cardinal Gibbons wants to get his ideas before the American people he sends for a reporter of the Associated Press and his statements are telegraphed broadcast over the country without delay. We will get there ourselves some day. We will soon begin to find out that this is an American country for American people. In one of these published reports he states that the Catholic church is absolutely superior over all other churches, at all times and at all places. And Archbishop Ireland, in Baltimore, has stated that the object of Rome is to make America Catholic.

"That is just what they are working for and that is just why the A. P. A. is here.

"Cardinal Gibbons has said another thing, which I do not agree with. 'The Catholic church has purified society at the very fountain head, which is the marriage bond.' I will base the bulk of my remarks on this assertion. I will speak of this not as a Protestant, but placing myself in the position of a Catholic and shall talk as one Catholic to another.

"It is always time and always will be that all Rome has can be bought and is for sale for cash. Is that the way to make things pure? When your marriage is made a matter of bargain and sale what do you think of it?

"Must I tell you what the trouble is with Rome? It is dollars and cents. For a price masses will be said which are guaranteed to carry the worst man on earth safely through purgatory and land him in the promised land. When you bring morality down to this basis, what is it worth?

"Mexico is in the hands of Roman Catholic Spain. How is the fountain head of morality there? If a couple desire to marry there under the Roman Catholic rule, they are required to pay $25 to the church. The laborers in that country earn 20 cents a day. At that rate it takes a long time to save enough to get married on. What is the result? Why, these poor creatures who love each other live together as man and wife and rear families. In the eyes of the Roman Catholic church their offspring are illegitimate, $25 was not paid to some priest who claimed the power to make them otherwise.

"The Roman Catholic man and woman needs help, not blows. I am their friend, and will do what I can to emancipate them from the bonds of slavery in which the priests keep them.

"The largest percentage of immorality and illegitimate children are to be found in Catholic countries. It is not because they are less moral than we, but because they can not raise the fee the church requires from them, and, loving each other, they live together. The church pronounces their offspring bastards, but before God those children are legitimate every time! (Great applause).

"President Arthur sent a Mr. Curtis to Chili to investigate the morality of that country. He found the conditions the same as they now exist in Mexico. When that report was made public the Chilian government acted upon it and passed laws regulating the matter. Now a couple can get married in Chili for 25 cents, but the ceremony must be performed by the civil authorities, and a marriage by a priest is not recognized now by the laws of that country. Aside from this the government of Chili sat apart an island off their coast as the home of 2500 illegitimate children of immoral priests.

"This is bottom talk, you know—this is fundamental—this is a Roman Catholic answering the statements of Roman Catholic Cardinal Gibbons, and I think I have said enough to you on this subject to convince you that he makes a mistake in dealing out this kind of stuff.

"The Roman Catholic church invaded sacred ground on this marriage proposition. How long are we oh, Americans, going to allow such utterances in the United States? I answer for you. Not one hour after we get thoroughly aroused.

"I am a born native American. I love my country better than I love my life. I have proved it because I was one of the boys who swung into line when Abe Lincoln called. Is it possible for us to have a future and go down in history as other great nations do, has been a great problem with me. The nations that legislate for their people as against suppression have caught step with the Son of Man as He marches on to conquer all before him. Those who do not, are to pass away to oblivion and infamy."

Mrs. Martin then sang "The Sword of Bunker Hill," "Columbia" and "The Red White and Blue," and the meeting closed.

Professor Lansing talks in Alameda tonight.

Having examined the Hecht ten letter system of shorthand, I desire to recommend it for its simplicity and its easiness of acquisition. The arrangement of this system displays the use of much time and thought and is certainly a great improvement on any other system which I know of. M. H. ROWEN, Expert stenographer for California Title, Insurance & Trust Co., Mills building, S. F. Investigate at our institute in the Girard Hotel. Classes forming for day and evening.

SAYINGS OF LOCAL PASTORS.

A Resume of the Sermons in the Oakland Churches.

The Tribune today presents the first of its series of Sunday sermons one of which will from now on appear every Monday. They will be furnished by the leading divines in the country and the purpose is to reach both members of churches and the stay-at-homes. The ministers of the country have co-operated in this matter with the object of getting a wider hearing for the essential truths of the Christian religion. They will discuss the vital application of Christianity the ethical bearing of present problems the solution of hard questions which present themselves in common life, and the relation of the teachings of Jesus Christ to the needs of men in this present century.

The sermon given here with is "In Search of Zebedee," and is by the Rev. George Hodges D. D., Dean Hambridge Theological school, Cambridge, Mass.

Then came to him the mother of Zebedee's children, with her sons.—Matt. xx., 20.

When? Last Sunday, at the time of the morning service. The mother was there, and the children were with her, but Zebedee was absent.

What was the matter with Zebedee?

Zebedee was very tired after a week of hard work and worry, and he took Sunday for a rest day. I cannot greatly blame him. In this over-busy time, when commerce and society have placed themselves under the patronage of St. Vitus when the devil pursues us with the keen prod of competition, when the hours of work are long and many, when the chances of financial failure range themselves in grim lines between which the merchant must run a gauntlet every week, when we are all hurried and worried, the parson may properly be grateful that so many men appear at church. It is a matter for encouragement.

Zebedee was absent not because he is a worse sinner than his wife and children but because he is the slave of the two despots who possess this modern world—electricity and steam. The conditions of our present living are against church attendance.

It must be confessed, however, on the part of Zebedee that he is quite cheerfully resigned to this slavery. He enjoys it. His chains are made of the metal which is used in mints, and he likes to hear them clink. Zebedee would be a saint, indeed, if he were not affected by the hustling, superficial and material life in the midst of which he lives. We may rightly complain against him that he lives so much in the bad air of the world that he sometimes loses his appreciation of good air and stays away from church because he is out of touch with heaven. Zebedee seems to care more about his investments than he does about his soul; and is so busy laying up treasure here below that he is in danger of being altogether bankrupt up above.

Jesus Christ was well acquainted with business men. It is significant that when he chose a place of residence he got as far away as he could from Jerusalem, the city of conventional religion, and settled in Capernaum, which was a brisk town of business. He chose a group of alert young business men to be his intimate friends and disciples. He knew the business man, heart and soul; the gospels show it. And when he declared over and over that the greatest danger to the spiritual life comes from devotion to the interests of this present world, and from the deceitfulness of riches, he knew what he was talking about. He had the business man in mind. He was looking at Zebedee.

Church attendance is one of the lesser Christian duties. The New Testament gives no space to it. But it is a fairly accurate thermometer of religion. When it is at zero the chances are that a man's heart is pretty cold. I sympathize with Zebedee as he stays at home, while his wife and children go to church. No doubt he needs rest. But—honestly, now—Zebedee, don't you need the service more? In the life which you are called to live, with its manifold temptations, is it not the part of good sense to make use of all the opportunities which offer themselves for the upbuilding of the soul? It is hard enough to be a good man under the most favorable circumstances. No real help in that direction should be declined.

It is true, I know, that Zebedee complains that he is not greatly helped. The service is monotonous; and the sermon is dull, too long and generally unprofitable. We persons must confess on our part that Zebedee is sometimes right about that. There is fault on both sides.

In the meantime, here is the situation: Zebedee's wife and children sit in Zebedee's pew, and Zebedee is at home reading the Sunday newspaper.

The Sunday newspaper! Is it not possible through this channel to enter into communication with the good people who keep ardently out of earshot of the pulpit? We have many things to say to them. This great congregation whose sanctuary is the sitting-room, whose service book is the newspaper, can we not enter into telephonic conversation with them? The Christian pulpit, even under present conditions, reaches a vast number of people, and exerts an immeasurable and increasing influence upon the living and thinking of this nation. But we are not content. We want a larger congregation. And here behold! The church roof is the sky and the church walls are washed by the waves of the two oceans, and we have a pulpit from which we may address an audience which is measured by the million.

MAN'S LOVE FOR MOTION.

Rev. Dr. Kummer Gives an Able Discourse on "Wheels."

Rev. Dr. Kummer at the First Methodist Episcopal church last evening preached on the subject of "Wheels." Perhaps the showers which fell about the church time kept the bicyclists away, for there were not a great many in attendance. There was no text announced, though the clergyman stated that there are a dozen passages in the scriptures thoroughly applicable to such a subject. The fourth commandment might be taken, or "Whatsoever you do, do it for the glory of God."

In brief he said: "The solution of th question of the bicycle craze lies in man's love for motion. Everything is, if not accompanied by motion, attended by it.

"The human race has from its infancy demanded some means of motion. The primitive people were satisfied with a crude ox cart, but in this age civilized man must be carried across the continent at the rate of twenty miles an hour or he thinks he isn't moving at all. The same laws that gave the wheel birth will perpetuate its use.

'So long as people love pleasure the wheel will stay, for in its use they find pleasure, health and recreation. The bicycle is often abused and is in consequence condemned, yet for every one injured by the use of the wheel ten may be found who are dying of ennui. All Christians can and should use the wheel to the glory of God, by making it the messenger of mercy, kindness and charity'

LIBERAL MINDED.

Rev. Marshall Law Preaches on Fun That Does no Harm.

The Rev V. Marshall Law of the Church of the Advent in East Oakland delivered a good sermon last night.

'The church," he said, "has no man-made rules for its members in regard to amusement. The question is left for each one to settle for himself. Not that we do not recognize the injurious nature of certain kinds of amusement, but we think it better to advise than to dictate.

"Theaters, cards and dancing may stand for all that may be said for or against indoor amusements. Each of them may be indulged in by a minister of the gospel in moderation and upon proper occasion without damage to moral character beyond the shocking of ultra religious people who, no longer young themselves, think no one should have any harmless fun any more."

OPPOSES THE MOVE.

Rev. Edwards Davis on the Ministerial Endeavor Matter.

Rev. Edwards Davis made the question of taking the ministers into the Christian Endeavor Union, which is an absorbing matter in Oakland at present, the subject of a prelude to his sermon at the Central Christian church last evening. He takes sides against the majority of the preachers, that they should be made ex-officio members of the County Executive Committee, maintaining that if the indiscriminate clergy becomes an ex-officio voting factor in the society it will merely resolve into a ministerial association.

"It has been a purpose of the Endeavorers to assist the church,' said Mr. Davis. "If the pastor is to devote his concern to that which should be his aid, I feel that the fifth wheel of the ecclesiastical machinery had better be torn from the gospel car. The salient feature of the success of the society is the promised unification of the church. If the ministers of denominational prejudices shall poison the impartiality of a new generation, the flaunted banner, 'For Christ and the Church,' may be hauled down, and on the wrecking vessel of disrupted union hols' half-mast the ensigns, A. P. A and Y. M. L., the Epworth and the Westminster Leagues, the Baptist Union and the King's Daughters societies.

"The ministers of this city, more loyal to the spirit of Christ than to their respective churches, cannot afford by their interference to lessen the executive responsibility of the young people of the Society of Christian Endeavor.'

Dr. Hulme's Debut.

Rev. James Hulme, the newly-elected rector of St. Andrew's Episcopal church, preached his first sermon in Oakland yesterday. "The Impossible Service" was the subject of his discourse and his hearers were greatly pleased. Mr. Hulme is an extemporaneous speaker of great fluency and power, and handled his subject with a degree of proficiency which convinced the congregation that St. Andrew's has been highly favored by obtaining his services as rector. Mr. Hulme was pastor of the Episcopal church in Cloverdale for six years past.

Mormons Meet.

The Oakland members of the Mormon church, together with their brethren in San Francisco to the number of 29, assembled in Calantho hall, Market street, yesterday, and after Sunday school services partook of bread and water in commemoration of the death of Christ. In the evening elder J. H. Shepherd spoke on "The Apostacy of the Primitive Church."

The Institute Tonight.

"The Realization of Democracy" will be the topic of discussion at the meeting of the Institute of Applied Christianity this evening. Rev. J. E. Scott of the Woodbridge Presbyterian church of San Francisco will speak. This is the beginning of a series of meetings to be devoted to the consideration of practical working principles of reform. Meetings are held at Fifteenth and Clay streets and are free to the public. Ministers are especially invited.

A Pastors' Meeting.

The monthly meeting of the pastors of Oakland and vicinity will be held tomorrow, Tuesday, November 5th, at 4 P. M., in the Y. M. C. A. rooms. All ministers are hereby invited to attend. Dr. Kummer will speak of his "Visit to Rome."

Got the Wrong Man.

Officer Curtiss seriously injured his arm last night by breaking down the door of a Chinese gambling den. Curtiss permitted himself to be used as a battering ram but that he would not have minded had he done something worthy of his mettle. He arrested the Chinaman but when the case was called in the Police Court today the prosecuting witness said that the officer had caught the wrong man. So Curtiss nurses a wrenched arm and Ah There is free to resume business.

OAKLAND TALENT WINS.

The Reliance Football Team's Splendid Game at Portland.

Baseball, Athletic Notes and Gossip of the Sporting Arena.

The Reliance football team on Saturday literally wiped up the field with the Multonomah team of Portland. The Oakland eleven won by a score of 40 to 0. They simply outplayed the web-footers at every point in the game. Three thousand people witnessed the contest. There was great enthusiasm, somewhat dampened, however, by the crushing defeat of the home team.

A dispatch from Portland says: The local team not only failed to score, but so greatly was it outclassed by the visitors that it was unable to keep the Reliance from making touchdown after touchdown. The explanation of the one-sided result lies in the disparity in weights between the two teams and the lack of training and experience on the part of the home players. The Reliance boys put up one of the cleanest games of football ever seen in this city, and before the Portland public entirely vindicated themselves of the charge of unclean playing made in San Francisco.

Everyone expected the Multonomahs to lose, but no one thought the visitors would pile up touchdowns the way they did. Reliance had the ball practically all the time, and made a series of rushes through the line or plays around the end until Wyckoff surged forward through Multonomah's line and touched the ball down behind the goal posts. Nothing could stop Wyckoff, and he parted the home team's right and left apparently at will.

Jack Sheppard, at the right end, made most of the gains for the visitors, and when he took the ball around the right end, with the splendid interference of Burnett or Oliver, he made thirty to forty yards every time. He was hard to tackle, and when the Multonomah tackles tried to stop him he shook them off and gained a few yards more.

Captain McMillan played a strong game, though handicapped by bruises received in the recent game with Berkeley, but that did not prevent him from carrying the ball and ten or eleven Multonomah men over the line for the prettiest touchdown of the day. Frick was very agile, and Oliver, Burnett and Hall played a great game.

From here the Reliance team will go to the Sound, and thence to Butte, where it is likely to meet the only formidable competitor on its trip. Local ballplayers have made a special effort to entertain the visitors, and they appear to be having a very good time.

BERKELEY'S VICTORY.

The State University freshmen football team had a walkover on Saturday in their game at Central Park with the Stanford "freshies." The contest was so unequal that when the second half was over the score stood 11 to 0 in favor of the Berkeley boys.

ACME CLUB NIGHT.

The Acme Club will hold a "gentlemen's night" two weeks from tomorrow evening. The principal attractions will be two four-round contests between Frank Thurman and J. Dodd of the Olympic club, and Butler of the Olympic and Eugene Kelley of the San Francisco Athletic Club.

A RELIANCE NIGHT.

The Reliance Club will give a "gentlemen's night" November 28th. J. C. Williamson and A. Brill will wrestle, best two out of three falls, catch-as-catch-can. There will be a four-round bout between McMahon, O. C., and Ford of the Phoenix Club.

BASEBALL.

San Francisco won a game in the mud yesterday from San Jose across the bay. The score was 12 to 4. Daniels was hit hard, but the game on the whole was one of the best ever played, notwithstanding a very sloppy field. Experts who witnessed the contest say the fielding was excellent. The play went with snap, vim and vigor and was marked by a lively interest on the part of each player.

At Los Angeles the home team won from Oakland by a score of 14 to 1.

AS OTHERS SEE US.

County Expert Davis is saving the county not only a great deal of money, but also his splendid ability as an expert, keeps everything running along without a hitch. He is a most valuable man for the county, and has a wonderful gift in examining accounts and figures. The Supervisors did not make any mistake when they appointed him to this position.—Haywards Journal.

County Recorder Charles Spear is already one of our most popular county officers. He thoroughly understands the duties of his office, and every courtesy and attention is paid to all having business with his office. Mr. Spear takes special pride in keeping the office up to the high standard of his predecessor, R. W. Church, and he is being complimented by every one having business at the Recorder's office, on the able manner he is discharging the duties of the office.—Haywards Journal.

The Wheelmen's Protective Company of New York, which claims to be an institution that insures bicyclists against loss by theft, recent developments show plainly is a fake concern. Agents of this concern have been doing business among the bicycle men in this city and Oakland and have reaped a harvest. Those who have had the misfortune to have had their bicycles stolen have failed, after efforts lasting many weeks, to collect their insurance, and have awakened to the fact that they have been sold.—San Francisco Argus.

Oakland is in it. Three grass widows is the excitement. They are forming a grass widow's brigade, to don the bloomers and wheel to Chicago within the next three weeks. They are Mrs. Lulu Laro, Mrs. Cora Benson, Mrs. Alice Johnson. They have already left their husbands legally behind and enjoy single blessedness once more, while their whilom happy spouses are putting up their hard round cartwheels in the form of alimony. They will wear bloomers cut in the latest mode and travel by way of the Southern route, keeping near the railroad tracks so that they may seek shelter in a hotel in case it should rain. Mrs. Laro, before she got a divorce, got jealous of her husband, a poor tonsorial artist, and horse-whipped him.—San Francisco Argus.

Dr. A. M. Gardner of the Napa asylum has sold his property in this city (Calistoga) to a Mr. Francis of Oakland. The property consists of the large brick building opposite the Magnolia hotel and his handsome residence on Cedar street.—Calistogan.

ROBERTS ON STRIKES.

The A. R. U. Men Discouraged at the Present Outlook.

The possibility of a strike on the Great Northern road is being watched with interest by local A. R. U. men, although they do not think the strike will be ordered.

"It makes no difference who strikes," said T. R. Roberts, of the Oakland A. R. U. this morning, "for so long as the engineers and conductors will not stand in with us there will be nothing accomplished. The last strike proved that if the engineers and conductors will work the trainmen cannot carry the day. If they will join hands they can get everything they want. It is the same all over the country. The men in the Great Northern may go on strike, but they will accomplish nothing and they will not succeed in enlisting the sympathy of other roads. They have got to learn that there is no strength in a dozen pin-head organizations all pulling in opposite directions. Until there is one united organization of railroad men they will have to be contented with just such salary and restriction as the managers condescend to give them."

FABIOLA'S FETE.

Early Arrangements Being Made for the May Day Festivity.

The Board of Managers of the Fabiola Hospital held their regular monthly meeting last week, the following members being present: Mrs. John Yule, Mrs. R. W. Gorrill, Mrs. T. G. Harrison, Mrs. Charles Deering, Miss Crockett, Mrs. R. W. McChesney, Mrs. E. B. Jerome, Mrs. Wallace Everson, Mrs. G. M. Stolp, Mrs. F. I. Kendall, Miss May Burnham, Mrs. Pedar Sather, Mrs. J. J. Scotchler, Miss Janet Haight, Mrs. Ives, Mrs. W. W. Standeford, Mrs. A. A. Barton.

The report of the resident physician for October read as follows:

Patients in hospital October 1st, 33 admitted, 44, treated, 77, discharged, 44; in hospital November 1st, 33; cured, 39; improved, 1; unimproved, 2 died, 2; births, 2 males 2 females; operations, Dr. Fenton 6, Dr. Chamberlain 3, Dr. Cunningham 2, Dr. Larkey 3, and the following 1 each: Drs Russell, Rucker, Fisher, Maher and Bush.

The ladies passed a hearty vote of thanks to those who had made donations to the hospital during October. Mrs. Barrett, Mrs. Zeno Mauvais, and Mrs. James Driscoll were voted into the Hospital Association membership and the name of Mrs. Noyes was proposed.

Much interest is manifested among the society ladies of Oakland in regard to the Fabiola May Fete, and preparations are already being made for that event. They have gone about it thus early to prevent nearby cities from choosing their dates, the 1st and 2d of May, for similar festivals. A large portion of the ground surrounding the institution has been laid off by the members of the association to be used for the propagation of corn flowers, with which a Fabiola booth vehicle will be elaborately decorated on the fete day. It has been decided that Friday, May 1st, shall be devoted to the floral parade and exhibit and Saturday will be exclusively for the horse show and sports.

A general meeting will be called upon the return of Mrs. Remi Chabot within a couple of weeks to arrange the details of the festival.

POLICE PICK-UPS.

Felony Cases and Misdemeanors Come Before Judge Wood.

Theodore Lycurgus, a colored man who has made Judge Wood's acquaintance quite often, was in the Police Court this morning, charged with being drunk. Lycurgus made an eloquent plea, but when he reached the point where he said he had not been in court for six years, Judge Wood cut him short with "three days."

James Macdonald, who says that the hoodlum element of Franklin street tormented him into using vulgar language on the public street, pleaded not guilty and will be tried tomorrow.

Frank Wyman, Bert McCord and Max Kohn were charged with stealing Sunday newspapers. They all pleaded not guilty and will be tried tomorrow.

Thomas Hickey, who is in the county jail for a felony and who succeeded in escaping, was brought to the city prison today to be booked for breaking jail. He now regrets that he acted so hastily as the witnesses in the felony case can not be found and he will probably be released on that charged. Now he has to answer for a second crime.

LITERARY NOTES.

There is one publication in this country that comes as a boon to the hearths and homes and hearts of many women whose worldly opportunities are decidedly limited, and that is Jenness Miller Monthly. Within the scope of its crisp, clear pages there is meat and drink for all classes of women, but more essentially for those who are not endowed with abundant time or opportunity for keeping abreast of the current of progress in domestic, hygienic and social affairs. Jenness Miller Monthly is an educator as well as an entertainer, a companion and friend. Every paragraph glows with something of pertinent interest to women. The November number has an article on "The Reduction of Obesity," so clearly and intelligently written that it will prove of inestimable value everywhere. There is an admirable kindergarten department and a household science paper which has not its counterpart anywhere because of the intelligent and suggestive details by which it is characterized.

The leaves from the Vailima Letters which are published in McClure's for November are capitally illustrated with several photographs taken in the South Seas and now first published. One shows Mr. Stevenson on horseback, another reclining on his couch playing the flute, and there are groups in which Mr. Stevenson appears. The letters are introduced by an article by his closest friend, Mr. Sidney Colvin. No finer piece of autobiography than these letters has ever been written. There is a great deal in them about Stevenson's literary work and plans.

Macmillan & Co. announce for immediate publication "The Universities of Europe in the Middle Ages," by Hastings Rashdall, M. A., Fellow and Lecturer of Hertford College, Oxford. The plan of the book consists in the full description of the great archetypal universities—Bologna, Paris and Oxford, and the rather shorter account of the foundation, constitution and history of the others, arranged in national groups. The writing of this important book is a task in which Professor Rashdall became involved through winning the Chancellor's Prize at Oxford for an essay in 1883. He intended originally merely to revise and enlarge this essay, but while the essay required only a year to write, the revision has occupied more than eleven.

"The Holiday Dance at Worrosquoyacke" is the title of Mrs Burton Harrison's latest and best short story—a two-part novelette—which opens most delightfully in the November Ladies' Home Journal. It deals with New York fashionables—first at the Horse Show and subsequently in Virginia, the personages and environments appealing to the author's happiest efforts. The story is concluded in the December Journal and is artistically illustrated by W. L. Taylor. Dr. Parkhurst's paper on "The Father's Domestic Headship" lucidly, and with fine discrimination, defines a father's duties and responsibilities in the home. An interesting description of "Girl Life in Modern Jerusalem" is given by United States Consul E. S. Wallace and illustrated by Eric Pape. Thomas Wentworth Higginson selects for "A Young Girl's Library" one hundred books by American authors, best adapted to the instruction of girls of fifteen. Ornamental and decorative uses of crepe paper are detailed by Emma H. Heath and pictured.

DON'T USE A WHIP.

Some Good Pointers on What to Do With Balky Horses.

Good authorities on the horse agree that a balky horse should never be whipped or abused in any manner. One writer says: "If he won't go let him stand and think it over. He will very often think better of it and go on of his accord; or, if he does not answer, get out of the wagon and pat him and talk to him kindly. Sometimes it is well to loosen a strap or start a buckle. I have known of the mere act of unchecking and rechecking the animal to answer the purpose and stop a determination to resist. For this same reason an apple, or a bunch of grass from the roadside, or a handful of oats, or a few kernels of corn, will often accomplish what an hour's beating could never effect."

Horses are sometimes supposed to be balky when the real trouble is an ill-fitting collar.

'Do not get provoked with the horse. The man who first spoiled him by bad management is the one to be blamed.

A Place for Knox.

When Sutro's new electric road to the Golden Gate Park and beach starts up the first motorman will be Harry Knox, the A. R. U. man who took a leading part in the strike of last year. Knox has been unable to secure steady employment since he went on strike, and he has attributed this to the influence of the railroad company. Sutro has now come to his relief and will give him a permanent job. He is a brother to the Sacramento Knox who figured in the examination into the train disaster that cost Engineer Clarke his life.

The Week's Failures.

The Bradstreet Mercantile Agency reports twenty-two failures for the Pacific Coast States and Territories for last week, as compared with thirty for the previous week and twenty-two for the corresponding week of 1894. The failures are divided among the trades as follows: 2 bakeries, 3 saloons, 1 contractor, 1 shoes, 3 general stores, 1 implements, 1 dry goods, 1 liquors, 1 lumber, 1 milling company, 3 grocers, 1 livery, 1 fancy goods, 1 tailor, 1 men's furnishing goods.

SAYINGS OF LOCAL PASTORS.

A Resume of the Sermons in the Oakland Churches.

The Tribune today presents the first of its series of Sunday sermons one of which will from now on appear every Monday. The ministers of the country have co-operated in this matter with the object of getting a wider hearing for the essential truths of the Christian religion. They will discuss the vital application of Christianity the ethical bearing of present problems, the solution of hard questions which present themselves in common life, and the relation of the teachings of Jesus Christ to the needs of men in this present century.

The sermon given here with is "In Search of Zebedee," and is by the Rev. George Hodges, D. D., Dean Hambridge Theological school, Cambridge, Mass.:

Then came to him the mother of Zebedee's children, with her sons.—Matt. xx., 20.

When? Last Sunday, at the time of the morning service. The mother was there, and the children were with her, but Zebedee was absent.

What was the matter with Zebedee?

Zebedee was very tired after a week of hard work and worry, and he took Sunday for a rest day. I cannot greatly blame him. In this over-busy time, when commerce and society have placed themselves under the patronage of St. Vitus, when the devil pursues us with the keen prod of competition, when the hours of work are long and many, when the chances of financial failure range themselves in grim lines between which the merchant must run a gauntlet every week, when we are all hurried and worried, the parson may properly be grateful that so many men appear at church. It is a matter for encouragement.

Zebedee was absent not because he is a worse sinner than his wife and children but because he is the slave of the two despots who possess this modern world—electricity and steam. The conditions of our present living are against church attendance.

It must be confessed, however, on the part of Zebedee that he is quite cheerfully resigned to this slavery. He enjoys it. His chains are made of the metal which is used in mints, and he likes to hear them clink. Zebedee would be a saint, indeed, if he were not affected by the bustling, superficial and material life in the midst of which he lives. We may rightly complain against him that he lives so much in the bad air of the world that he sometimes loses his appreciation of good air and stays away from church because he is out of touch with heaven. Zebedee seems to care more about his investments than he does about his soul; and is so busy laying up treasure here below that he is in danger of being altogether bankrupt up above.

Jesus Christ was well acquainted with business men. It is significant that when he chose a place of residence he got as far away as he could from Jerusalem, the city of conventional religion, and settled in Capernum, which was a brisk town of business. He chose a group of alert young business men to be his intimate friends and disciples. He knew the business man, heart and soul; the gospels show it. And when he declared over and over that the greatest danger to the spiritual life comes from devotion to the interests of this present world, and from the deceitfulness of riches, he knew what he was talking about. He had the business man in mind. He was looking at Zebedee.

Church attendance is one of the lesser Christian duties. The New Testament gives no space to it. But it is a fairly accurate thermometer of religion. When it is at zero the chances are that a man's heart is pretty cold. I sympathize with Zebedee as he stays at home, while his wife and children go to church. No doubt he needs rest. But—honestly, now—Zebedee, don't you need the service more? In the life which you are called to live, with its manifold temptations, is it not the part of good sense to make use of all the opportunities which offer themselves for the upbuilding of the soul? It is hard enough to be a good man under the most favorable circumstances. No real help in that direction should be declined.

It is true, I know, that Zebedee complains that he is not greatly helped. The service is monotonous; and the sermon is dull, too long and generally unprofitable. We parsons must confess on our part that Zebedee is sometimes right about that. There is fault on both sides.

In the meantime, here is the situation: Zebedee's wife and children sit in Zebedee's pew, and Zebedee is at home reading the Sunday newspaper.

The Sunday newspaper! Is it not possible through this channel to enter into communication with the good people who keep ardently out of earshot of the pulpit? We have many things to say to them. This great congregation whose sanctuary is the sitting-room, whose service book is the newspaper, can we not enter into telephonic conversation with them? The Christian pulpit, even under present conditions, reaches a vast number of people, and exerts an immeasurable and increasing influence upon the living and thinking of this nation. But we are not content. We want a larger congregation. And here behold! The church roof is the sky and the church walls are washed by the waves of the two oceans, and we have a pulpit from which we may address an audience which is measured by the million.

MAN'S LOVE FOR MOTION.

Rev. Dr. Kummer Gives an Able Discourse on "Wheels."

Rev. Dr. Kummer at the First Methodist Episcopal church last evening preached on the subject of "Wheels." Perhaps the showers which fell about the church time kept the bicyclists away, for there were not a great many in attendance. There was no text announced, though the clergyman stated that there are a dozen passages in the scriptures thoroughly applicable to such a subject. The fourth commandment might be taken, or "Whatsoever you do, do it for the glory of God."

In brief he said: "The solution of th question of the bicycle craze lies in man's love for motion. Everything is, if not accompanied by motion, attended by it.

"The human race has from its infancy demanded some means of motion. The primitive people were satisfied with a crude ox cart, but in this age civilized man must be carried across the continent at the rate of twenty miles an hour or he thinks he isn't moving at all. The same laws that gave the wheel birth will perpetuate its use.

"So long as people love pleasure the wheel will stay, for in its use they find pleasure, health and recreation. The bicycle is often abused and is in consequence condemned, yet for every one injured by the use of the wheel ten may be found who are dying of ennui. All Christians can and should use the wheel to the glory of God, by making it the messenger of mercy, kindness and charity."

LIBERAL MINDED.

Rev. Marshall Law Preaches on Fun That Does no Harm.

The Rev. V. Marshall Law of the Church of the Advent in East Oakland delivered a good sermon last night.

"The church," he said, "has no man-made rules for its members in regard to amusement. The question is left for each one to settle for himself. Not that we do not recognize the injurious nature of certain kinds of amusement, but we think it better to advise than to dictate.

"Theaters, cards and dancing may stand for all that may be said for or against indoor amusements. Each of them may be indulged in by a minister of the gospel in moderation and upon proper occasion without damage to moral character beyond the shocking of ultra religious people who, no longer young themselves, think no one should have any harmless fun any more."

OPPOSES THE MOVE.

Rev. Edwards Davis on the Ministerial Endeavor Matter.

Rev. Edwards Davis made the question of taking the ministers into the Christian Endeavor Union, which is an absorbing matter in Oakland at present, the subject of a prelude to his sermon at the Central Christian church last evening. He takes sides against the majority of the preachers, that they should be made ex-officio members of the County Executive Committee, maintaining that if the indiscriminate clergy becomes an ex-officio voting factor in the society it will merely resolve into a ministerial association.

"It has been a purpose of the Endeavorers to assist the church," said Mr. Davis. "If the pastor is to devote his concern to that which should be his aid, I feel that the fifth wheel of the ecclesiastical machinery had better be torn from the gospel car. The salient feature of the success of the society is the promised unification of the church. If the ministers of denominational prejudices shall poison the impartiality of a new generation, the flaunted banner, 'For Christ and the Church,' may be hauled down, and on the wrecking vessel of disrupted union hoist half-mast the ensigns, A. P. A. and Y. M. I., the Epworth and the Westminster Leagues, the Baptist Union and the King's Daughters societies.

"The ministers of this city, more loyal to the spirit of Christ than to their respective churches, cannot afford by their interference to lessen the executive responsibility of the young people of the Society of Christian Endeavor."

Dr. Hulme's Debut.

Rev. James Hulme, the newly-elected rector of St. Andrew's Episcopal church, preached his first sermon in Oakland yesterday. "The Impossible Service" was the subject of his discourse and his hearers were greatly pleased. Mr. Hulme is an extemporaneous speaker of great fluency and power, and handled his subject with a degree of proficiency which convinced the congregation that St. Andrew's has been highly favored by obtaining his services as rector. Mr. Hulme was pastor of the Episcopal church in Cloverdale for six years past.

Mormons Meet.

The Oakland members of the Mormon church, together with their brethren in San Francisco to the number of 20, assembled in Calantho hall, Market street, yesterday, and after Sunday school services partook of bread and water in commemoration of the death of Christ. In the evening elder J. H. Shepherd spoke on "The Apostacy of the Primitive Church."

The Institute Tonight.

"The Realization of Democracy" will be the topic of discussion at the meeting of the Institute of Applied Christianity this evening. Rev. J. E. Scott of the Woodbridge Presbyterian church of San Francisco will speak. This is the beginning of a series of meetings to be devoted to the consideration of practical working principles of reform. Meetings are held at Fifteenth and Clay streets and are free to the public. Ministers are especially invited.

A Pastors' Meeting.

The monthly meeting of the pastors of Oakland and vicinity will be held tomorrow, Tuesday, November 5th, at 4 P. M., in the Y. M. C. A. rooms. All ministers are hereby invited to attend. Dr. Kummer will speak of his "Visit to Rome."

Got the Wrong Man.

Officer Curtiss seriously injured his arm last night by breaking down the door of a Chinese gambling den. Curtiss permitted himself to be used as a battering ram but that he would not have minded had he done something worthy of his mettle. He arrested the Chinaman but when the case was called in the Police Court today the prosecuting witness said that the officer had caught the wrong man. So Curtiss nurses a wrenched arm and Ah There is free to resume business.

OAKLAND TALENT WINS.

The Reliance Football Team's Splendid Game at Portland.

Baseball, Athletic Notes and Gossip of the Sporting Arena.

The Reliance football team on Saturday literally wiped up the field with the Multonomah team of Portland. The Oakland eleven won by a score of 40 to 0. They simply outplayed the web-footers at every point in the game. Three thousand people witnessed the contest. There was great enthusiasm, somewhat dampened, however, by the crushing defeat of the home team.

A dispatch from Portland says: The local team not only failed to score, but so greatly was it outclassed by the visitors that it was unable to keep the Reliance from making touchdown after touchdown. The explanation of the one-sided result lies in the disparity in weights between the two teams and the lack of training and experience on the part of the home players. The Reliance boys put up one of the cleanest games of football ever seen in this city, and before the Portland public entirely vindicated themselves of the charge of unclean playing made in San Francisco.

Everyone expected the Multonomahs to lose, but no one thought the visitors would pile up touchdowns the way they did. Reliance had the ball practically all the time, and made a series of rushes through the line or plays around the end until Wyckoff surged forward through Multonomah's line and touched the ball down behind the goal posts. Nothing could stop Wyckoff, and he parted the home team's right and left apparently at will.

Jack Sherrard, at the right end, made most of the gains for the visitors, and when he took the ball around the right end, with the splendid interference of Burnett or Oliver, he made thirty to forty yards every time. He was hard to tackle, and when the Multonomah tackles tried to stop him he shook them off and gained a few yards more.

Captain McMillan played a strong game, though handicapped by bruises received in the recent game with Berkeley, but that did not prevent him from carrying the ball and ten or eleven Multonomah men over the line for the prettiest touchdown of the day. Frick was very agile, and Oliver, Burnett and Hall played a great game.

From here the Reliance team will go to the Sound, and thence to Butte, where it is likely to meet the only formidable competitor on its trip. Local ballplayers have made a special effort to entertain the visitors, and they appear to be having a very good time.

BERKELEY'S VICTORY.

The State University freshmen football team had a walkover on Saturday in their game at Central Park with the Stanford "freshies." The contest was so unequal that when the second half was over the score stood 11 to 0 in favor of the Berkeley boys.

ACME CLUB NIGHT.

The Acme Club will hold a "gentlemen's night" two weeks from tomorrow evening. The principal attractions will be two four-round contests between Frank Thurman and J. Dodd of the Olympic club, and Butler of the Olympic and Eugene Kelley of the San Francisco Athletic Club.

A RELIANCE NIGHT.

The Reliance Club will give a "gentlemen's night" November 28th. J. C. Williamson and A. Brill will wrestle, best two out of three falls, catch-as-catch-can. There will be a four-round bout between McMahon, O. C., and Ford of the Phoenix Club.

BASEBALL.

San Francisco won a game in the mud yesterday from San Jose across the bay. The score was 12 to 1. Daniels was hit hard, but the game on the whole was one of the best ever played, notwithstanding a very sloppy field. Experts who witnessed the contest say the fielding was excellent. The play went with snap, vim and vigor and was marked by a lively interest on the part of each player

At Los Angeles the home team won from Oakland by a score of 11 to 1.

AS OTHERS SEE US.

County Expert Davis is saving the county not only a great deal of money, but also his splendid ability as an expert, keeps everything running along without a hitch. He is a most valuable man for the county, and has a wonderful gift in examining accounts and figures. The Supervisors did not make any mistake when they appointed him to this position.—Haywards Journal.

County Recorder Charles Spear is already one of our most popular county officers. He thoroughly understands the duties of his office, and every courtesy and attention is paid to all having business with his office. Mr. Spear takes special pride in keeping the office up to the high standard of his predecessor, R. W. Church, and he is being complimented by every one having business at the Recorder's office, on the able manner he is discharging the duties of the office.—Haywards Journal.

The Wheelmen's Protective Company of New York, which claims to be an institution that insures bicyclists against loss by theft, recent developments show plainly is a fake concern. Agents of this concern have been doing business among the bicycle men in this city and Oakland and have reaped a harvest. Those who have had the misfortune to have had their bicycles stolen have failed, after efforts lasting many weeks, to collect their insurance, and have awakened to the fact that they have been sold.—San Francisco Argus.

Oakland is in it. Three grass widows is the excitement. They are forming a grass widow's brigade, to don the bloomers and wheel to Chicago within the next three weeks. They are Mrs. Lulu Laro, Mrs. Cora Benson, Mrs. Alice Johnson. They have already left their husbands legally behind and enjoy single blessedness once more, while their whilom happy spouses are putting up their hard round cartwheels in the form of alimony. They will wear bloomers cut in the latest mode and travel by way of the Southern route, keeping near the railroad tracks so that they may seek shelter in a hotel in case it should rain. Mrs. Laro, before she got a divorce, got jealous of her husband, a poor tonsorial artist, and horse-whipped him.—San Francisco Argus.

Dr. A. M. Gardner of the Napa asylum has sold his property in this city (Calistoga) to a Mr. Francis of Oakland. The property consists of the large brick building opposite the Magnolia hotel and his handsome residence on Cedar street.—Calistogan.

ROBERTS ON STRIKES.

The A. R. U. Men Discouraged at the Present Outlook.

The possibility of a strike on the Great Northern road is being watched with interest by local A. R. U. men, although they do not think the strike will be ordered.

"It makes no difference who strikes," said T. R. Roberts, of the Oakland A. R. U. this morning, "for so long as the engineers and conductors will not stand in with us there will be nothing accomplished. The last strike proved that if the engineers and conductors will work the trainmen cannot carry the day. If they will join hands they can get everything they want. It is the same all over the country. The men in the Great Northern may go on strike, but they will accomplish nothing and they will not succeed in enlisting the sympathy of other roads. They have got to learn that there is no strength in a dozen pin-head organizations all pulling in opposite directions. Until there is one united organization of railroad men they will have to be contented with just such salary and restriction as the managers condescend to give them."

FABIOLA'S FETE.

Early Arrangements Being Made for the May Day Festivity.

The Board of Managers of the Fabiola Hospital held their regular monthly meeting last week, the following members being present: Mrs. John Yule, Mrs. R. W. Gortill, Mrs. T. G. Harrison, Mrs. Charles Deering, Miss Crockett, Mrs. R. W. McChesney, Mrs. E. B. Jerome, Mrs. Wallace Everson, Mrs. G. M. Stolp, Mrs. F. I. Kendall, Miss May Burnham, Mrs. Pedar Sather, Mrs. J. J. Scotchler, Miss Janet Haight, Mrs. Ives, Mrs. W. W. Standeford, Mrs. A. A. Barton.

The report of the resident physician for October read as follows:

Patients in hospital October 1st, 33: admitted, 44; treated, 77; discharged, 44; in hospital November 1st, 33; cured, 39; improved, 1; unimproved, 2; died, 3; births, 2 males, 2 females; operations, Dr. Fenton 6, Dr. Chamberlain 3, Dr. Cunningham 2, Dr. Larkey 3, and the following 1 each: Drs. Russell, Rucker, Fisher, Maher and Bush.

The ladies passed a hearty vote of thanks to those who had made donations to the hospital during October. Mrs. Barrett, Mrs. Zeno Mauvais, and Mrs. James Driscoll were voted into the Hospital Association membership and the name of Mrs. Noyes was proposed.

Much interest is manifested among the society ladies of Oakland in regard to the Fabiola May Fete, and preparations are already being made for that event. They have gone about it thus early to prevent nearby cities from choosing their dates, the 1st and 2d of May, for similar festivals. A large portion of the ground surrounding the institution has been laid off by the members of the association to be used for the propagation of corn flowers, with which a Fabiola booth vehicle will be elaborately decorated on the fete day. It has been decided that Friday, May 1st, shall be devoted to the floral parade and exhibit and Saturday will be exclusively for the horse show and sports.

A general meeting will be called upon the return of Mrs. Remi Chabot within a couple of weeks to arrange the details of the festival.

POLICE PICK-UPS.

Felony Cases and Misdemeanors Come Before Judge Wood.

Theodore Lycurgus, a colored man who has made Judge Wood's acquaintance quite often, was in the Police Court this morning, charged with being drunk. Lycurgus made an eloquent plea, but when he reached the point where he said he had not been in court for six years, Judge Wood cut him short with "three days."

James Macdonald, who says that the hoodlum element of Franklin street tormented him into using vulgar language on the public street, pleaded not guilty and will be tried tomorrow.

Frank Wyman, Burt McCord and Max Kohn were charged with stealing Sunday newspapers. They all pleaded not guilty and will be tried tomorrow.

Thomas Hickey, who is in the county jail for a felony and who succeeded in escaping, was brought to the city prison today to be booked for breaking jail. He now regrets that he acted so hastily as the witnesses in the felony case cannot be found and he will probably be released on that charged. Now he has to answer for a second crime.

LITERARY NOTES.

There is one publication in this country that comes as a boon to the hearths and homes and hearts of many women whose worldly opportunities are decidedly limited, and that is Jenness Miller Monthly. Within the scope of its crisp, clear pages there is meat and drink for all classes of women, but more essentially for those who are not endowed with abundant time or opportunity for keeping abreast of the current of progress in domestic, hygienic and social affairs. Jenness Miller Monthly is an educator as well as an entertainer, a companion and friend. Every paragraph glows with something of pertinent interest to women. The November number has an article on "The Reduction of Obesity," so clearly and intelligently written that it will prove of inestimable value everywhere. There is an admirable kindergarten department and a household science paper which has not its counterpart anywhere because of the intelligent and suggestive details by which it is characterized.

The leaves from the Vailima Letters which are published in McClure's for November are capitally illustrated with several photographs taken in the South Seas and now first published. One shows Mr. Stevenson on horseback, another reclining on his couch playing the flute, and there are groups in which Mr. Stevenson appears. The letters are introduced by an article by his closest friend, Mr. Sidney Colvin. No finer piece of autobiography than these letters has ever been written. There is a great deal in them about Stevenson's literary work and plans.

Macmillan & Co. announce for immediate publication "The Universities of Europe in the Middle Ages," by Hastings Rashdall, M. A., Fellow and Lecturer of Hertford College, Oxford. The plan of the book consists in the full description of the great archetypal universities—Bologna, Paris and Oxford, and the rather shorter account of the foundation, constitution and history of the others, arranged in national groups. The writing of this important book is a task in which Professor Rashdall became involved through winning the Chancellor's Prize at Oxford for an essay in 1887. He intended originally merely to revise and enlarge this essay, but while the essay required only a year to write, the revision has occupied more than eleven.

"The Holiday Dance at Worrosquoyacke" is the title of Mrs. Burton Harrison's latest and best short story—a two-part novelette—which opens most delightfully in the November Ladies' Home Journal. It deals with New York fashionables—first at the Horse Show and subsequently in Virginia, the personages and environments appealing to the author's happiest efforts. The story is concluded in the December Journal and is artistically illustrated by W. L. Taylor. Dr. Parkhurst's paper on "The Father's Domestic Headship" lucidly, and with fine discrimination, defines a father's duties and responsibilities in the home. An interesting description of "Girl Life in Modern Jerusalem" is given by United States Consul E. S. Wallace and illustrated by Eric Pape. Thomas Wentworth Higginson selects for "A Young Girl's Library" one hundred books by American authors, best adapted to the instruction of girls of fifteen. Ornamental and decorative uses of crepe paper are detailed by Emma H. Heath and pictured.

DON'T USE A WHIP.

Some Good Pointers on What to Do With Balky Horses.

Good authorities on the horse agree that a balky horse should never be whipped or abused in any manner. One writer says: "If he won't go let him stand and think it over. He will very often think better of it and go on of his own accord; or, if he does not answer, get out of the wagon and pat him and talk to him kindly. Sometimes it is well to loosen a strap or start a buckle. I have known of the mere act of unchecking and rechecking the animal to answer the purpose and stop a determination to resist. For this same reason an apple, or a bunch of grass from the roadside, or a handful of oats, or a few kernels of corn, will often accomplish what an hour's beating could never effect."

Horses are sometimes supposed to be balky when the real trouble is an ill-fitting collar.

"Do not get provoked with the horse. The man who first spoiled him by bad management is the one to be blamed.

A Place for Knox.

When Sutro's new electric road to the Golden Gate Park and beach starts up the first motorman will be Harry Knox, the A. R. U. man who took a leading part in the strike of last year. Knox has been unable to secure steady employment since he went on strike, and he has attributed this to the influence of the railroad company. Sutro has now come to his relief and will give him a permanent job. He is a brother to the Sacramento Knox who figured in the examination into the train disaster that cost Engineer Clarke his life.

The Week's Failures.

The Bradstreet Mercantile Agency reports twenty-two failures for the Pacific Coast States and Territories for last week, as compared with thirty for the previous week and twenty-two for the corresponding week of 1894. The failures are divided among the trades as follows: 2 bakeries, 3 saloons, 1 contractor, 1 shoes, 3 general stores, 1 implements, 1 dry goods, 1 liquors, 1 lumber, 1 milling company, 3 grocers, 1 livery, 1 fancy goods, 1 tailor, 1 men's furnishing goods.
